New Acid, Fine Vitamin. Chance for a Good Writer. How Puzzling Is Science. Not the Same Brick, Twice.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

A NEW acid has been identified, existing in every living thing, from men down to bacteria and mould, a strange substance that stimulates growth, "composed of long chains of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen."

It is so powerful that "one part in a BILLION," a very small drop in 250 gallons of water, is enough to affect the entire living body. It is called "panthothenic," meaning that it comes from everywhere.

If you knew how to remove all traces of it from food, you might breed dwarfs a few inches high and produce the fabulous "homunculus."

YOU ARE also told, and may safely believe, that carrots, fresh butter and other substances contain the most precious of vitamins, one that prevents colds, or cures them when you have them.

But don't try to live on raw carrots. Eat them well cooked. And don't force your children to eat them if they don't like them.

What children don't LIKE they can't digest, and other foods possess that vitamin. Only things we like cause the gastric juice to flow. No gastric juice, no digestion. Read Pavlov.

ANY MAN young enough to be powerful, old enough to know American history, and able to write well, exposing the wrong, bolstering the right, might get a job with the new weekly that Prof. Moley will edit with the co-operation of Vincent Astor, William Averell Harriman, Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey and Mr. McNitt.

Vincent Astor, publisher of the weekly, who will help the others to pay expenses until profits begin pouring in, thinks a really powerful writer the most important of assets and said yesterday to this writer and his assembled associates:

"I wish we could find somebody to write articles like the one my friend Hearst wrote when Lady Cathcart was kept out of the United States on a 'holier than thou' basis."

It was suggested that he might persuade Hearst to do the job himself in return for "a share of the profits."

YOU SPEND years figuring and the amount of interstellar space involved in "100 million light years" distance, reading with awe Einstein's statement that time is not infinite, that it had a definite beginning and will end some day, also that space is not infinite, but folded over on itself.

And then a genuine scientist announces that "the universe itself may be just an idea, with no actual reality." You know that a solid block of marble, or the frame of a steel building is made up of microscopic particles of electricity, electrons and protons, each in proportion to size as far from the other, inside the atom, as the earth is from the sun.

The more you read and the more you study, the more you feel like Kipling's young elephant, that remarked when the alligator seized him by the tip of the trunk:

"It is too buch for be."

THE LATE President Ripley, of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, said:

"The three important words in the language of success are ORGANIZE, DEPUTIZE, SUPERVISE."

That is wisdom. Another wise thing was said yesterday by another railroad man, A. J. County, one of Gen. Atterbury's important associates on the Pennsylvania railroad:

"This is a time to remember that you cannot get experience without paying for it. Paying for it is all right, if you don't pay too much, and if you don't buy the same gold brick twice."

Buying one gold brick, says Mr. County, quoting an old friend, is no sign that your mind is feeble. But buying the same gold brick over again proves that you are hopeless.

STOCK PRICES went up again yesterday, while brokers still talked about moving the exchange to New Jersey, rather than pay four cents a share tax to the city for every share of stock sold.

This seems like too much excitement.

The customers will pay the tax, and when a man gambles in stocks he isn't thinking about four cents a share. He EXPECTS to make forty dollars a share or four hundred dollars a share. Four cents would make no difference to him.

ONE QUESTION troubles brokers and those of their customers that know anything.

Are stocks going up because the dollar is going down, or because times really are better? The dollar sold in Europe yesterday for less than 69 cents, gold.

If it is the drop of the dollar that puts up stocks, what kind of a dollar have we? We have no increased supply of money in return for our "no gold basis" situation. Those that deal in dollars, "nice, clean business," are puzzled.

BRITAIN INTENDS that every Briton shall be protected wherever he goes, among savages at least, even if he makes mistakes.

In African Betchuanaland, young Chief Tshekedi ordered the flogging of a British subject, and that Briton was well flogged by Chief Tshekedi's floggers.

The Briton flogged was accused of attacking a native girl. But the law says no native court must judge a European, no matter what he does. Eleven big trucks of British Marines, blue jackets and machine guns travelled across the parched African region and Chief Tshekedi is chief no more.

COURT ORDER AIDS VOTE TAX QUIZ

Treasurer for County Must Yield Lists Of 'Wholesalers'

The Registration Commission scored an important victory over the County Treasurer's office today when it won the right to examine the purchase of tax receipts in wholesale lots.

Judge James H. Gray ordered Attorney B. Robert Averbach, counsel for the Treasurer, to turn over to the commission just what the commission wants—orders for tax receipts in blocks of 50 or more. They will be turned over by wards.

This will give the commission the opportunity to call in some of those named in the orders and determine whether the orders are genuine. If not, the names will be stricken from the registration lists—and there'll be fewer votes next Tuesday.

The members of the Registration Commission and the County Treasurer's office are of different political factions.

Deputy Treasurer A. E. Anke announced today that any citizen who discovered somebody else had obtained his tax receipt could get one for himself by paying the tax over again (this is called the twice-paid tax). It was up to the 15,000 to March; Political Signs Banned

Route of Parade

Pittsburgh's NRA Victory Day parade will form at 7:30 at the Fifth Avenue High School and will start promptly at 8 p. m.

The line of march will be down Fifth to Liberty, to Sixth street, over Sixth Street Bridge and Federal street to West Stockton, past the reviewing stand at West Stockton and Ridge avenues to West Park, where it will disband.

Cloudy skies today failed to dampen Pittsburgh's fealty to the NRA to which it will pay marching tribute tonight in what is believed by the marshals will be the greatest peace-time parade demonstration in the city's history.

Attesting to the success of the Blue Eagle's attack on depression, more than 15,000 men, women and children will be in the line of march. There will be 60 floats, more than 30 musical units and several military groups. Industry, fraternities and labor and civic life will be presented by marchers.

ROOSEVELT DELAYS TRIP TO WAIT DEADLINE; 30,000 STILL OUT

Today's mine "holiday" developments:

Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson announces bituminous coal code "unquestionably" will be ready for President Roosevelt's signature, tonight. President cancels yacht trip to await code.

Western Pennsylvania coal field generally quiet, with more than 30,000 miners idle and state police on duty in Fayette County on orders of Gov. Pinchot.

Pits Closed, Pickets Quiet

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 15.—Mining operations in the Connellsville coke region virtually were paralyzed today with the spread of the code holiday under the watchful eye of 60 Pennsylvania state police. One minor disorder was reported and at least one riot averted.

State police were sent in to the area by orders of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, who assured the miners of their right to picket. Some of the tenseness which followed yesterday's outbreak when 20 persons were beaten and shot had dissipated with the arrival of the troopers and special investigators of the state and federal governments.

One man was found lying along the road leading into Edenborn mine of the H. C. Frick Coal Company. C. H. Yauger, 57, a nonunion miner, said he had been set upon by three men while on his way to Edenborn mine. He was taken home.

CLASH AVERTED

A short time before troopers intervened between pickets and a nonunion worker at the Edenborn mine and averted what might have been a serious clash.

All but half a dozen Frick mines were closed today. Most of the independent mines also were shut down as the men joined in the "holiday" in protest against delay in Washington over signing of the coal code.

At the three Frick-owned Colonial mines small groups of men were on duty, the majoriay of

President Sets Time Limit

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Johnson, the recovery administrator, said today that "unquestionably" the bituminous coal code would be ready for President Roosevelt's signature tonight.

Johnson said the committee of 18 leading operators resumed work this morning, and that "only about three points were left to be cleared up."

The administrator declined to say what those points were.

A committee of Appalachian commercial operators also resumed its negotiations with the United Mine Workers of America on labor contracts for most of the mines in that area. Johnson said:

"They have less to clear up even than the contract committee."

Johnson disclosed he had suggested unification of the United Mine Workers of America with the Progressive Miners of America, a miners' union largely confined to Illinois.

Asked what resulted from the suggestion, Johnson said they both were "standing with reluctant feet where the brook and river meet."

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, declined to comment on Johnson's statement. Thomas Pearcy, president of Progressive Miners, could not be reached immediately.

DELAYS YACHT TRIP

President Roosevelt cancelled plans to board the government yacht Sequoia at Fredericksburg, Va., tonight in order to be at hand for the promised conclusion of the code.

Mr. Roosevelt is determined that this long pending working agreement be attained today, and he is standing by to see it through.

He still is hopeful of getting away tomorrow for a week-end cruise.

Mine Region Quiet, Pinchot Seeks Rest

The chief executive said his information indicated that state police will be able to prevent further violence.

FORD KIDNAPING PLOT BARED

DETROIT, Sept. 15.—(INS.)—A plot to kidnap Edsel Ford was broken up here in July, 1930, it was revealed for the first time today, with the arrest in Los Angeles of Red O'Riordan, notorious Detroit thug and kidnaper.

No details of the plot could be learned, but a source close to the son of Henry Ford told International News Service that such a plot had occurred.

O'Riordan is wanted here for the kidnaping and slaying of David Cass in 1929. Cass was executed by his captors after police ambushed Joseph (Legs) Laman, the gang's payoff agent, and shot and captured him, as he was accepting a ransom payment from the youth's father.

Detectives raided a downtown hotel where O'Riordan was living during the search for the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, but the gunman, "tipped" to the raid, had fled a few moments before.

Dry Plan Winner's Trial Adjourned

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Trial of Maj. Chester P. Mills, former prohibition administrator for the New York district, on charges of conspiracy to divert industrial alcohol into bootleg channels was adjourned today until September 20, in Brooklyn Federal Court.

Mills was winner in 1928 of a $25,000 prize for submitting "the best plan to enforce prohibition." Eight others are named in the indictment with him.

WOODIN SEES U. S. SURPLUS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Secretary Woodwin said today that the Treasury might show a surplus for the present fiscal year.

Increases in tax receipts, all along the line, he said, were most encouraging. Repeal of prohibition, which he said he thought most probable, would go far toward balancing the budget.

Estimates for Treasury receipts from January to the end of next June, when the fiscal year closes, he said, were extremely favorable.

Claire Windsor To Wed to Save $75,000 Balm

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Ordered by a Superior Court jury to pay Mrs. Marian Read $75,000 for alienation of affections of her former husband, Alfred C. Read, Jr., Claire Windsor said today she would marry if necessary to escape paying the judgment.

Attorneys for the blonde actress said a motion for a new trial will be made within the next few days. They said they were ready to carry the case to the State Supreme Court.

The verdict against Miss Windsor was returned late yesterday by a jury of seven women and five men amid cheers and handclapping of courtroom spectators. Miss Windsor said, with half a laugh:

"I have no money and rather than go to work that Mrs. Read may collect, I will get married again. I can't understand it all."

Read said:

"All I can say is that it is a shame. I testified it was my fault, and it was. I am awfully sorry for Claire."

Mrs. Read told the jurors:

"Oh, I am so happy. Thank you, thank you all so much."

Chicago Taxpayer Demands Election

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—A taxpayer filed suit today to compel a special mayoral election, charging that selection of Mayor Edward J. Kelly by the City Council was only a temporary expedient.

Mayor Kelly was named after the Illinois General Assembly had enacted special legislation declaring the office vacant, after the death of Mayor Anton J. Cermak. City ordinances providing for a successor were vague.

U.S. INTERVENES IN DYERS' WAR

The cleaners and dyers strike reached a crucial stage today as Miss Emmeline Pitt, Department of Labor arbitrator, was sent by the United States Labor Department to reopen negotiations.

This afternoon, with Miss Pitt, John S. Fisher and Frank C. Harper, of the Chamber of Commerce, sitting in, the conference hopes to get over its biggest obstacle—that of skilled and unskilled workers.

Miss Pitt appeared as the result of a request by the strikers' committee which went to Washington to seek a mediator.

At the end of yesterday's session both sides were of the opinion no agreement could be reached. The strikers had decided to negotiate with individual plant owners.

The strikers contended that under the formula of the operators almost all the workers would be restricted to the NRA minimum wage of $15 per week.

The workers demanded that a group constituting about half their number be classed as skilled workers. Some of them under this classification would receive as much as $45 a week.

Judge Upholds Nudity For Art Sake at Fair

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—No artificial flowers or rose petals will drape the nudity of the young ladies who pose as living models in the representation of Manet's painting, "Olympia," in the Streets of Paris at the World's Fair.

That was the edict of Judge Joseph David today and he enforced the ruling with an injunction restraining police and exposition officials from interfering with art, though it be nude.

Shown a reproduction of the painting on which the peepshow in the Streets of Paris is based, Judge David snorted:

The court was told by Cati Mount, proprietor of the show, that Policeman Joseph Morarity had ordered that the models wear two velvet rose peals.

The Judge remarked:

"He must be a gardener. I suggest he go back to gardening. He's no art critic."

COURT REFUSES LAST-MINUTE VOTE MACHINE CHECKUP

MOVE BY COYNE ATTORNEY FAILS

Personal Examination By Beamish Overruled

HARRISBURG, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Richard Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth, won't have to examine all of the 1,100 voting machines to be used in Allegheny County next Tuesday.

The Dauphin County Court dismissed an informal application yesterday for a peremptory mandamus which would have imposed the arduous job on Beamish.

Attorney General William A. Schnader, in opposing the petition, argued that the proceedings were started only five days before the election. He said it was impossible for Beamish to accomplish such a task on so short notice.

The petitioners indicated that a number of the machines might be faulty.

COYNE ATTORNEY

The petition for an examination of Allegheny County vote machines was filed by Attorneys John R. Frankel and E. J. Kent, Jr., of Pittsburgh. Attorney Frankel is an associate of State Senator James J. Coyne, and has often represented the Republican organization.

Vote Machine Inspectors Won't Cast Ballots

Allegheny County's some 450 vote machine inspectors will be unable to cast a vote in the primaries Tuesday, Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank told them at an instruction meeting in the county office building, last night.

With the announcement, one inspector from McKeesport resigned on the spot, and it was learned that about a half dozen others had resigned previously.

In all probability the inspectors will not be assigned to districts in which they are registered, and since they must report for duty when the polls are opened and continue to serve until they are closed, no opportunity of voting is open to them.

VOTE SACRIFICE

Frank told the inspectors their vote must be sacrificed in the interest of an honest election, and declared no other alternative was open to the Bureau of Elections.

Frank instructed the inspectors in the use of the machines, and his instructions were supplemented by moving pictures. He advised the inspectors to make periodical inspection of the machines during the day.

They were told to keep an eye directed on election boards for possible election cheating, and the inspectors were asked to stay at the polls after the closing hours. Frank said:

"You have a right to be at your polls as long as the machines are there, and I want you to stay there after the polls close to make yourself useful to the election board. If the board makes it clear they don't need you in anyway, that is all the more reason for you to insist upon staying."

Only half of the inspectors were present last night. The remainder of them are scheduled to receive instructions tonight.

CLOONAN TO SEE VOTE SETUP

Gilbert Cloonan, head of the County Elections Bureau under the Armstrong regime, will be permitted to watch county employes set up the voting machines as long as he does not hinder their work, the County Commissioners agreed.

Cloonan will represent Attorney William H. Coleman, county Republican chairman, a candidate for Common Pleas Court on the Republican ticket.

Attorneys A. M. Oliver and Edward Coll appeared before the commissioners yesterday, stating that Coleman had named Cloonan as his representative. Under the law, candidates and political groups are permitted to have a representative observe the work.

Commissioner C. M. Barr opposed the move, stating that he did not believe the request was in good faith. He also said:

"I am opposed because I do not believe this man is fitted from the standpoint of mechanics and nothing can be gained by his presence there."

TRADE SECRET SELLERS FREED

A corporation tempered justice with mercy today and two men, after pleading guilty to trying to sell secrets of the Copperweld Steel Company, were free on parole.

Judge Elder W. Marshall granted three-year paroles to the men after Attorney Frank Kaplan, representing the Glassport concern, suggested mercy. He declared the families of the two were almost destitute, and that the company had its trade secrets and property returned.

The attorney complimented County Detective Peter Connors, who arrested Michael Novak, 27, of 220 Nineteenth street, Homestead, and Charles Penkova, 30, 132 Ninth street, Homestead, when they were attempting to sell trade secrets of the concern for $25,000.

Connors posed as a prospective buyer.

He predicted the final registration in Pittsburgh, Scranton and third-class cities Saturday will show a "more marked" trend in this direction.

FLOOD PLAN SET AHEAD FOR ACTION

Pinchot Speeds Up Ickes Office on Relief Project

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Approved by the War Board, Pittsburgh's $53,000,000 flood control project today is formally before the Emergency Public Works Administration for action.

Following the conference with Gov. Gifford Pinchot, Joseph F. Guffey and M. L. Benedum yesterday, Harold L. Ickes, public works administrator, advanced the Pittsburgh project for early consideration.

It was learned today that two Civilian Conservation Corps reforestation areas in Pennsylvania have been set aside for development in connection with the proposed work on two reservoirs in the Allegheny basin. This is regarded as recognition by the administration of the assistance given in Pennsylvania by Gov. Pinchot and the willingness to coordinate reforestation with the work of flood control.

Suggestions made by Gov. Pinchot in his talk with Administrator Ickes have been referred to experts and division chiefs and are declared to be practical. These will be considered with the flood control project before the Public Works Board.

Mrs. Cook told the court she had voted since then and that no fraud had been proved against her in 1931. Edward Boyler, attorney for the commission, did not oppose the ruling.

TURMOIL BOILS TO NEW CRISIS IN CUBA

Troops Rushed From Havana to Quell Uprising

HAVANA, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—A new Cuban "constitution of independence" subordinating individual rights to common welfare was inaugurated today as unrest and political turmoil boiled to a crisis.

Strikes grew through the island, some admittedly in opposition to the government. Havana was threatened with another serious food shortage. The administration heard rumors of armed resistance and tightened guard lines about the National Hotel, where 500 defiant army officers have entrenched themselves.

FIGHTING GROWS

Fighting and bloodshed, mutiny and rebellion were abroad as President Grau San Martin announced a plan calling for "absolute independence and national sovereignty," a "perfect adjustment of political and economic interests" and general elections for a constitutional convention.

A detachment of troops was sent from Havana to quell an uprising near the town of Consolacion del Sur, in Pinar del Rio Province, where a former army captain, Fernando Aran, and a group of armed civilians persuaded an army post to join them in a revolt against the government. The band then went to the hills.

Warehousemen were on strike in Havana. Already prices have soared because of this and a field workers' walkout in adjacent provinces, and authorities foresaw a growing scarcity of food.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—A memorandum credited to the late Dr. Ernest Oberfohren, once a leading member of Germany's Nationalist party, blaming Nazi leaders for the fire which gutted the Reichstag building, was read today at the inquiry into the blaze being conducted here by prominent international jurists.

Dr. Oberfohren committed suicide in Berlin in May in protest against alleged "persecution" by the Nazis. He was for many years a prominent figure in Nationalist circles.

The memorandum charged that Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Prussian premier, and Dr. Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda in Chancellor Hitler's cabinet, "engineered" the fire to spread fear of Communistic terrorism.

"About 80 citizens from Homestead Borough petitioned the County Commissioners of Allegheny County for state police to maintain law and order and to prevent intimidation of voters at primary, September 19, and general election, November 7, for the following reasons:

"Voters intimidated from voting because of disturbances and riots in and about the various polling places which disturbances have not been suppressed by the borough police or authorities.

"Police in uniform have entered into and remained in polling places and have directed and interfered with conduct of elections. Constables, firemen and other borough employes and officials have appeared at polling places, some armed with firearms and have threatened, beat and intimidated workers and voters, and other reasons.

Commissioner McGovern also sent a letter to the Governor confirming the telegram and enclosing the petition, signed by the 80 residents.

Roosevelt Delays On Bid From Legion

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP.) — President Roosevelt is withholding final decision on attending the American Legion convention at Chicago next month, but it appears improbable that he can be there either for that purpose or to visit the Century of Progress fair.

A conflict of dates almost bars Mr. Roosevelt from going to Chicago. He speaks before the Conference of Catholic Charities in New York on October 4, and unveils a monument of Samuel Gompers, labor leader, here on October 7.

Roosevelt to Attend White House Vet's Rites

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—President Roosevelt today arranged to attend funeral services for Irwin H. Hoover, chief usher at the White House, who died suddenly last night of a heart attack.

Services will be held tomorrow afternoon in the chapel of Glenwood Cemetery and will be conducted by the chief of army chaplains, Julian E. Yates.

Mrs. Roosevelt is returning from her camp in the Adirondacks for the service. James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, also is coming.

Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt offered the White House for the service, but the family of the deceased decided to hold only a very simple service at the cemetery.

"Ike," as he was known around the world, served under 10 presidents. He came into the White House as an electrician in 1891 when Benjamin Harrison was President. Just then they were testing electric wiring, bells and other modern improvements. "Ike" had been sent down from New Jersey to install the equipment.

He was an efficient electrician. He was a polished gentleman. Everything clicked.

President Harrison asked him to remain at the White House as his "friend." He has been there as the personal friend of every President since.

Only recently he was offered $50,000 to write White House memoirs. He declined. He said:

"When I pass out everything I know goes with me. There is nothing more to add."

Monoxide Gas Leads Deaths By Poison

Universal Service.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 15.—Insurance claim agents convening here were told yesterday that carbon monoxide gas kills more victims than all other poisons combined.

Dr. Frank Saylor Rossiter, physician for the Homestead Works of the Carnegie Steel Company, Pittsburgh, spoke from 25 years' experience with 2,000 cases.

He said monoxide causes a painless drunk, in which the inhaler does not realize he is being poisoned and insists on continuing at work. An artificial gas it was explained, may contain from 3 to 50 per cent monoxide. Both artificial and natural gas can produce monoxide when burned in a stove. Gas ranges and heaters cause more monoxide deaths than do automobiles. Both types of fatalities are increasing each year. He said:

"The only effect of monoxide is that it combines with the blood, preventing the normal function of carrying oxygen to the tissues. The brain and nervous tissues feel this first. Elimination begins immediately on removal of the victim to fresh air, if he is breathing. If not dead when found, practically all cases recover in from a few hours to several days."

VERONA TO AIR 'NICOLA DEAL' IN TOWN HALL CLAIM

SET TO TESTIFY WHEN HEARING RESUMES

Ex-Partner of Realty Man on Stand For County

Alderman John J. Verona will tell details of the deal between himself and F. F. Nicola, under which Verona was to receive $150,000 to persuade former County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong to favor the Nicola site in Oakland; when Controller Robert G. Woodside resumes his hearings on the claim of the Schenley Farms Company.

Verona appeared at the hearing yesterday when Alfred W. Barrett, former partner of Nicola in the Miller Printing Machine Company, testified that Nicola had authorized him to negotiate with Verona to win over the late Commissioner Armstrong. A short time before Barrett was summoned to the stand, Nicola and his brother, Oliver P. Nicola, had testified that they alone conducted the negotiations with the county and that no other person was authorized to act as an agent in any manner.

$1,100,000 CLAIM

The hearing yesterday was on the claim of the Schenley Farms Company, headed by Nicola, for payment of $1,100,000 due them under the contract entered into in 1931 for purchase of the site. The County Commissioners have refused to approve the contract, claiming that undue influence was brought to bear on one or more of the former Board of Commissioners. County solicitors produced Barrett to substantiate this charge.

At the close of yesterday's session, Woodside announced the next hearing would be held within two weeks or 10 days.

'PROPOSITION'

Barrett said that in September, 1930, he was instructed by Nicola to talk with Verona and to have the Hill District political leader win over Armstrong. At first, Barrett testified, he appealed to Verona along the lines of doing a civic duty, but no results were obtained. Later, Barrett said, Nicola suggested that he (Barrett) make a proposition to Verona, under which the Alderman would receive $150,000 if the deal went through.

Barrett testified he met Verona in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association on several occasions, had lunch with him a number of times in the old Union Club and finally took him to Nicola's apartment in the Schenley Apartments. He said he left Nicola and Verona alone while they completed the agreement under which Verona was to work.

RECORD OF STOCKHOLDERS

Attorney William Watson Smith, defense counsel, demanded to know when Barrett had left the Miller Company. Barrett said he left in 1932 when the company went into the hands of the receiver. Smith asked Barrett if it were true that he has gotten into trouble with the receivers. Barrett refused to discuss the matter, declaring that it had no connection with the matter at issue.

A record of the stockholders of the Schenley Farms Company was presented at the request of the county solicitors. A further study of the ownership of the company is to be made by auditors for the Controller.

THE 'RESCUE' OF MISS MARY GROSS . . SHE WAS LOCKED IN

Miss Gross, 2861 Ardsley avenue, a-coming backwards down the ladder that meant dinner at home and an evening of freedom for her. A secretary at the closed Monongahela Bank, she was locked in by mistake as fellow employes went home—but Fireman William Hardy, of No. 3 Company, went up the ladder his mates raised, gallantly escorted her to the street. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

RESCUE WOMAN FROM BANK

It took a handsome fireman and a 20-foot ladder to get Miss Mary Gross out of the closed Monongahela National Bank, Sixth avenue and Wood street, last night.

Miss Gross, who lives at 2861 Ardsley avenue, was locked in the bank at the closing hour. So she called the fire company for help, deciding it was her only salvation.

First, a ladder was placed against the building, reaching to a second floor window. Then Fireman William Hardy, from No. 3 Station, escorted the trapped secretary to the pavement.

Her comment on being freed was:

"I'm glad I didn't have to sleep in the bank all night. I'm so grateful."

Miss Gross said she was locked in by mistake.

Albert W. Sneedon, director of law enforcement in the State Department of Public Instruction, said the arrests yesterday mark the beginning of a campaign to rid the county of "hex" and "powwow" doctors and practitioners of "witchcraft."

MATE DRAGGED HER BY HEELS, WIFE CHARGES

Mrs. John Flippen Asks Divorce in Cruelty Plea

The Flippens, who are both well known in golf circles, had been out golfing and later went to a party given by friends. Mrs. Flippen said her husband had been drinking, but that this was not unusual. Mrs. Flippen detailed her husband's alleged abuses to Judge James H. Gray and added:

"Once he choked me and threatened to throw me out of the window. Then he choked me, but did not carry out his window threat."

Attorney Thomas M. Marshall, Jr., who represented Mrs. Flippen in the divorce action, which was not contested, told Judge Gray that an effort had been made two weeks ago to effect a reconciliation, but without results.

The Flippens were married December 12, 1919, and have two children, a boy, 9, and a girl, 12. Mrs. D. T. Price, Jr., a witness for Mrs. Flippen, testified she had seen the results of Flippen's abuse.

However, Mrs. Price said she never saw Flippen abuse his wife. She told the court that Mrs. Flippen is an even-tempered woman and was a good wife. Mrs. Flippen dismissed the servants when the depression started and did her own work, except the laundry, she told the court. The Flippens separated August of last year.

FAMILY RELIEF WORK SHIFTED TO COUNTY

Lack of Cash Forces Welfare Unit to Drop Burden

Responsibility for all except 2,500 of the 60,000 families now receiving relief and aid from the Family Society will be transferred to the County Relief Board October 1, according to an announcement today by F. C. Irish, president of the society. He cites lack of funds as the reason for the action.

Theoretically, Irish states, the County Board will furnish only relief while the Family Society continues to care for all "problem" cases. Actually, he reports, Family Society workers are caring for 15,000 such families but only the neediest and most distressed families are receiving even scant attention.

Reviewing the situation, Wilbur F. Maxwell, director of the Welfare Fund, said:

"We have attempted for two years to operate on a deflated budget while demands for help rose beyond any hope of adequately meeting them. We are ending the year with a deficit and in the Family Society's need we are powerless to move. We can only hope for an understanding of the need by the public and to wait for a realignment of services and funds accordingly."

He points out that the Welfare Fund was also forced to deny the Children's Service Bureau any additional funds two months ago, and that the bureau was compelled to shut down on all new applications.

'OTHER WOMAN' IN TUB DEATH UNDER FIRE

Court Rebukes Defense As Lamson's Fate Nears Jury

SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Prosecution theories that David A. Lamson killed his wife because of marital unhappiness and because there was "another woman," still were under the fire of defense oratory today at the trial of the young Stanford University press executive on murder charges.

The state's case, its witnesses and its hypotheses of the May 30 tragedy on the Stanford University campus, ridiculed by Maurice Rankin, associate defense attorney, still must face the attack of E. M. Rea, chief of Lamson's forces.

Rea yesterday derided the state's contention that Mrs. Sara Kelley, Sacramento divorcee, was a factor in the alleged unhappiness assigned by prosecutors as a motive.

The attorney contended the prosecution had not proved Mrs. Lamson had been murdered. He cited the defense contention Mrs. Lamson might have been killed by an accidental fall in the bathtub.

CASE DUE JURY SOON

Whether the case would go to the jury today or Saturday was problematical.

An argument in court welled up into a tempest today and before it subsided Rea had been rebuked by the court and had apologized.

The clash occurred when Rea attacked Deputy District Attorney John P. Fitzgerald for his many references in a previous address to the jury about the intention of the prosecution to be "fair."

Rea turned to the jurors:

"You have been locked up for three weeks and in constant touch with the Sheriff's office, and favors may have been given—"

There was a prosecution objection and Judge Syre said:

"In other words, Mr. Rea, you are rebelling against the order of the court."

Rea said:

"I didn't mean it that way. If I did, I withdraw it."

The judge replied:

"I think you had better do so, Mr. Rea."

Rea's address jabbed mockingly at the prosecution contention that Lamson killed his wife with an iron pipe taken later from a bonfire in the backyard of the home, and that the motive was unhappiness occasioned by Lamson's visits to Mrs. Kelley in Sacramento.

STATE POLICE GUARD MINE PICKETS

them marching to Royal and Allison mines of W. J. Rainey, Inc., where the local unions previously had voted to remain at work.

Met by the pickets this morning, another vote was taken, however, and both locals agreed to observe the holiday. The two mines employ about 1,500 men.

None of the Frick mines picketed this morning attempted to work. Officials explained they were not scheduled for operation. It is reliably understood, however, that orders were sent out from company headquarters at Scottdale about 1:00 o'clock this morning to close the mines.

Before the arrival of state police last night the countryside lay locked in a state of terror. Gunfire broke the peaceful stillness of a murky night in the vicinity of Smock where is located the Frick-owned Colonial No. 1, and at Edenborn, another Frick mine in the vicinity of Gates, scene of Gates, scene of yesterday's rioting. Nobody was hurt.

EDENBORN GUARDED

As daybreak streaked over the hills and the picket lines formed in the Edenborn section, there were rumors that an attempt would be made to bring in armed strike-breakers under company deputies' riot guns.

Crowds began gathering on a hill overlooking the Edenborn shaft and a half-dozen deputies appeared among them with pistols and clubs.

The worried but determined pickets held their ground in the public highway, expecting any moment an invasion towards the shaft of groups of workers who began gathering with their dinner buckets.

Within a few minutes several carloads of state police put in an appearance. Swinging riot clubs, they ranged themselves along the highway between the pickets and the shaft.

A Negro worker, bolder than his fellows, came down off the company hill towards the pickets. Several union men met him with a request to join them on the picket line or "go back home." A dozen of the man's friends hurried to his side, state police surrounded the group while one of them pushed his way to the center of the group.

The Negro said he wanted to get his automobile which he had left at the tipple yesterday. The troopers ordered his friends back and what might have developed into a serious riot gave the pickets a laugh as they watched the non-union men trudge back up the hill.

MINES CLOSED

Two mines of the Pleasant Valley Mining Company, Oliver Nos. 2 and 3, were shut down when pickets from the closed Jamison mine met the men on their way to work. Members of the Oliver mine had voted to continue work, but were told:

"If you feel like going to work, try and get through."

They decided to observe the "holiday."

The Governor countermanded the order to the soldiers last night following a telephone conversation with Raushenbush, who made a survey of conditions earlier in the day.

Sheriff Harry E. Hackney, announcing a "hands off" policy yesterday, placed all responsibility in the present crisis on the Governor's shoulders. He declared:

"In the face of the present situation I shall do everything in my power and in accordance with my oath of office to uphold the best interests of the county."

United Mine Workers' organizers were interested observers in the present "holiday" observance, but were taking no active part in it. William Feeney, president of District No. 4, still is in Washington with other leaders attending the code conferences.

RYAN'S DENIAL

Several local meetings were held yesterday and last night, the chief topic for consideration being to "take a holiday or not." Martin Ryan, so-called insurgent leader accredited with having called the present walkout, addressed a gathering of several hundred union men at Uniontown. He took occasion to deny false rumors he said were being circulated about him and declared:

"Anybody who says I am trying to form another union or disrupt the United Mine Workers is a liar and I'm here to prove it."

Two of the score injured in yesterday's rioting were reported in critical condition at the Uniontown Hospital today. They are Boyd Cutright, company deputy, whose arm was amputated as the result of a shotgun wound, and Louis Kromer, picket, suffering from gunshot wounds in both legs.

A blood transfusion was given Cutright yesterday and it was expected that a similar operation would have to be performed on Kromer today.

Informations, it was understood, would be filed against several deputies and probably a Frick mine official today by Attorney Anthony Cavalcante, representing several of the pickets wounded in yesterday's melee. Cavalcante said the charges would consist of inciting to riot and felonious assault.

Sheriff Hackney still was investigating the shooting. State officials also were completing separate probe.

Strike Over Code Fight Shuts Plant

MONACA, Pa., Sept. 15.—Four hundred employes of the United States Sanitary Manufacturing Company were idle today, 21 enamelers having gone on strike. The strike came, according to reports, of several weeks' dispute over the signing of the NRA code.

WIVES SHARE PICKET LINE PERILS

Flying Bullets Hold No Terror for Mine Amazons

By MARGARET GARRAHAN
International News Service.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 15.—Hopeless eyes lighted with the fire of battle and despondent bodies pitched to frenzied activity, miners' wives and sweethearts today stood side by side with "their men" in the picket lines in Fayette County coal fields.

Despite striking miners' protests—"we want them to stay at home"—the women advanced to their posts in defiance. Most of them are young—the older ones have too many children to care for—and they greet the intruding stranger with sullen silence or tirades of venomous epithets. The sentiment among them seems to be:

"What business is it of yours, anyhow?"

BULLETS DEFIED

Flying bullets hold no terrors for these women of the coal fields—they look danger squarely in the eye without a shiver. They're used to dragging their men, blood-stained and mangled, from any sort of fray or disaster...without a tear.

Hard faces, capable hands, husky, lithe bodies—they're ready for action at any moment, fearless and heartless. As women have done from time immemorial, they'll give and take equally with their men.

And then there are the children, from one or two to 14 or more in a family, to look after... and the places they call "home"—often bleak, two-story frame dwellings with bare walls and only a few sticks of furniture.

Both are what the miners call "company-owned" dwellings, built in innumerable rows as though they were poured from molds.

Surprise struck me almost as a blow when I entered the first. Somehow one doesn't expect to see modern, up-to-date mohair furniture and pictures and rugs—and well-dressed women—in the coal fields . . . but there they were.

Seven children, ranging from 7 to 21 years of age; their mother, quiet and retiring; their father, a sturdy, well-groomed German, in an urban atmosphere.

Surely, I thought, I couldn't have been entirely wrong in my visualization of an average miner's home. Surely there was something to this talk of squalor and misery.

Life in Coke Town Reflects Odd Contrasts

So I decided to look further. And I found it! Next door!

A hovel with bare walls . . . a spray of flowers and dreary, imitation lace curtains—a woman's pitiful attempt to make a home of four bleak walls . . . bits of linoleum here and there where the floor was worn. Only a table and a couple of chairs in the dining room and only a tossed, unmade bed in each bedroom.

I started to talk to the mother, but—

"She can't speak good American."

This from a burly son who had served in the picket lines that day and had seen his fellow-strikers mowed down by sprays of lead.

I felt sorry for her—a big, heavy woman with hopeless eyes. Her dress was soiled and spoke of greasy domestic chores—and her big, spreading feet were bare.

Home next door . . . and hovel here.

But home or hovel, both are looking to Washington—to the "big stick"—for succor, although their hopes are now sprinkled with a dash of uncertainty—they're looking to President Roosevelt and his NRA.

Bewildered, resentful over the delay in reaching an agreement on the coal code, they'll tell you:

"We don't know which way to turn."

Johnson Promises Code On Coal by Tonight

sylvania's strike area, President Roosevelt last night gave the operators just the 24 hours they requested to wind up negotiations.

The President indicated there would be no extension of time. The operators renewed their conferences near midnight, immediately after the White House meeting.

The thousands of miners in Pennsylvania's bituminous coal "holiday" walked out in protest to delays which have held up expected pay increases. Mr. Roosevelt, through the code, wanted to stop the strike by removing its cause.

ROOSEVELT'S STATEMENT

After the conference attended by his own industrial aides and spokesmen for the operators and miners, the President said in a statement:

"I have definitely outlined tonight the urgent reasons for immediate agreement on a coal code.

"Without exception the operators present representing the major coal-producing areas and representatives of the United Mine Workers of America have given me their assurance that the code in its present form is, for the large part, acceptable and that in all human probability this code can be negotiated to a conclusion within the next 24 hours—in other words, by Friday night.

"Furthermore, the wage agreements between the operators and the United Mine Workers are so close to being concluded that the same 24-hour period should bring them also to a successful end.

"In view of these assurances, I am awaiting the signatures to the code and the agreements."

JOHNSON ATTENDS

Secretary Ickes, Attorney General Cummings and Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chieftain, attended the White House meeting.

For another time in many weeks the bituminous coal problem eclipsed other NRA business, though a number of other codes were on their way to completion.

Operators who talked with the President were almost unanimously of the opinion there would be little trouble in reaching an agreement tonight. Mr. Roosevelt was represented as employing an insistent rather than a "whip-cracking" attitude. The operator said:

"It all was like a college pep meeting."

Details of the code under consideration were not discussed at the White House, but several changes from the previous administration draft have been suggested by NRA officials.

They proposed a straight 40-hour maximum work week instead of the 36-hour average originally included. Tonnage rather than number of operators was suggested as the basis of membership on the National Bituminous Coal Board and in marketing agencies.

STATE POLICE IN STRIKE ZONE

HARRISBURG, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—State police moved into the strike-torn soft coal fields of Fayette County today, where 16 men were shot and many others beaten in the latest disorders, instead of a much larger force of national guardsmen originally ordered out by Gov. Pinchot.

Orders which would have sent 350 guardsmen of the 112th Infantry to the scene and created a state of virtual martial law were canceled last night by the Governor.

The guardsmen had been entrained at Erie, awaiting instructions to move and the 110th Motor Transport Company of York mobilized when the change of plans was announced. The troops have been sent back to their homes.

When trouble flared in Fayette County earlier this summer, Gov. Pinchot sent the same National Guard units there because Sheriff Harry E. Hackney refused to step down and let the state police take control of the situation.

In the present emergency, however, Hackney said that as far as actual policing of the county is concerned, he has adopted a "hands off" policy.

Somerset Miners Join in 'Holiday'

SOMERSET, Pa., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—The miners' "holiday" movement, which has caused more than 30,000 men to leave the soft coal pits of Western Pennsylvania, today had spread into Somerset County.

Approximately 375 men walked out of the Vulcan Smithing Coal Company mine near Friedens, demanding recognition of the United Mine Workers of America and prompt adoption of a coal code by operators.

Uniontown Woman Complains to P. S. C.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ethel Cooke, Uniontown, filed with the Public Service Commission today a complaint demanding that the West Penn Power Company restore electrical service to her home.

MINE PICKETING ORDERLY HERE

With virtually all mines closed in Allegheny County, the office of Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar reported today that no trouble had occurred. Deputies had been assigned to several pits for patrol duty, it was said.

The state police sub-station at Washington, Pa., said all was quiet in Washington County. Westmoreland County, where additional mines are down, reported no outbreaks.

Between 1,200 and 1,500 miners quit today in Westmoreland County, in addition to those already out. They refused to enter workings of the Jamison Coal and Coke Company at Hannastown, Forbes Road, Crabtree and Jamison No. 20 at Pleasant Unity; the Crows Nest mine of the Keystone Coal and Coke Company and the mine of the Humphreys Coal and Coke Company.

RETAIL CODE FINAL DRAFT READY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—A finally revised draft of the basic retail trade code, believed by officials to afford protection both to the consumer and the small merchant, was to go today to Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, for his analysis before submission to President Roosevelt.

The inter-departmental price committee, recently named to investigate the effect of the NRA upon prices, he said, would not concentrate on the question of price control, which is the paramount issue in the retail compact.

This code establishes 10 per cent above wholesale cost as the minimum price at which a retailer may sell goods, and also has a 21 per cent discount limit on trade marked drugs and toilet articles whose retail price is fixed by the manufacturer.

An idea under consideration at the NRA today was that a non-governmental board of impartial, prominent citizens be appointed to observe operations of the price control provisions and determine whether the new experiment is in the public interest. As now drawn, the code contains no provision for limiting operation of price control to a trial.

As seen by some officials, the minimum price limit actually result in lower average prices to the consumer than the present, unregulated system.

The price control would eliminate the practice of many chain and cut rate establishments of advertising "loss leader" items, which are a few selected, well known articles sold at actual loss to attract customers into the store to purchase other goods sold at a considerable profit.

MELLON 'TRUST' HIT IN CODE HEARINGS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Paths of the Roosevelt administration and former Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon may cross in a struggle now being waged in the NRA by independent manufacturers to curb the Mellon-controlled Aluminum Company of America.

Declaring that the giant company is a monopoly, which is frowned upon by the recovery law, independents are seeking a code of fair competition which will enable them to extend their business operations.

A concession offered by the company to the independents was rejected today, with the result that the struggle may be carried through to President Roosevelt.

Independents, who say that the Aluminum Company controls 100 per cent of the production of ingots, charge that the giant corporation uses this monopoly to prevent them from extending their business in producing fabricated materials.

They demanded a provision in the code prohibiting the Aluminum company from selling ingots to its subsidiaries cheaper than it sells to the independents.

President Arthur Davis, of the Aluminum company, submitted to Deputy Administrator P. C. Kemp a proposal designed to meet the objections of independents.

It contained a prohibition against selling below cost, but contained exceptions when the material was to be devoted to new uses for aluminum, to meet foreign competition, because of patent control or because of peculiar market conditions.

The independents, who are represented by Oswald Schutte, insist that this condition will not meet the situation.

Pinchot Scores G. O. P. Neglect Of Labor Rights

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—While lauding organized labor "for the progress it has been making under the new deal," Governor Pinchot yesterday bitterly denounced Republican organization leaders and policies in Pennsylvania, urging a union of farmers and workers "to prevent exploitation."

But in no uncertain terms, he urged the workers to refrain from violence in settling labor disputes, and appealed for industrial peace before a meeting of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

Wild applause came after he announced that he ordered the Second Battalion, 112th Infantry, National Guard, to mobilize for possible service in the strike zone, and added:

"It is a sign of the new day when the National Guard has been called out. Not to help deputy sheriffs club strikers into obedience, but to protect the rights of strikers guaranteed to them by the constitutions of Pennsylvania and the United States."

MINER, BUTCHER CLASH, 1 SHOT

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 15.—The only mine trouble reported in Westmoreland County today was a two-man affray between a Frick company store meat cutter and a miner. The meat cutter, Carl Stohl, 30, employed at the Frick mine at Standard, under the influence of liquor, according to police, attempted to stop Joe Beranak from entering the Frick mine at Morewood.

After an argument, Beranak, police said, got a gun and fired once, a bullet piercing Stohl's leg.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Widespread operations of what police termed a forgery clique that mulcted banks of more than $250,000 in recent months were disclosed with the arrest of seven men, including five New Yorkers.

Rounding up the suspects last night, police said forged checks totaling $267,172 had been passed through Pennsylvania banks by the clique in the last four or five months.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Ely Culbertson disclosed today that the total net income of himself and wife from contract bridge activities in less than four years had been $200,000.

He was financially ruined by the Russian revolution before contract began to develop.

As aftermath of the defeat this summer of two British teams by a Culbertson quartet, some British newspapers have criticized him as a multi-millionaire, giving figures. Asked if these figures were correct, he offered to show his books. Stressing that much had gone from the $200,000, he said:

"I'm only like a prosperous doctor or lawyer in a city of 100,000."

SLEEP EPIDEMIC DANGER PAST

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—A belief that "we have broken the back" of the sleeping sickness epidemic was expressed today by Dr. Joseph F. Bredeck, St. Louis health commissioner.

The health commissioner predicted the epidemic would taper off much more slowly than it spread, probably requiring twice as long to end as it did to reach its peak.

'SPIKE' CALLS MOTHER TO AID

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Edward "Spike" O'Donnell, whose plans for leading his own defense in vagrancy court were nipped by Judge Frank Padden, pinned hopes for an acquittal today on the testimony of his aged mother.

O'Donnell, the survivor of 10 years of beer warfare on the South Side, is the seventh to go on trial in the campaign to imprison known hoodlums with criminal reputations.

The oratorical Spike promised that his mother will take the witness stand and "knock the jurors cold" with a recital of her son's virtues as a law-abiding citizen. He said:

"I'm going to put my old mother on the stand. She's the mother of 12 children, men, and she's as sweet as that picture—what's the guy's name? Bugler? Fiddler? Or is it Whistler?"

REPEAL PARADE HAS 7-MILLION VOTE LEAD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—The movement for repeal which has swept unchecked across 29 states was shown today by an unofficial tabulation to have piled up a total popular vote of nearly 3 to 1 for the death of constitutional prohibition—a result now officially possible on December 5.

By adding in the latest tallies available from the last five states to hold elections, the popular ballot score stood:

Against repeal—3,578,955.

With only seven more states needed to signal the passing of the amendment, at least 10 more state votes are assured by November 7.

PENNSYLVANIA VOTE

Should all follow the wet trend, the focus would turn to the three states which have arranged ratifying conventions on December 5—Ohio, Pennsylvania and Utah.

The last of these to act officially, provided the trend continues unbroken, would officially usher out the Eighteenth Amendment and open the door to legal whiskies, wines and all the rest.

Should one or more of these states vote against the Twenty-first, or repealing, amendment, conventions have been set for December 6, by Maine and North Carolina. The Kentucky convention meets on December 15.

ENFORCEMENT AT STANDSTILL

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Enforcement of the prohibition law virtually has ceased.

Officials said today that the economy program which has brought a sharp reduction in personnel was responsible for the let-up in federal activities.

However, the continuing parade of states moving by repeal into the wet column was held by others to be the chief reason for the slowing down of the drive against offenders.

In some states persons arrested for violation of the prohibition laws have been released on their personal bond on the grounds that they cannot be brought to trial before the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. In other states where beer has not been legalized by the Legislature municipal governments are licensing its sale.

U. S. MAY ORDER WHISKY IMPORT

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Authorization for the importation of a large quantity of foreign whisky may be given by the Treasury within the next 10 days.

Dr. James M. Doran, chief of the Industrial Alcohol Bureau, disclosed that strong pressure is being brought to bear to let down the bars on imports.

Rapidly increasing prices and consumption of medicinal spirits was held to justify such a step. Under the law where domestic stocks are insufficient to meet the demand, the Treasury may authorize imports.

FREIGHT-RIDING BOY HUNTED

But when he failed to return home Wednesday night, an investigation revealed he and another youth had started out, by freight, for California.

Jacob Ryade, the father, has asked police to locate his son.

ROCKEFELLER CITY ARTIST IN NEW DISPUTE

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—A new dispute arose today over mural paintings in Rockefeller Center.

Frank Brangwyn, noted English artist, said in England yesterday that he was disturbed over a request to leave Christ out of a panel depicting the Sermon on the Mount.

John R. Todd, president of a concern constructing the buildings, said:

"There was no thought of portraying the Sermon on the Mount without Christ."

He said that it had been "mutually decided" that instead of an actual figure of Christ "a great light shining on the mount signifying The Presence in the background" would be more appropriate.

ABANDONED CAR HOLDUP CLUE

International News Service.

FARRELL, Pa., Sept. 15.—Police today scrutinized tape and paper found in an abandoned automobile at New Middletown, O., basing on these meagre clues their hopes of solving the $20,000 holdup of the S. J. Gully bank last Wednesday.

The tape and paper were identified as wrappings on $8,000 in currency, part of the loot obtained by seven armed men who participated in the holdup.

RADIO CAMPAIGN MAPPED BY DEALERS

Over 1,500 local members of the Radio Manufacturers Association of America met last night in the William Penn Hotel as the first step in a national campaign by which they plan to make the country actively radio conscious.

All phases of radio work, both from the dealers' and customers' viewpoints, were discussed with the view of bettering the service. Earl Whitehorne, vice president of the Manufacturers Association of America, the chief speaker on the program, urged increased sales activity on the part of the dealers from the Western Pennsylvania jobbers' territory who were present. The radio, he said, is a vital factor in the life of the country.

Prior to his talk to the dealers, Wr. Whitehorne addressed a group of salesman, explaining the purpose of the movement.

NATIONAL CAMPAIGN

Mayor oJhn S. Herron, in his speech of welcome, also stressed the importance of radio in present day civic and social life, citing examples of how in Pittsburgh and other large cities it was of particular use to the police.

Due to the national campaign, Pittsburgh dealers plan to omit the Radio Show this year and concentrate on publicity for Radio Progress Week, scheduled for October 2-7, the culmination of the movement begun last night.

Radio Week will be opened by Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of the radio, at the Century of Progress grounds. National networks will feature programs designed to especially hold the interest of the public.

AMONG THE BACKERS

Pittsburgh companies who sponsored the meeting last night were the Allied Electric Supply Company, Anchor Lite Appliance Company, Brown-Dorrance Electric Company, Cameradio Company, Doubleday-Hill Electric Company, Esenbe Company, Duquesne Light Company, General Electric Supply Company, Graybar Electric Company, Hamburg Brothers, Ludwig-Hommel & Co., Houston-Star Company, Electric League of Pittsburgh, Iron City Electric Company, Logan-Gregg Hardware Company, Pittsburgh Auto Equipment Company, C. R. Rogers Company, Sampson Distributing Company, Superior Auto Accessories Company and the West Penn Power Company.

NURSE-SLAYER HELD FOR TRIAL

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Wilhelmina Weltz, 43-year-old nurse, was held to answer to the Superior Court yesterday for the slaying of Francis J. Morgan Grace, member of the San Francisco shipping family.

At the close of her preliminary examination in police court, she was ordered held without bail.

Miss Weltz, silent and wooden of expression, came into court with her brother and sister, William and Meta Weltz of Connellsville, Pa., who arrived by air yesterday.

A murder information will be filed in Superior Court within a few days.

Helene Roberts, 29-year-old blonde nurse who was attending the retired shipping man when Miss Weltz shot him on the lawn of his home last Saturday, repeated her story of the slaying.

The motive still remains a mystery. Miss Weltz has repeated over and over she "would never tell."

LOUD OVATIONS GREET HERRON, M'NAIR AT RALLIES

OAKLAND MEET FOR MAYOR OVERFLOWS

With a mass meeting which crowded Syria Mosque, spilled out into Bigelow boulevard, and flowed through Oakland, the Regular Republican organization last night climaxed its campaign on behalf of Mayor John S. Herron, its councilmanic slate, and candidates for county offices.

Traffic in the Oakland center was tied up by the numberless automobile parades of regulars which converged on the Mosque from all parts of the city. Hundreds of Herron followers, finding it impossible to get parking space in the vicinity of the meeting, continued their parades about adjacent streets and added a spectacular touch to the evening with honking horns and red flares carried by passengers.

DIN GREETS REMARKS

Noisemaking devices furnished to the audience came into frequent use, and there was a din as every speaker drove home what the enthusiasts regarded as telling points, either against the opposition or in favor of indorsed candidates.

The stage was crowded with well known men and women, and a concerted effort was made to convince the soldier vote that Herron was their friend, an effort designed to counteract the indorsement given Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell by the United American Veterans' Association.

Big gun in this attack was Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, wartime commander of the 80th Division, who said he was casting the first vote of his life next Tuesday, and would cast it for the Mayor. Col. Samuel D. Foster and Capt. Robert S. Cain, county treasurer, also urged soldiers to vote for the Mayor.

PARK PRAISES POLICE

District Attorney Andrew T. Park, indorsing the judicial candidacy of Judge Harry H. Rowand, also said that under Herron there was efficiency in the Pittsburgh police force.

Mayor Herron, departing from a prepared speech, made the most informal address of the evening, and it was probably his best address of the whole campaign. He had no word of criticism for opponents, but dwelt entirely on his own record as councilman and mayor.

The Mayor was praised by Dr. Samuel Harden Church, of Carnegie Institute, as a man who would be subservient to no one and friendly to all.

Former Senator John S. Weller presided. One of the biggest ovations was accorded Senator James J. Coyne when he came on the stage.

She'll Pay

HELEN KANE

Miss Kane, the stage and screen actress, who'll pay $32,500 to the bankrupt Bond Dress Company, New York, and relinquish her claim for $40,000 as a creditor of the company. The $40,000 was given her by Murray Posner, the president. Defending a suit for its return, she maintained it was in payment of a debt.

DEMOCRAT HITS AT TAX-FREE UTILITIES

Amid the noisy enthusiasm of a crowd packing North Side Carnegie Hall, and overflowing by several hundred into Ohio street, William N. McNair, candidate for Democratic mayoralty nomination, last night declared that if elected he would erase utility exemptions from the city tax books.

Modernization of the street car system with a 5-cent fare, and extension of the graded tax law to school taxes were also advocated by McNair.

Preceded by a series of parades with torch lights and bands, the rally was the largest of Democratic pre-primary meetings.

Rising to cheer as McNair took the stand, the crowd frequently interrupted his speech with bursts of applause. McNair said:

"I know of no law since 1840 which says anything about the utilities not paying taxes. Why don't they pay? Because the Board of Assessors is a bunch of ward heelers."

Discussing the operation of the graded tax law, McNair said its extension would relieve the burden on the small home owner, and place it on large absentee-owner estates, such as the Schenley's.

Of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, he said:

"If the trolley trust will not give rapid transit at a reasonable figure, then the responsibility becomes one for the municipality, just as that for improving highways for the convenience of automobile owners."

He suggested the introduction of trackless trolley buses.

Harvey O'Connor, author of "Mellon's Millions," was noted mingling for a brief time with Democratic luminaries on the platform. The Democratic councilmanic candidates were there in force, each speaking a few words. Congressman J. Twing Brooks and Prof. Marion K. McKay also spoke. C. D. Scully was chairman.

Demands McGregor Reply to Charges

In the name of the taxpayers of Allegheny County, Dr. Vincent L. Marino, candidate for Coroner, called on Coroner W. J. McGregor last night to answer allegations of misconduct of his office. At West Elizabeth School, Marino said:

"These charges are of a serious nature and demand an open, straightforward reply."

Garland Indorses McKnight Candidacy

Councilman Robert Garland, in a letter to Hugh F. McKnight, today indorsed McKnight's councilmanic candidacy.

Mackrell Sees Race Between Him and Herron

Joseph N. Mackrell, candidate for Republican mayoralty nomination, stated last night the contest for that nomination was solely between Mayor John S. Herron and himself.

Speaking at Gladstone, Allen and Lane schools, and St. John's Hall, Mackrell said:

"The prospects of Councilman P. J. McArdle, Republican mayoralty candidate, are hopeless.

"He is the pawn of the Coyne machine, and it is not important whether he knows it or not. He is the left angle of the triangle the machine has set up to split the vote of its opponents.

"A vote for McArdle is a vote for Coyne."

Asserting the Herron forces were desperately trying to prevent his election by every legal or illegal means, and that they would attempt to keep the registration commissioners from canceling illegal registrations, Mackrell said he could offer no better proof that no political strings attached to his candidacy.

Mackrell and other candidates on his ticket will speak tonight in East Street School, Rostock and East streets, Twenty-third Ward.

MAYOR ACCUSED BY VET LEADER

Mayor John S. Herron is trying by coercion to obtain a veterans' indorsement, Max Henley, chairman of the United American Veterans' Association, charged in a speech at Frick Training School last night. He said:

"At a free beer party in Orpheus Hall, East Liberty, Mayor Herron tried to blackjack the few veterans who are city employes into giving him a left-handed indorsement."

Henley said the full force of the Veterans' Association, which he set at nearly 20,000, was behind the mayoralty candidacy of Joseph N. Mackrell. He pledged the activity of the veterans in safeguarding an honest election.

The United American Veterans' Association will hold meetings today at Morse School, South Twenty-fifth and Sarah streets; Boggs Avenue School, Boggs avenue and Sutherland street, and Elroy School, 3133 Elroy avenue.

Cochrane Pledges Efficient Regime

INDEPENDENTS HINDERED, SAYS M'ARDLE

Every possible obstruction is being placed against independent voters at the County Treasurer's office, P. J. McArdle, Independent Republican candidate for Mayor, declared in an address last night.

Calling the County Treasurer's office controlled, McArdle pointed to it as typical of the present government. He said:

"Under the present administration, Pittsburgh cannot go forward into an era of prosperity."

He urged voters to unite behind him to destroy gang rule.

The Independent Republican campaign will be climaxed tonight with a mass meeting at 8:15 at Carnegie Music Hall, Oakland.

McArdle, the councilmanic candidates on his ticket, and Miss Hannah J. Patterson, vice chairman of the Citizens' League, which has indorsed McArdle and the candidates associated with him, will speak.

Two Speeches Listed By Haggerty Tonight

Assistant District Attorney John F. Haggerty, candidate for Common Pleas Court, will speak tonight at the Independent Republican meeting in Sturgeon, and Hungarian Hall, East Pittsburgh.

HENRY ATTACKS 'MACHINE' BOSSES

Declaring that the Republican machine controlled by Senator James J. Coyne, and the Democratic machine headed by David L. Lawrence and Joseph F. Guffey combined to render the Registration Commission powerless to purge the voters' list of phantoms, John M. Henry, Democratic candidate for Mayor, today declared the principal issue in the campaign is clean elections.

Henry charges that he and Thomas A. Joyce were removed from the Registration Commission at the demand of the two machines.

LETTER TO PINCHOT

Henry said he wrote to Gov. Pinchot as follows:

"James J. Coyne, David L. Lawrence and Joseph F. Guffey are three musketeers engaged in a quest for political plunder. Shoulder-to-shoulder they fought in the election of 1931, and hand-in-hand they stood around and watched the unusual election which took place in the Coyne Senatorial district in 1932. They are leagued together in the coming Mayoralty election. I am truly sorry that you have been taken for a ride by these musketeers."

Henry flayed the action of the two Democratic registration commissioners who voted against striking from the list the names of four Negroes listed as residents in a printing shop at 2124 Center avenue, where Henry said there is not even a bed to sleep on.

RECALLS $6 CHECK

One of the Negroes involved in this incident, Henry reveals, is the man who received the $6 check from M. L. Benedum's butler several weeks ago. Another, he declares, is a field worker for Robert Vann, Negro editor, recently appointed as Special Assistant Attorney General through the Guffey-Lawrence-Benedum influence.

Henry will speak tonight in Garrick High School at 8 o'clock, and Frick Teachers' Training School, Fifth avenue and Thackery streets, at 9 o'clock.

"Were the Lord to give me the privilege of selecting a blood-brother, I would unhesitatingly choose Benjamin Lencher—that's how I personally feel about him."

Lencher has been indorsed by the United Veterans' Association of Swissvale and the Independent Voters' League of Coraopolis. He will speak today in Riverview Park, Coraopolis High School, 71 Chatham street, and Chalfant Borough Hall, Chalfant.

M'NAIR TO ASK P. S. C. HEARING

William N. McNair, Democratic candidate for Mayor, will file with the Public Service Commission a formal application for a hearing to protest the agreement extension between the City of Pittsburgh and the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

The extension, approved by the city last February, would permit existence of the present city-railways contract until February 1, 1936.

Explaining that Chairman of the Commission C. Jay Goodnough had written that the Commission likely would grant a hearing if formal application was made by McNair, the Democratic candidate said:

"I will file it as an evidence of good faith in stating that I will do everything in my power to prevent the utilities' continued gouging of the people."

McNair said the sudden request for sanction of the contract was a strategic move to tie up the Democratic party in the event it wins in November.

Lindsay Speaks at Carnegie Music Hall

Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, candidate for Common Pleas Court, will speak in Carnegie Music Hall, Forbes street, and Polish Lyceum, 3000 Brereton avenue, tonight.

MAGEE FAVORS GRADED TAX EXTENSION

Retention of the graded tax law and its extension to school taxes and "perhaps the county," was favored by former Mayor William A. Magee, candidate for Council, in a discussion of municipal taxes last night.

Available city sites with transportation facilities have been completely built up since the graded tax was passed in 1913, Magee said. He expressed a belief it had given Pittsburgh a competitive advantage. Magee advocated concessions on the graded tax principle to attract capital to a housing program.

Charges English, Herron Hurt Borrowing Power

Louis Wechsler, councilmanic candidate, attacked Council for unbusiness-like handling of city finances in an address at Gladstone School, last night.

W. Y. English and John S. Herron have reduced the borrowing power of Council to almost nothing, he charged.

Blames Electorate For Government Ills

A law that would penalize any person failing to exercise the right of suffrage was advocated by Dr. H. V. Walls, candidate for Council, in an address at Langley High School last night. Walls blamed the electorate as a contributing cause in the "mismanagement" of local government.

Sees Saving in City Garbage Disposal System

The city is losing hundreds of thousands of dollars annually which could be saved by municipal rubbish and garbage disposal, William H. McClafferty, candidate for Council, declared last night in an address in Langley High School.

McClafferty will speak tonight at a meeting of the Bloomfield League of Italian Voters at Liberty avenue and Pearl street.

Emphasizes Need For Honest Officials

The present system of economic production has outworn its usefulness, David Gilchrist, councilmanic candidate, declared in a statement today.

The "new deal" will become an insipid platitude unless forward-looking and honest officials are elected, he said.

Clark Gets Backing Of Colored Women

The Congress of Colored Women of Western Pennsylvania has indorsed the candidacy of former Director of Public Safety James M. Clark for Council.

Grocers Support Wolff and Huston

The Retail Grocers' Association has indorsed the councilmanic candidacies of Charles Wolff and John M. Huston.

BOARD PRAISES CANDIDATE

The "good sportsmanship" of Attorney A. Marshall Thompson, Democratic candidate for Judge of Common Pleas Court, was praised by the County Commissioners today, after Attorney Thompson had complained to them that a wrong address appeared under his name on the ballots.

Thompson's home is in McCandless Township, but on the ballot his address is given as Richland Township.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern said:

"If Mr. Thompson had insisted that we reprint the ballots it would have cost us $20,000. He is willing that no change be made as long as we make a public statement calling attention to the error. I am glad to make this statement and I think Attorney Thompson is showing real sportsmanship."

MEETINGS SET FOR M'NAIR

William N. McNair, Democratic mayoralty aspirant, and candidates on his ticket, will speak tonight in Morningside School, Jancey street; St. Michael's auditorium, Pius street, and Friendship School, Friendship avenue.

Candidates will also appear at the following Democratic meetings:

A.; Frick Training School, Fifth avenue and Boquet street; Schaeffer School, Straithmore avenue; 2409 Sawmill Run boulevard; Mifflin School, Lincoln place; Hazelwood School, Second avenue; Community Hall, Rochester road, Ross Township; McKinley Club, Miller street, Rankin; 6411 Frankstown avenue, Swissvale headquarters, 7436 Washington street, Swissvale; Eagles Hall, Whitaker; Davis School, Island avenue extension, Stowe Township; Democratic headquarters, Grant avenue, Duquesne; Lemington School, Penn-Lincoln Hotel, Wilkinsburg; Chartiers School.

A Democratic club will be organized at a meeting in the Mary J. Cowley School, North Side.

LAUDS RECORD OF SCHRAMM

Speaking before 150 persons at a "juvenile court forum" in Kaufmann's dining room yesterday, Mrs. John L. Sloan, chairman of the Gumbert School for Delinquent Girls, declared Gustav L. Schramm's whole experience has been directed toward the Juvenile Court, in which he is seeking the judgeship.

She cited his work with the Gumbert School and Legal Aid Society. The Rev. Carl A. Voss and Dr. M. C. Elmer, of the University of Pittsburgh, also spoke in Schramm's behalf.

Schramm will speak this afternoon before the Seventh Ward Community Club and the Colored Voters' League of Swissvale, and tonight at a Democratic meeting, Saw Mill Run boulevard.

Elect Mrs. McBride, Mrs. Lawrence Urges

Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, Independent Republican and a member of the Juvenile Court Detention Home, issued a statement today urging the election of Mrs. Lois McBride as judge of Juvenile Court. She said:

"Both as a case worker and later as a supervisor of the Associated Charities, Mrs. McBride handled thousands of cases of the very type with which Juvenile Court must deal.

"She has been unusually successful in determining the real cause of delinquency among young people."

Lane Supported By Vets' Committee

A committee of 100 war veterans supporting the candidacy of Charles G. Lane, Jr., for Juvenile Court was announced by Lane last night. The Swissvale Chapter, United American War Veterans, has indorsed Lane's candidacy.

Connelley Loses Fight Over Misspelled Name

Judge James H. Gray refused to grant an order which would force the county election bureau to change the spelling of City Councilman Clifford B. Connelley's name on ballot and vote machine today, with the explanation:

"There's not one in 10,000 cou'd spell the name correctly anyhow."

He took this position after Assistant City Solicitor Ralph H. Fr[illegible] the petition to [illegible] vote machine was an attempt to block the use of the machines.

Connelley, through Assistant City Solicitor Ben L. Steinberg, demanded the change, asserting it was misspelled Connelly, without the last "e." He declared Frank's statement was made for the newspapers.

Maj. W. T. Rees, head of the Elections Bureau, said 550 vote machines were ready to go out, and that 950 would be used in the primary. He said at this late date change was impossible and that the misspelling would make no difference anyhow.

Frank declared more than a week ago the matter was brought up, and Connelley agreed within two hours to send a letter about the misspelling. If that had been done, Frank said, the change would have been made. But Connelley failed to send the letter.

Program for Juniors At Federation Meet One of Interest

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Although the junior clubwomen of the State Federation will find themselves included in many of the senior convention plans, their own program will be replete with interest, too. For instance, they will join with the seniors in either the bird walk or the garden jaunt on Monday of convention week (October 9) and junior presidents and past presidents are eligible to the dinners, according to their status. Later in the evening, however, there's a junior supper party in the Woman's City Club which is intended more as a get-acquainted affair than anything else.

Juniors, too, may enter Mrs. William Anderson's parliamentary law classes at 8 o'clock each morning, and they will sit in on the general opening on Tuesday, the tenth. At 2 o'clock that afternoon a junior conference will be held, Miss Ruth Baxter, chairman of activities, welcoming the delegates. Col. Morris S. Frank and "Buddy," of "The Seeing Eye," will attend the conference, and there will be district reports and a talk on scouting by Mrs. John A. Frick and one on sight saving by Miss Evelyn Carpenter. At dinner that night Cameron Beck will talk on "Leadership for Tomorrow."

On Wednesday morning the juniors will take the spotlight on the general convention program, using the convention theme, "More Light," with reference to program, officers and members, and as relating the club to the small town and the club to the young business woman. This will be done by Miss Margaret O'Malia, Miss Ann Thompson, Mrs. Paul Hess, Mrs. John Philip Backmeier and Miss Elizabeth Hamilton.

Juniors will be present also at the fine arts luncheon to hear Nancy Byrd Turner, but the afternoon has been left free for individual plans. Voting delegates, however, will be permitted to see the Twentieth Century Club's play performance. The Junior Choral is to appear Thursday night.

Seniors from the junior viewpoint, the question of age and its solution, programs, projects and hobbies, finances and junior news in The Clubwoman, are some of the topics to be taken up for discussion at the conference on Thursday morning.

Mrs. Saul Lavine and Mrs. David Denman are listed as speakers for the luncheon, with music by Mrs. Paul Hess. The Wilkinsburg Juniors will give a puppet show in Utility Hall, and at night there's the federation dinner.

SLEEK COLLEGE GIRL EVENING GOWNS REPLACE SUMMER FRILLS

A CHANGING calendar brought in a new evening silhouette for young college girls, a swathed mermaid in type, suave and slim. These new fashions are full of charm and need never be too sophisticated. Slim skirts don't necessarily take away youthfulness. Many of the severe velvet gowns flaunt gay and perky bodice tops.

* * *

* * *

SOME FRAGILE young things, torn between the new silhouette and memories of their own charmingly feminine picture in dainty ruffles this summer, have a happy compromise in the other type of junior evening gown in the sketch. Where once were flaring ruffles, now there are soft little frills, modified and simple. To be sure, the skirt is slim and smooth, but the flattering effect of ruffles on the shoulders has hardly been changed. A color combination like this one—melon domino-crepe trimmed in rich woody brown—is delightful.

* * *

THERE IS some talk of the use of fine wool in the evening, severely plain in treatment perhaps so much so as to be only appropriate for more sophisticated seniors, and not so good for their younger schoolmates.

* * *

TAFFETAS GROW increasingly important. In black, purplish blues, new berry colors, rich reds and woody browns, they're quaint and suggestive of a bygone carriage age.

* * *

SATINS SHARE equal honors with velvet in the popularity lineup. Such devices as demure necklines, touches of white fur about the shoulders, slightly puffed sleeves, petticoat ruffles at the hems and bows in back give an effect that manages to be young and charming.

* * *

BEFORE YOU shop we have a recommendation. Look for the adorable little quilted taffeta evening jackets that have amusingly tiny muffs to match, as well as the odd-looking Chinese mandarin jackets of exquisitely embroidered satin, made to accompany plain little satin dresses.

ARABS STORM KING'S COFFIN

HAIFA, Palestine, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—More than 15,000 Arabs crying "Alah Akbar" (God is great) crashed through police lines and fought madly with one another yesterday to touch the coffin inclosing the body of the late King Feisal, of Iraq, as it passed through this city.

Feisal died last week in Switzerland of a heart attack.

WIFE OF PASTOR HELD IN FIGHT

JONESBORO, Ark., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—The wife of the Rev. Dale S. Crowley is accused in a municipal Court warrant with having assisted her husband in his fist fight last Monday with a member of the Rev. Joe Jeffers faction.

She and Dr. J. W. Cox are charged with having struck John Nelson while he and Crowley were rolling over on the pavement.

CHILD'S TEARS MOVE JUDGE

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—A little girl in a pretty frock, who sobbed out a plea with her arms about the neck of a Supreme Court justice while all the court looked on, had temporarily won her case last night.

Justice William F. Dowling had just prepared an order, giving 8-year-old Mary Louise Brandeau to her grandmother, when a sob caught his attention.

Mary broke away from her mother, Mrs. Earl Andros, and rushed up to the bench. She sobbed, embracing the justice:

"Oh, mister, I want to stay with my mother."

The judge studied his order gravely. The grandmother, Mrs. Mary L. Santos, of Utica, felt that it was for the child's best interest if she should be in her grandmother's care. Her own daughter, the child's mother, was formerly the wife of William H. Force, an Auburn Prison convict electrocuted for his part in the 1929 Auburn riots.

The judge ordered a new investigation by a welfare worker.

PIONEERS OF PUBLIC SERVICE

$1,000 A YEAR TEST STARTS SUNDAY

One thousand dollars a year for life—that's the almost unbelievable first prize in the American Weekly slogan contest starting in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph next Sunday.

This award will undoubtedly be, by far, the highest price ever paid per word for the written word. When the late President Coolidge was syndicating his daily editorial comment it was generally stated that his compensation averaged $2 per word for his daily output. When ex-Gov. Al Smith was writing for a weekly magazine it was reported that he was paid at the rate of $1 a word.

Slogans do not require many words—the shorter the better. If the winning slogan in the American Weekly contest is six words in length and the winner is awarded $1,000 a year for life and lives 30 years, this means that $30,000 will have been paid by the American Weekly before the contest is finished. And that figures at just $5,000 a word—a world record price for just the flash of an idea and the dash of a pen.

This amazing contest begins in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph with the announcement of the complete list of prizes, complete set of rules and all other information the contestant may require. The contest is open to everyone including men and women, boys and girls. There are nine additional prizes of the same general character as the $1,000 a year for life, but in lesser amounts.

No Candidate, But Legislator Will Be Elected

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—No one seems to want to be Logan County's representative in the State Legislature.

H. L. Allen, Logan County clerk, in a letter to Frank J. Ryan, Secretary of State, said:

Ryan said the election could be held anyway, and the voters could write in names on the ballot.

'KERCHIEF TRICK THEFT CHARGED

Believed implicated in the theft of $30 by the "handkerchief trick" from Walter Merelli, of 188 Steuben street, according to police, Angeline Nicholas, 45, and her daughter, Catherine Brush, 21, of 617 Arlington avenue, were held today in South Side Police Station.

The two were identified by Madeline Merelli, who said they persuaded her father to tie $30 in a handkerchief "to bring him luck," police said. He complied, and when he opened the handkerchief the following day found newspapers instead of money. John Nicholas, 22, a son of Mrs. Nicholas, also arrested, was not identified.

Poison Pen Drama Broadcast Today

Ten radio stations in the Tri-State area offer an original dramatization this afternoon and evening, dealing with one of the most wicked of weapons—anonymous letters.

"The Poison Pen," pictures a radio actor receiving unsigned letters accusing his wife of clandestine affairs with other men. The enraged husband, goaded on by letter after letter purporting to disclose additional evidences of disloyalty, kills himself. The woman suspected of writing the letters is seized and tried as the weilder of the poison pen.

WSAZ, Huntington, W. Va., 1:30 p. m.; WHBC, Canton, O., 2 p. m.; WKBN, Youngstown, 4 p. m.; WALR, Zanesville, 5 p. m.; WJAC, Johnstown, 5:15 p. m.; WOBU, Charleston, W. Va., 5:15 p. m.; WADC, Akron, O., 7:45 p. m.; WAIU, Columbus, 6:45 p. m.; WLBW, Erie, 9 p. m. and WJAS, Pittsburgh, 10 p. m.

Congress to Investigate Radio

By AIRCASTER

The next Congress, when it has disposed of its major issues, so the gentlemen who lurk behind the scenes are saying, is plotting a sweeping investigation into radio broadcasting to determine to what extent illegal traffic in wavelengths is being carried on, and why such traffic hasn't been halted by the Federal Radio Commission.

Reports of this general inquiry, naturally, have reached the commission, which, in a self-protective, anticipatory action, has already begun to look into the matter.

First on the docket is the case of WPG, Atlantic City, owned by the town, and leased by the CBS chain. The commission has begun to suspect that an accounting should be made of the moneys lavished upon the plant by Columbia. Somebody, opines the commission, is making the money while the official licensee ostensibly isn't, and this is called commercial usage.

* * *

Radio Law

Under the law, a licensee must operate his station to the best public interest, must be personally answerable for violations, and has no right to peddle the wave allocated to him. The Columbia books will be opened by the commission September 25. Of course, the leases, one must remember, were approved officially. That's what annoys the Congressmen.

The operation by lease of the Westinghouse stations by NBC is another subject to be handled by the inquisitive commission. But whatever the commission starts, it now seems, will be only a whisper compared to the noise which Congress, led, one suspects, by Senator Couzens, will make.

* * *

Football

Jimmy Murray, sports reporter for WJAS, wears a lapel microphone to tell the listeners what goes on in the dressing rooms before a football game. He begins a regular Friday night series of dressing room broadcasts tonight at 8, when he interviews players, coaches and officials in the Duquesne-Waynesburg gridiron contest, the first 1933 game of the season.

Tonight's novel broadcast is the first of a series of Friday night dressing room interviews, bringing out on the air all the color, enthusiasm and chatter from behind the football scenes, and sponsored by Frank & Seder.

* * *

Marconi Coming

Marquis Guglielmo Marconi, the wireless wizard, is coming to America and the World Fair, October 2, to demonstrate a short wave transmitter, perfected aboard his yacht, the Electra. He comes at the invitation of David Sarnoff of RCA.

His device, which has succeeded in bending short waves around the horizon, so the engineers predict, will revolutionize all broadcasting, and do away with the necessity of networks. The new transmitter, it is claimed, will send a wave to every point on the earth with equal volume.

Jimmy Long Gives Sports Review

The Sun-Telegraph Family Children's Program, presenting juvenile artists, is heard over WCAE at 4:45.

James J. Long, dean of sports writers, gives the Sun-Telegraph weekly sports review on WCAE at 7.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, airs the day's news over WCAE-WJAS at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 and 2:15 p. m., and over WCAE at 6:30 p. m.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

If or when William McNair gets elected mayor your Globe Trotter will have to keep on his exceptionally good behavior, especially after what happened on the broadcast the other night.

McNair's picture was in the paper. The photographer snapped it during lunch hour. The printed result shows the candidate holding his fork in his hand while his spoon projects out of what appears to be his coffee cup. The imp in me prompted a radio mention.

Immediately after the broadcast, Ed Harvey, from WCAE, got me on the phone asking what I did to "burn up" the candidate. Ed said McNair called and explained to him that he doesn't drink coffee with his meals and what looked like a cup on a saucer was really a soup bowl on a plate.

Still, that was a spoon.

(P. S. It's all in fun. I eat chicken with my fingers.)

Miss Millie Ellis, Ingram, against her better judgment, was urged by a persistent salesman to sign a numbered coupon making herself eligible for a free permanent wave if she held the lucky number.

Some time later she was informed that her number won and if she paid 25 cents she would receive a certificate proving that she was entitled to an absolutely free permanent wave. Later, when she called for her appointment she was informed that the permanent wave was free but every little incidental operation was charged for as well as shampoo and wave set.

She wants no one else to be victimized.

WE DO OUR PART

The buying public is so thoroughly familiar with Spear's that it is unnecessary for us to boast of our size and buying power.

Nevertheless, there are certain facts that the public cannot know without being told. Rugs and other floor coverings have advanced in price, the same as all other merchandise, and will advance again. With more than THREE THOUSAND room-size fabric rugs in our Pittsburgh stores, we believe that we have a larger stock than any other furniture or department store in Western Pennsylvania. By far the larger part of these rugs was purchased BEFORE the advances of August 7th and September 5th.

Is it not reasonable, therefore, with this tremendous stock purchased at LOW PRICES, for Spear's to be able to offer the most attractive rug values and the largest selection available? This stock of merchandise represents the products of

BUY IN SEPTEMBER AND BUY AMERICAN

This is the sixth illustrated editorial—of a series now appearing in the Hearst Newspapers—on the importance of the Buy Now movement as a contribution to National Recovery.

How the People of this Country can HELP THE PRESIDENT Speed Up Recovery

THIS IS A PICTURE OF TWO GOOD AMERICANS. Not rich — but comfortably fixed, with a good job, money in the bank, a neat little home. Something has happened to them in the past few weeks. Something has made them better citizens.

They have come to understand how sensible spending helps speed Recovery.

Look at them now. Planning an evening of fun together. A few months ago, after the dishes had been dried, they would have retired to the living-room. A book, a magazine, a little talk—and then to bed.

Because they couldn't afford the movies? No! And that's just the point.

Like too many others, they have looked on the normal expenditures as extravagance. They have acquired a lop-sided attitude that put scrimping ahead of spending.

And that's wrong.

The theatre ushers—the ticket takers behind the windows—the operators in the booths—the camera men, carpenters and wardrobe people in the studios—all have jobs only when people go to the movies in a normal way.

And the movies are but one example. The less you use your car—the less demand there is for men to work in filling stations and refineries and the oil fields.

In the same way, when fewer people use our thousands of golf courses, caddies and club-makers and ball manufacturers pay the penalty in fewer jobs, lower earnings.

It is a vicious circle—for every man out of work—movie usher, gas station attendant, golf course caddy—is one more consumer out of circulation.

And only when the whole nation is consuming can the whole nation have jobs—regular incomes—growing savings accounts. What can be done about it?

Just this. Recently manufacturers and retailers have added men, shortened hours, increased wages, in an effort to help the President's Recovery Program.

All that means higher costs and less profits to them. Eventually, it could mean failure. IF the people fail them.

But it can't mean failure if people start buying normally again. If they go to the movies as they used to do. If they run their car as they used to do. If they play golf as frequently as they once did.

That's the whole idea back of the Recovery Program . . . to get back to normal in your living and spending.

Buy and use what you can afford. If you merely start by purchasing a magazine, or treating yourself to an occasional ice cream soda that you have been denying yourself—it's all part of the program and you are doing your share!

So let's all "do things together." Buy what you need in a normal way. Nobody wants you to be extravagant. But buy. Buy sensibly.

That's the way to help forward the Recovery Program. That's the way to help yourself by helping others. Everyone must do his part. Buy in September . . . and keep our people at work.

PENTHOUSE -:- -:- BY ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

Lawyer Succeeds In Meeting Friend Of Murdered Girl

CHAPTER VIII.

Then he read the Journal, the Telegram, the Post and the Sun. Twice he read each account, and on a piece of paper jotted down notes. But the discrepancies in the four accounts were slight, only such as might be accounted for by the attitude toward the tragedy of each reporter.

Nor was there anything new, anything beyond what Lieutenant Stevens had told him a few hours before. But there was a diagram, drawn by an artist from the description of the tragedy given by the witnesses, and this diagram was superimposed on a panoramic photograph of the penthouse where Mimi Montagne had made her last public appearance.

He recognized the Singer Building and the Empire State tower. Nearer at hand were the Fedora, the Trinidad and the Oklahoma skyscrapers. Too, there was the drawing of a figure, with a mark to indicate where the bullet had entered and where it had emerged. As a matter of fact, it had not passed completely through the entertainer's body. It had entered the left breast, passed downward through the heart and been extracted inches below the heart. Durant frowned thoughtfully. He looked up as Layton entered and accepted the tomato-juice cocktail offered him. He gulped it and grimaced.

"Unquestionably good for the digestion but lacking stimulus to the intellect," he said. "Layton, how tall would you say Mr. Siddall is?"

"You're a shade under six feet, sir. I'm five feet eight. Mr. Siddall is just between us two. Five-ten, almost exactly, sir, I'd say."

"And how tall do you think Miss Montagne was?" he asked. "Did you ever see her? I have, often, but I don't know her height. I'd say about five-nine. She used to be a show girl, and they're usually tall. Now, let me see. She worked for Will Regan in 'Southern Skies.' Call up Mr. Regan and ask him how tall she was, and tell him not to mention that I inquired."

Synopsis

Jackson Durant, young lawyer who has alienated the Park avenue set through his spectacular success as "an underworld mouthpiece," has been asked by Sue Leonard, society girl who jilted him, to "save" Thomas Siddall, youthful broker, to whom Sue is now engaged. Siddall, held on a murder charge, had been arrested, gun in hand, when his former sweetheart, Mimi Montagne, a Broadway night club singer, was shot dead on the terrace of a penthouse where Jim Crelliman was "throwing a party." Durant starts his own investigation. Tony Gazotti, grateful because Durant had saved him from the "hot seat" recently, agrees to help the lawyer. They are to meet at the Pinnacle Club. Durant studies the newspapers for possible clues.

Now Go On

Unaware of Followers

Three minutes later, the valet returned to the living room. Durant was standing before a mirror. In his hand he held a revolver and he was pointing it at his own reflection, moving his wrist in a circle. He turned and smiled at his man.

"Ought not to have given up the foils, Layton," he said. "My wrist has lost all its suppleness. Although a revolver isn't really the thing with which to practice fencing, is it? How tall was Miss Montagne?"

"Really? Considerable girl. Is dinner ready?"

Durant lingered a moment under the canopy of the Pinnacle Club. He flattered himself that he was a great investigator, and it annoyed him that for months he had been trailed by Tony Gazotti's men and had never been aware of the fact. Someone else had also trailed him to the Leonard apartment, and he had been unaware of that. The clumsiest plain clothes man on the police force would know, after weeks of espionage, that he was under surveillance.

There were, he decided, certain primary things about every profession that could be learned only by experience. Yet now that he knew he was being followed, it was annoying not to be able to tell which of the passengers alighting from taxis was his shadow. He fixed in his memory the countenance of each man who got out of a machine for the next few moments; if Free Beer! and 10,000 Men and Women Flocked to the Brewery!

A SCENE IN THE CHARTIERS VALLEY BREWERY, CARNEGIE, AS SOME OF 10,000 GUESTS WERE SERVED FREE BEER . . . THEY CAME FROM MILES AROUND

10,000 SERVED FREE BEER

The "Forgotten Man" was remembered yesterday at the opening of the Chartiers Valley brewery, Carnegie, when beer was served free to 10,000 men and women.

The brewery, a subsidiary of the Duquesne Brewing Company, was thrown open to the public after a parade led by Danny Nirella's band marched in the vicinity.

The brewery was opened in 1901. The officers then were all residents of the valley. Justice of the Peace A. W. McMillen, of Carnegie, and August Valentour, of McDonald, are the only living pioneer officers of the company.

The plant was entirely renovated at a cost of $150,000.

JUST CITIZEN, BARUCH SAYS

QUEBEC, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Bernard Baruch returned from Europe yesterday with the declaration that he is "simply a private citizen in no way different from anyone else."

As he stepped ashore from the Empress of Britain from a European visit started last July, he had been "just on a vacation trip."

He said he was not going to Washington and disposed of all mentions of banks, financial matters and the American recovery program with a smile and a shake of his head.

Jailed Bride-to-Be Sews Trousseau In Her Cell

DENVER, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—With a trousseau she made in jail, Vivian Alexander, 22, was freed today after serving a 28-day sentence on a disturbance charge to become the bride of Ed Franklin, rancher, of near Buffalo, Wyo.

They were arranging to be married here when her arrest for boisterous conduct at a party given by friends temporarily halted the wedding march. She said:

"It's pretty hard for a girl to prepare a trousseau in a cell, but there was nothing else to do, and I didn't see any use waiting until I got out."

HOSPITALS BACK TIME PAYMENT

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—The American Hospital Association today adopted a resolution indorsing time payment arrangements by which the public may meet its hospital bills.

The convention adopted a resolution petitioning for federal relief to private hospitals lest they be forced to shut off all charity work for financial self-preservation.

Other resolutions recommended that municipalities reimburse private hospitals for free care given the indigent.

RAMP TO DELAY POSTOFFICE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Construction of the ramp for the new Pittsburgh postoffice building will delay completion of the structure about two months, it was announced today by James A. Wetmore, supervising architect of the Treasury.

Under the original contract the building was to be completed 720 days from February 1, 1932.

The contract for the ramp, which will be awarded some time before October 1, will allow 180 days for completion. This will move back the completion date to between April 1 and April 15, 1934, it was announced.

PENSION BOARD ACTS TO FORCE $75,000 FUND

A petition for a writ of mandamus to force the Board of County Commissioners to pay $75,000 into the county pension fund is being prepared by A. W. Powell, solicitor for Controller Robert G. Woodside.

The action will be brought by the Retirement Board, present trustees of the pension fund, who have obtained the consent of District Attorney Andrew T. Park to the petition.

Hundreds of former county employes have not received their pension checks for August, the payment having been held up by lack of funds.

REFUSE APPROPRIATION

County Commissioners by a vote of two to one recently refused to appropriate $75,000 to the pension fund as has been the custom for a number of years.

Commissioners C. M. Barr and C. C. McGovern voted against payment and Commissioner W. D. Mansfield, who is a member of the Retirement Board, voted for it.

CALLS ACT ILLEGAL

Barr said the act of 1933 reorganizing the pension fund under the Retirement Board is illegal and unconstitutional. He put the motion for refusal of the payment to the fund.

Attorney Powell declares an act of 1915 provides that the county pay at least one-half of one per cent of all available taxes to the fund. The county's payments have fallen considerably short of the legal minimum, he declares.

Campaign Oral Pleas Ending

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Tonight's meeting of the Citizens' League in Carnegie Music Hall in behalf of the candidacy of P. J. McArdle for mayor and its councilmanic ticket will bring to a close the energetic oral appeals to the electorate in this municipal campaign.

Mr. Shields.

There will be some meetings tomorrow night in behalf of some candidates. Indeed, it is more than likely the candidates will make their usual round of Sunday picnics, especially those who are seeking county offices, a form of campaigning, the value of which always has seemed dubious.

I don't believe patient picnickers enthuse over having candidates added to ants, sand and the other normal annoyances of picnicking. That, however, is beside the question.

The principal point is that tonight puts an end to the political rallies. There will be some more radio appeals, but the chief work from now to primary day next Tuesday will be the effort to organize and make effective at the polls the sentiment which each candidate believes has been engendered in his behalf. You know, of course, that each candidate thinks he will win. Candidates always do, because they are surrounded by friends who tell them only one side of the story.

Meetings tomorrow night would interfere with the final hours of registration, and those hours are too important to permit of any interruption by political meetings. Of what use to have people listen to you if they are not registered?

* * *

Registration Assumes New Importance

Registration has assumed a new importance in this campaign. Due to the growth of Democratic sentiment, and the number of former Republicans who are changing their affiliations, the matter is a serious one for both parties and for all factions.

It is reasonable to assume that the Democratic registration will go somewhere around 35,000, which is seven times what it was in the last mayoralty primary. The final figures may be larger. Under these conditions it behooves both William N. McNair and John M. Henry, rival Democratic mayoralty candidates, to see that their friends are eligible to vote. The Democratic primary this year becomes fighting ground due to the number of new voters.

Mr. McNair believes most of them will be friendly to him because they are actuated by an attachment to the policies of President Roosevelt, and he believes he has convinced the public he best exemplifies those policies in this campaign. Mr. Henry says the newcomers are against all boss rule, and thus will be for him because they will reason that Mr. McNair is controlled by David L. Lawrence and Joseph F. Guffey.

Somebody's wrong, and neither can take a chance.

But it is the Republicans who have the greatest concern about the registration. They would like to know whether the defections are of organization or Independent Republicans. Then they would know whether Mayor John S. Herron, Councilman P. J. McArdle or Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell would be hardest hit in the loss of potential votes.

* * *

Organization Problem Now, Not Oratory

Both organization and anti-organization are showing some losses. The Republican defections in the Fifth and Twelfth wards, for example, strike hardest at Mr. Herron. This is particularly marked in the Twelfth, where former Magistrate Charles Papale, recently fired by Mayor Herron, is taking his friends into the Democratic camp. In some districts they exceed the Republican registrants, which is a sad blow to the prestige of Chairman Michael DeRosa, who was preferred by Mr. Herron to Mr. Papale as the leader in the ward.

By and large, however, it appears that the altered registration will fall heaviest upon the anti-organization groups. In closely controlled wards, where organization majorities are conceded, the Democrats have shown gains, but not proportionate to their gains elsewhere.

Average intelligence would figure that Mr. McArdle would suffer most from defections in untrolled wards, Mr. Mackrell next and Mr. Herron last. Furthermore, the Republican anti-administration factions must attempt to hold within their party those independents who have no particular love for the Democrats, who had intended to register as Republicans, but now are swaying uncertainly because of the extreme confusion attending the attack upon the administration.

At any rate, there will be intensive efforts tomorrow by all factions to hold as many Republicans as they can from slipping over to the Democratic column.

From now on the election is a problem of organization rather than oratory, of which there has been a surfeit, heaven knows.

Mark Shields will talk on politics over WCAE at 5:45 tomorrow evening, instead of 6 o'clock.

Jury Commissioner Candidate Speaking

Robert A. Foley, candidate for jury commissioner, will speak tonight at the Etna High School, East Street School, North Side; Coraopolis High School and at Franz Hall, Segwick street, Millvale.

BUYERS HOLD FATE OF NRA, LEADERS SAY

Financial Support of Consumer Essential To Success

Only financial support by the consuming power can insure the success of the President's plan to start the wheels of industry turning normally again, in the opinion of spokesmen for industry and commerce today.

Indorsement of the Sun-Telegraph's "Buy in September and Buy American" drive was given by leaders in these fields as a move in the right direction.

W. P. Witherow, director of the First National Bank and the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company, said:

"I'm heartily in accord with the movement and think we should supplement the efforts that the recovery administration officials in Washington are making. It is very necessary to get business and industry rolling again. This can only be done by the full support and participation of every individual."

Paul H. Dillman, secretary of the North Side Chamber of Commerce, said that his organization is going to participate in tonight's parade and that they have adopted a resolution favoring the movement. He continued:

"We followed the Sun-Telegraph in the Buy American movement and have always been in favor of such things to increase buying. We need to get the people spending and get men back to work or we are going to be in an awful fix."

H. S. Wherrett, president of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company:

"I'm in favor of anything that will help the President, business and the NRA movement."

ECKENER SEES OCEAN AIR LINE

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, grizzled skipper of the Graf Zeppelin, paused in New York today en route to Akron, O., long enough to let it be known that clearing financial skies augured well for a future trans-Atlantic airship service.

He landed from the liner Hamburg for a brief stay here to prepare for the Graf's visit to Chicago next month and to discuss with airship and business heads the subject nearest his heart—an oceanic Zeppelin line.

Ruddy-faced, his blue eyes set off by stiff white hair and military goatee and mustache, Eckener said he would stay in the United States about 10 days before returning to Germany to skipper the Graf back via South America.

POLICE CLEARED IN BANDIT DEATH

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 15.—Police officers who shot and killed one member of an alleged robber gang and captured two others today were not only exonerated, but were congratulated by Prosecutor A. L. Hooper, of Jefferson County.

Hooper said:

"The police were fully justified in killing this man and should have killed the gunmen with him."

The slain man was James Baldwin, 21, who refused to surrender when trapped in a building where a safe had been robbed. Two other men, captured in the building, are being held.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 15.

To the Editor Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers

Say, they are having a time out here in Cal. in the courts over something I bet a lot of you didn't know anything about. They drill an oil well down straight for quite a little ways, then they got a "gadget" that turns it off to one side, and they head it out toward where they know some oil is.

Mr. Roosevelt owns what's in the ocean; but these old boys are diving down, turning to the left, and robbing the poor Democrats. It's a great thing for these states that have no oil.

All you do is drill a few "cock-eyed" wells near the line and go over and get it from "Ma" Ferguson, or "Alfalfa Bill" Murray. By the way, where do you get one of those tools?

Yours, WILL.

McArdle Says City Wants Honesty, Efficiency And Decency; Promises to Meet Requirements

Candidate Favors Searching Audit

(Editor's Note—This is the last of a series of five articles in which each of the five mayoralty candidates was invited by the Sun-Telegraph to write under his own signature his answer to this question: "Why do you think you should be elected Mayor of Pittsburgh?")

By P. J. M'ARDLE

I am asked why I believe I should be nominated by the members of the Republican party as its candidate for mayor of Pittsburgh.

I rest my belief on the following:

I believe that the great majority of the members of the Republican party want honesty, decency and efficiency in all divisions of government. I believe I can fulfill these requirements.

I am in favor of a searching audit of the city's affairs as a necessary guide to the establishing of efficiency in city government. I am in favor of full publicity for city business as against the theory that the city is injured by the exposure of unwholesome conditions. Full publicity is of paramount importance.

I am not only friendly to the principles of civil service, but thoroughly disgusted with the present system. If elected, I pledge myself to the building up of a real civil service, one with the twofold purpose of protecting the honest and conscientious city employe and protecting the taxpaying public.

Police Reform

Concerning police reform, I pledge that my election will mean the death blow to the unholy alliance between those who prey on society and those who are paid to protect society.

The Police Bureau of the City of Pittsburgh should assist in the detection and conviction of persons guilty of violating the election laws. It is the duty of the Police Bureau to detect and punish the violators of any other laws, and I pledge myself to see that the Pittsburgh Bureau of Police performs this duty with the same diligence as I expect it to perform every other phase of the sworn duty of its members.

I hold that no law or institution of government can remain safe or secure as long as the will of the people, expressed in the ballot, is trampled underfoot by ruthless "night riders," as has so often been the case in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County. I pledge that the power of the city government, under my administration, will be used to stamp out this nefarious practice.

I know of no other one thing of equal importance to the citizenry of Pittsburgh than preserving inviolate the right of the suffrage of the people.

If elected, I will institute the promised and much-needed change in our rubbish and garbage collection, which will result in the saving of a great deal of the taxpayers' monies.

Among the items of public expense that have assumed large proportions are those represented by appropriation for the support of the various pension systems of which the city employes are the beneficiaries. These systems are neither just nor fair to the city and its taxpayers nor to the just interest of those who merit the benefit of the pension system. If they are to survive, they must be revised and based on terms that the public can afford to meet, and upon terms and conditions that will do justice to that type of public employe to whom the city is under the greatest obligation.

Faces Problem

I have the courage to face this problem squarely and to bring about a system of pensions that will approximate justice both to the taxpayers and the beneficiaries.

In its corporate capacity the City of Pittsburgh maintains an important position between the people of Pittsburgh and the public utilities corporations, which render various types of public service to them. By virtues of these relationships, the city is able to be spokesman for itself and for the public in matters affecting rates and service. I am of the view that the city should meet that responsibility and take the necessary steps to protect both itself and citizens as private consumers whenever circumstances warrant. I regard the principle involved in this statement as of outstanding importance in determining this election of Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh.

I know that the dangers of waste and extravagance are constantly present throughout many of the city activities. The extent to which these dangers express themselves in reality depends in a large way upon the attitude of the Mayor toward his job. I know that waste and extravagance, which seems small in individual cases, express themselves in exceedingly large figures when the total is added.

Close attention by the Mayor to all expenditures can result in the saving of huge sums annually. I am pledged to provide such watchfulness.

I believe the office of Mayor to be a job for a man who knows how to do it and is willing to give the time, study and energy necessary to do it well and fearlessly.

Public Record

Summing up, I believe that my record as a public officer has proved that I have met these requirements in the past. I seek office free from political alliances with any individual or group of individuals that would hinder me in the performance of the duties of the office solely in the interest of the taxpayers.

If elected, I will employ the office and the influence of the office of Mayor only in the interest of the general public and its welfare.

I make mention of some of these subjects, which, with others, have constituted my platform in this campaign, but I am mindful of the fact that the proper function of the office of Mayor embraces the consideration, understanding and treatment of many more problems of government than can be specifically mentioned in either a platform or a brief public declaration limited to the space alloted to me in this instance.

I refer the voters to my platform for a more complete statement of my views on the municipal problems and my pledges concerning them.

CITY'S BUYING POWER TO BENEFIT

Reorganization Plans Under Way in Many Communities

Officials and conservators of closed banks in Western Pennsylvania report that progress is being made toward re-opening their institutions and adding to the purchasing power of the Pittsburgh district.

L. M. Beattie, cashier of the State Bank of Elizabeth, reports that all but 200 out of 5,000 shares of new stock have been sold and that he has hopes that the necessary subscriptions for additional capital will be received within a short time. After that the bank must be re-examined before re-opening can take place. The plan contemplates payment of depositors in full.

PLAN WORKED OUT

R. M. Baldridge, conservator of the Union National Bank of McKeesport, has just returned from a trip to Cleveland where he conferred with officers of the Federal Reserve Bank in regard to the re-opening of the institution. A plan has been worked out but has not yet been submitted to authorities at Washington for approval.

A plan for the reorganization of the Turtle Creek Savings and Trust Company has been approved by the Comptroller of the Currency. At a recent meeting of depositors and stockholders at the Union High School at Turtle Creek, the plan was enthusiastically indorsed. Efforts are being made to secure subscriptions for needed new capital and some subscriptions have been made.

FINAL DETAILS

Officials of the First National Bank of Wilkinsburg are working on final details for the reorganization of the institution into the First National Bank at Wilkinsburg. Sale of stock in the new institution was completed several weeks ago, but organization details must be completed before the new bank can start business.

A. S. Beymer, conservator of the Keystone National Bank, declared that work is under way on a plan, but it is not in condition to be announced at this time.

BOYS END FIRST 'TRADE' FLING

The business adventure of two North Side youths, police said, was ended today with the return of the boys to their homes. Officers said they quit school to polish autos in order to earn show money.

They said the boys declared they had played truant, earned money by polishing machines, and attended numerous downtown theaters. They said the fear of a whipping kept them from returning home, officers declared. Both are students at the Clayton Public School.

N. Y. Might Sell Stock Exchange Down the River

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Why not add another cent and buy it outright?

Tom Powers says the brokers will go West in the covered wagon. That's better than going East in a glass one.

Any state that wants the stock exchange for a neighbor can put in a sealed bid right now. New Orleans has its cotton, St. Louis its fur, Chicago its grain and Kansas City its beef. Is there any town that desires three shells and a pea?

All you require for a stock exchange is chalk and a blackboard. Then you give the folks a lesson in evaporating arithmetic.

We will miss the good old stock exchange. But it's about time that circus took to the road again. New York is farmed out anyway. The exchange belongs in a new spot where the hand is still quicker than the eye.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man at a First-Night

I think what puts me to sleep at the first-nights is the incessant yawning of the dramatic critics, who are going to get lockjaw some of these premieres . . . John Mason Brown frinstance, the only reviewer who makes his wife suffer through the soggy shows with him. Mr. Brown suddenly throws his head back against his seat, which invariably wakes me up . . . John Anderson simply refuses to permit the new plays (that are rotten) to bother him. He turns in his pew and urges you to inspect his new boots, imported from London . . . Gilbert Gabriel is the only critic who gives in and allows the bad plays to make him angry. He it was who once threatened that when the show was lousy he wouldn't devote more than two paragraphs to it—but nothing came of that . . . Percy Hammond appears to get some satisfaction out of the proceedings by turning in his chair—and searching for anybody's face to swap a nod with him in disapproval . . . When he gets that nod, he resumes stuffing his ears with bits of program paper, which he first tears and then rolls into tiny balls between his fingers . . . Burns Mantle is the most dignified critic on these uneventful evenings. Mr. Mantle keeps a straight face, no matter what happens. This is his meanest trait, it seems to me. Mantle simply won't tip off his confreres on what he is going to say about the show . . . George Jean Nathan makes a hissing sound when he yawns—the only person in the world who can do both at the same time.

There used to be such fun covering the new shows . . . You could always depend on a laugh or two watching the audience act . . . Or when Peggy Fears made a tardy entrance with her groom, whose name escapes me for the nonce . . . Peggy had a way with her, swooping down to her front row couch—with her hair out of control—to attract and arrest your eye . . . Her hair, as somebody must have observed, reminds you of a broken sofa . . . Then, too, no longer may you see Mr. Brulatour and his wife, Hope Hampton, come in just after the asbestos has lifted. They probably will be back from the old country in time for the better premieres, when "people who matter" turn out. Wonder what people really matter? . . . Well, there goes Lenore Ulric, fit as a bass viol. That escort has been with her four first-nights in a row. It can't be love . . . Lenore probably comes to these dull events to keep from being forgotten . . . Wolcott Gibbs, of the smarter magazines, who is batting for Mr. Benchley, is quite a prophet. Mr. Gibbs can tell you from reading the program before the first act curtain rises that it will be a dud . . . I'll bet somebody puts him hep—no critic can be that clever . . . Brooks Atkinson, I hear, has a neat trick to keep from dozing and having some indignant subscriber write to his editor. Mr. Atkinson drinks two saucersful of coffee just before 8:50 p. m. . . . Robert Garland has the most fun, though . . . He just doesn't come . . . Oop! There goes the curtain.

Ummm, now, isn't that brilliant? The leading lady thinks she's good . . . I wish those people in back of me would talk a little louder—I almost heard that scene . . . Wonder what the author has on his backer? . . . Can't be that somebody backed this thing because of the leading lady? . . . If that author could only auth! . . . I can just see him trying his first manuscript out on his wife, poor thing . . . Or his friends . . . And when she didn't respond—he probably told her she had no sense of humor . . . Well, he got it produced on Broadway, at any rate, by golly . . . He'll show those who thought he would be a flop . . . Wait'll he reads the morning papers — he'll wish he hadn't . . . Wonder what authors think about anyway—when the notices are sour? . . . Oop! That poor old man has forgotten his lines . . . He's repeated the ones he just uttered . . . Sitting out front watching an old-timer like that in distress isn't a comfortable feeling . . . Probably rated high in his day—and now look . . . The juvenile, who acts as though he was using this show to break in, himself, throws the cue . . . Bet the vet will give him the devil later—for "embarrassing" him . . . Wonder whatever made Ernest Truex accept that part in that recent flop? . . . I almost cried.

The time they all wasted worrying about their lines and cues . . . They must have rehearsed a month or more. And for what? . . . Tomorrow's notices will make their hearts ache . . . They'll probably be looking for jobs again next week this time . . . Seems to me when a new play doesn't get you before the first act curtain falls—it never fails to fail . . . Can't recall a show that got over with a poor opening stanza.

Wonder if there'll ever be another thrilling first-night such as "What Price Glory?" . . . When they stood and cheered and yelled and whistled . . . Wonder if Cain's theatrical storehouse really houses all that scenery and stuff from the casualties? . . . Oh, it cannot possibly—take them all? . . . Wonder what ushers in legit theaters do between flops? . . . Kelcy Allen looks so comfortable asleep . . . Wish I could get hold of his electric light, which he uses to read his program . . . And frighten him . . . That woman over there, all dressed up, looks as though she wished she hadn't come . . . The guy with her likes it, though . . . He probably wrote it . . . I don't see any of the bosses from the newspapers holding down aisle seats . . . They only come when the event promises to be exciting—they like to be seen, too.

I think I'll skip after this act . . . And see a picture or the newsreel at the Embassy—they're usually swell . . . If I were the owner of a paper I'd instruct my reviewers not to write any notices on feeble shows liks this one. Why make it tougher? It's like discharging another bullet into a fallen foe. The drama pages must be fed, though . . . Wonder who reads the reviews besides the cast and those concerned? . . . How still everything is . . . The only sound is the thump of the flop . . . Such strange faces . . . So few of them are familiar . . . First-nighters—hmphf! . . . There goes Hammond . . . Never forget the time Percy ankled up an aisle—wearing his hat . . . And a fellow observed: "There goes Hammond with his hat on—showing his bad manners!" . . . And a clown replied: "You've got him wrong—he's showing his contempt for the audience as well as the play."

If Alan Dale were covering this—he'd use up over a column and a half making cracks . . . Some liked his stuff, others didn't—but they read him—because he livened up his reviews no matter how dull the play . . . That's the idea, I think . . . Why do a tedious detailed account of a tedious show? . . . I guess the critics of critics, who kept harping on those "wisecrackers" won out, after all . . . You rarely see a dramatic criticism loaded with nifties, any more . . . And why not? . . . I think, too, that criticism misses Alexander Woollcott—who was never as dull as the shows he covered . . . You couldn't depend on him picking the hits from the misses, but he was always readable . . . How he always raved about his favorite actress, Mrs. Fiske . . . It was Alex who always said that he "danced in the streets" when she appeared . . . And one of us suspected that he danced in the streets—rather than return for her second act . . . Nor did I think I'd ever laugh so long and loud as I did when I first heard George S. Kaufman say that he hated giving an opinion on a certain flop revusical, which he saw "under bad conditions"—the curtain happened to be up!

Local Drama Character Study

By GEORGE SEIBEL

A quaintly unsophisticated play was produced last night by the Stage Guild to close their season for the summer. It was written by Madeleine Skelly Foust, who has appeared in many performances of local groups, and she calls it "The Dragon's Tooth," in allusion to the old Greek myth about the dragon's teeth that were sown in a field and sprung up as armed warriors. The drama has some good characterizations, some natural dialogue and some that is rather literary, and a plot that is narrative rather than dramatic.

Mr. Seibel

The heroine, played with sweetness and reserve by Helen Verosky, is a Catholic girl who is fascinated by a brilliant atheist who has written a play called "The Dragon's Tooth." When she turns him down, he sends her girl friend, as a wedding present, a "God Bless Our Home" motto, and shoots a bullet through his own head. The girl's other boy friend, whom she had also turned down, takes a nose dive in his airplane and is hurt, but not too badly to win the heroine's heart at the last curtain.

The characters argue out their love affair in forensic fashion, and there is much incident and banter that merely serve as padding. Entrances and exits are awkwardly managed, as everything except the shooting and the accident takes place in the one living room of the O'Ryan apartment. Beginning with a cocktail party and ending with a wedding, the drama requires 14 players, who kept the interest from flagging by acting humanly, though often forgotten by the author. Especially good work was done by Leo Daschbach as the literary atheist, Ray C. Schwan as a Russian prince, Clarissa Gailliot as an Irish mother, and Alexander Kann as a bridegroom who is worried about the ring.

Tarzan Hero In Fulton

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The good old hoke of the western mellerdramer, in which the heroine no more than gets out of one jam with the villian, through the hero's trick of being Johnny-on-the-spot, than she's into another, is the weft and woof-woof, as well as the warp, of the cinematic fabric on the screen of the Fulton, styled "Tarzan The Fearless." With plenty of action and scant dialogue, but sufficient, it features the personable Buster Crabbe, swimming champion, who though his conversation is limited to grunts, is anyway something of a man to look at.

He plays Tarzan, the apeman of the Edgar Rice Burroughs tales, and it is a good athletic exhibition he gives, swinging through the trees of the jungle, diving from high cliffs into a river, wrestling a lion, tussling with a "prop" alligator, etc.

As to the drama, it concerns a scientist and his party. The scientist is captured by a strange tribe and is to be a sacrifice because he got too near the god. Tarzan rescues him and is sent back to the post with a message to the scientist's daughter and the rest of the party. Tarzan finds her swimming in the river, a crocodile in pursuit. Of course he saves her. Back at camp the party discovers that the scientist has again been taken by the tribe. Then the gal is made prisoner. Likewise the rescuers. But Tarzan is on the job, and everything is oke at the finale. Complicate this with the dirty work of a couple of traitorous guides, who steal a treasure map, and you get the complete pattern.

Travels

Nancy Carroll has to travel a lot with Edmund Lowe, dodging police, in "I Love That Man," Photoplay in Sheridan Square.

Australian Actress Signed for Films

Mona Barrie, one of Australia's leading actresses, has been given a long term contract to appear in Fox pictures. Miss Barrie began her career as a dancer, but soon changed to the legitimate theater and became the favorite leading woman in Australia. She has appeared in such plays as "Let Us Be Gay," "Autumn Crocus," "Hay Fever," "While Parents Sleep" and others.

The actress was en route to London to fill a theatrical engagement and was given a screen test as she was about to board ship.

Romeo Baer Caught in The Act

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 15.—The funniest story in days is how Mrs. Edna Schley, a Hollywood author's agent, interrupted Max "Don Juan" Baer, rehearsing a movie love scene with a couple of sofa pillows arranged on a divan.

Yes, sir, for all his sureness, Max was practicing how he intended to make love to exotic Myrna Loy before the camera.

He was in Edgar Allen Woolf's office and he had arranged the pillows in the semblance of a woman's figure lying on the couch.

"Sweet my dear," he said vigorously, "don't say no. Be reasonable. Don't send me away."

At that moment, Mrs. Schley opened the door. Woolf was hidden behind it. All she could see was Max bending over the couch and murmuring endearments. She gave one horrified look.

"Oh," she cried, "I beg your pardon!"

The quick intervention of the hysterical Woolf and the shamefaced but now grinning Baer was the only thing that kept her from slamming the door and rushing away.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Final Word

CONSIDER Swifty Milton. He was one of those birds who is best referred to as a character. A newspaperman ever since he had been fired out of high school, he did his best to live up to the motion picture idea of a reporter. He was a good writer, a practical joker, thoroughly undependable and generally drunk.

Somewhere, back in his early career, Swifty was just as wide-eyed and ambitious as the cubbiest cub that ever stepped into a newspaper office. He, too, had a definite thrill out of his first 10 fires and the fact that he was in on the know of many things before the rest of the world.

But as time wore on, the novelty wore off for Swifty, even as you and I. He began to drink and to imitate the antics of other reporters who were far older than he. He was still a youngster, but—in his own mind—he was a blase and cynical gentleman.

"Well," he would murmur when anything happened, "what of it?"

He didn't really believe that, you know. Secretly he got just as big a kick out of big happenings as any man in the office. But he enjoyed the reputation he was getting; the reputation of being old far before his time and of being known as a definite character.

Swifty didn't marry until he was 27 and then it was pretty much of a gag with him. He got himself drunk on his wedding night and wound up in a hotel while his wife was waiting for him in their little apartment. He told the boys all about it the next day.

"What's a guy gonna do?" he grinned. "I guess I'm not the marrying kind, but I'm luckier than most guys. They don't find it out for 10 years, but I find it out in 10 minutes. Who's gonna join me in a little drink?"

"But how about the new wife?" he inquired. "Isn't she still waiting for you some place?"

The groom offered his inevitable reply.

"Well," he returned, "what of it?" . . .

The state of matrimony didn't change Swifty half so much as the state of intoxication. If anything, he grew to be more of a character with each passing year. The legends about the man grew and grew and grew.

The time he swiped the taxicab, for instance, and drove as far as Albany with the driver plastered in the rear. It's a wonder he wasn't fired for that, but everybody guessed that the city editor had covered him with the boss.

And then there was the time that—oh, but there are too many to relate to you here. Enough to state that Swifty had finally become the character he set out to be. He reveled in the yarns that were told about him, and even added little touches of his own.

His name began to creep into various columns around town. Swifty complained about columnists and insisted that he never read them. But when he was alone he clipped the notices about him and filed them carefully away.

His home life was little more than a jest. Other reporters knew Mrs. Milton as a mouse-like woman who was pretty in a way that they couldn't quite fathom. They grew to know her because she'd often appear at the office on pay day, and see that Swifty didn't hit out for the speakeasy as soon as his envelope was in his hand.

They marvelled at her devotion to a stew like Swifty, and secretly they felt sorry for her. They didn't tell the husband, of course, because Swifty was a man's man and was supposed to treat all women as a gag. And, even if they had told him, they knew exactly what his answer would have been.

"Well," he would have said, "what of it?" . . .

All this went on for some 12 years—and then came a sudden change. Swifty came into the office one afternoon looking like a ghost. He moped around for awhile and then left the building abruptly. He didn't have to leave word that he'd be in the speakeasy next door if he was wanted. The office always called there automatically.

A short while later two of the other boys dropped in for a glass of beer. Swifty sat in a corner booth. He was drunk already.

But it wasn't the type of load that Swifty Milton the character usually carried. He wasn't giving the hot foot to anyone, and he wasn't arguing with anyone just for the sake of arguing. Instead, he was crying—and Swifty Milton with a crying jag wasn't Swifty Milton at all.

The two men sat down with him.

"What'sa matter, Swifty?"

The character looked up. He shivered.

"She's gonna leave me. Told me so just before I left the house. You fellers don't know what it means. I didn't either until she told me. She's gonna leave me for another man.

"I oughta kill the other man, fellers, but I just can't. And you know why? 'Cause it's my fault. Twelve years we've been married, and I've never done a decent thing for her. And you know why? 'Cause I thought I didn't love her.

"But I know now, fellers. Honest, I know now. If she don't change her mind, I'll kill myself."

One of the men pounded Swifty's back.

"Stew stuff, Swifty," he cried. "Snap out of it. Be yourself. You will be okay. What's one woman more or less? Give us the Swifty motto: 'Well, what of it.'"

Shortly after midnight that night, Swifty Milton dived through a window of another speakeasy in the neighborhood. He landed on his head in the yard and was dead by the time they reached him. The paper gave him a nice obituary the next day and stated that Swifty had fallen. But there were many who knew better.

Before he called Swifty Milton's wife, the night editor had pieced together many of the details of the story. About the fact that Swifty's wife was leaving him, the night man already knew. He knew, too, that Swifty had made many trips to the telephone during the night in order to plead for forgiveness. And he knew about Swifty's last words before he took the fatal plunge.

"It's no use," he had told several men. "She's through for good. Said she's stood it for 12 years, and that she's standing it no longer. I don't blame her, fellers. Honest I don't." . . .

So the night editor called Mrs. Swifty Milton. He did his duty to the best of his ability.

"I have sad news, Mrs. Milton," he said. "Swifty has had an accident. He's—he's in pretty bad shape, I'm afraid."

There was a pause on the other end of the wire. Then came the voice of Mrs. Milton, bitter with the toll of the years.

"Well," she said, "what of it?" . . .

AIR DEFENDERS ABLE BUT FEW, SAYS ELLIOTT

By ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT
Aviation Editor of the Sun-Telegraph.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 15.—America's air defense problems are as varied and endless as its far-flung coast lines and island possessions.

Two unrelated but interesting events of the past few days bring to light not only our national responsibilities in this respect, but our opportunities as well.

One of these is the inspiring formation flight a few days ago of Lieut. Com. Donald M. Carpenter and his crew of officers and men in six consolidated flying boats from Norfolk, Va., to Panama—2,054 miles of non-stop flying in all sorts of weather.

NAVY FLIGHT EXAMPLE

Longer than any single leg in the flight of Italy's great Balbo to Chicago and return, the Navy's achievement has shown us that Uncle Sam's boys also know how to fly when they have something to fly in.

The other, unnoticed by the world in general, was the return to this country of a famous foreign journalist whose name need not be mentioned here, but whose observations are important to flying and air defense.

The Orient, he tells this writer, is the scene of significant developments in which our own interests are becoming more vital every day.

Japan, with an island population of 70,000,000, is seeking "elbow room." Recent events in Manchuria do not, he declares, take care of Japan's problem in that direction, contrary to popular belief. China, he believes, eventually will absorb any outside race which might settle in Manchuria.

MUST GUARD ISLANDS

The Philippine Islands, close to the Empire of the Rising Sun, offer an ideal outlet, commercially and racially, for Japan's teeming millions. Below and beyond the islands lies Australia, wealthy in natural resources.

It's a long jump from Australia to the subject of our flying boats, one may say, but wait . . .

The Philippine Islands, my journalistic friend says, "are a white elephant as far as the United States is concerned. Unless arrangements are made to sell them to Japan or in other ways dispose of them, America must be fully prepared to defend them."

PLANES ONLY WEAPON

But how?

From a naval standpoint it would be an impossibility to prevent a major power taking the islands unless our entire fleet was based on their shores. Only one weapon remains—aircraft.

What have we in flying ships or other aircraft suitable for that task?

The six excellent flying boats that made the Panama flight comprise more than one-fourth of all equipment of that type in the Navy. We have only 22 of them in the service, and if more are built "the money will have to come from the director of the budget or through the public works fund," Washington tells us.

COVER VAST STRETCH

Twenty-two patrol boats to guard America from British Columbia to Mexico on the Pacific, and from New Brunswick to the Gulf on the Atlantic, with Hawaii and our other scattered islands thrown in.

Of course we will be told the Navy has other flying boats, probably a hundred or so, if you count the old-timers.

England, Italy and France have strong air fleets of naval aircraft. Great Britain's flying boats have been built with an eye to empire defense; you'll find them in the Mediterranean, in India, way down under in Australia, on the Nile and in the North Sea.

Those big "Calcuttas" and "Singapores" are England's pride. Italy's Savoias are now well known in this country and the French seaplanes are formidable indeed. As for Russia, all we know definitely is that the Soviet republic is building aircraft in great numbers and variety.

Our flying boats compare favorably with any—if and when you can find them.

HUGE SHIP BEGUN

America, also, ought to be given more "elbow room" in aerial defense.

The other day the writer saw at the Douglas aircraft plant the beginning of a new giant seaplane, larger than any in naval service here and faster than any military seaplane in the world, with an effective range of more than 3,000 miles. This plane, no doubt, will soon be flying, but how long before others of its type in adequate numbers are added to our defensive forces?

Let us view more thoroughly how we should spend the money appropriated for national defense and see that we are not remiss in considering long-range flying boats as a vital factor in the protection of the Philippines and Hawaiian islands.

When Engagement Is Broken Ring Should Be Returned

How about engagement rings? Should ex-sweeties hand 'em back? Or are they given "for keeps"?

And would you want to keep yours if you'd decided you didn't love the man who gave it to you?

"I've always wanted a diamond," sez she, "and now I have one I intend to keep it!"

And Bill? But here's the story, first hand.

Dear Miss Robinson:

I wish you'd help me out. I'm having an argument with a man, and I'd like it if you'd tell him where to get off.

About two years ago I met Bill. He's a good looker, and has lots of "It," and I fell for him pretty hard. Or thought I did at least. He fell for me, too, and after going around together for quite a few months, we decided to be engaged. We expected to get married quite soon, then, but he got out of work, and so we couldn't. We kept on going together, and planning for the future, when he would get work again. And—well, I guess I fell out of love with him, or something, because about eight months ago we began to seem to get on each other's nerves. We argued and quarreled, and couldn't seem to get along together at all.

So we called it off . . . or rather I did. Our engagement has been broken for about four months now. And here's where the argument comes in.

WANTS TO KEEP RING

Before he lost his job, Bill bought me an engagement ring. And now he is insisting that I give it back to him, and I am insisting that I won't.

The way I look at it is that I have given up my time to him for nearly two years, and I think that I have a right to keep this ring. I have always wanted a diamond, and now that I have one, even if it is small, I don't think Bill has any right to demand it back. He gave it to me, and it is mine.

Will you please help me out?

GWEN.

Help you out? Tell you—as you plainly want me to—that Bill's wrong, and you're right?

Nope. Not me, Sissy! Because you're not right! Yes, I know. You want a diamond . . . so you're hanging onto this one. But an engagement ring is not an outright gift. An engagement ring is simply a symbol of your engagement . . . of the love that you have for each other. And if you fall out of love, and the engagement is off, the ring should go back where it came from.

SHOULD GIVE IT BACK

No really fine, proud girl would want to keep a man's ring if she no longer wanted him. She wouldn't want to be under obligations to a man she no longer cared for, or who no longer cared for her. She would want to be free of everything that reminded her of . . . or bound her to . . . her broken romance.

An engagement is not a gold-digging expedition, whatever it may look like to you.

So—though it's up to you of course, what you do—I'm telling you, Gwen—

If you want to be regular, and a square shooter, with both Bill and yourself, you'll send his ring back.

Fay King Discusses Technique of Match-Foiling Mothers

By FAY KING

The methods of matchmaking mothers are pretty much the same whether they wish to dispose of daughters or sons.

They seem to involve that inseparable devotion and constant companionship which, I think, are supposed to inspire the determination to accomplish just that in those they are angling for.

Also, perhaps, because of the tradition that offspring who are devoted to mothers are always considered immensely preferable when matrimony is contemplated.

However, I have observed this difference. The mothers of daughters will not tolerate any but probable prospects of whom they approve.

But mothers of sons seem to more easily eliminate undesirable prospects by cultivating them.

Sons so seldom marry the girls mothers are so nice to, and I think the mothers did not intend that they should.

Safety plays are among the most important plays in Bridge, and the ability to recognize situations requiring them is a mark of the good player. 5 ♡	Pass	5 ♠	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding does not call for much comment. North's Raise to game is obvious, as is South's Slam invitation. It is possible that the bidding would have been better had the cue bids in diamonds and hearts been omitted, but this is not very important.

The Opening bid was naturally the King of clubs, which Declarer won in his own hand with the Ace. He now led a low spade and went up with the Ace, and became perfectly helpless from this point on as he could not avoid the loss of two trump tricks.

At first he blamed his luck for the debacle, but a minute later he realized that it was his own fault. The proper play was to lead a low spade and finesse the Ten. If this lost, the trumps would be bound to fall on the second and third rounds, and this provided for the possibility of four spades in one hand.

As a matter of fact, it would have been equally good play to lead a low spade from the Dummy and finesse the 9. A poor player might also make the hand by laying down the King of spades, but this would be sheer luck, as there is nothing to guide his choice of the first high card that must be played.

TODAY'S QUESTION

South	North
1 NT	2 NT
3 NT	Pass

You, West, hold:

♠ Q 5 4 ♡ K Q 9 8 3 ◇ 8 4 2 ♣ A J

What do you lead?

Answer: The heart King. Of course your heart holding is such that you wish to make an immediate attacking lead in that suit. It is readily admitted that the lead of the King will turn out badly in several instances. If your partner has the lone Ace, the Ace-small, the lone Knave or the Knave-small, the lead of a low heart will turn out far better. If Dummy holds three to the Knave and Declarer the Ace, either lead (the King or a small heart) will turn out badly. However, the lead of the King will turn out most advantageously in the following instances:

If Dummy holds the Knave, either alone or once guarded; if Declarer holds the Ace-Knave alone or the Ace-Knave-small. If the Declarer holds all three of the missing honors and you must lose 2 tricks in the suit no matter what card is led, you at least are not giving him his 2 tricks without gaining a tempo. In other words, by leading the King you must either hold the first trick or get in on the second trick of the suit in time to shift before the Declarer wins his 2 tricks. If your partner merely holds the Ten of the suit and Declarer holds the Ace-Knave-small, he will be forced to duck the first round and you will retain your tenace position. In short, the holding of the nine-eight under your King-Queen gives you sufficient foundation to stand the lead of the high honor.

Madge Thinks of Keeping Avis Away From Farmhouse

I suppose my face betrayed my astonished chagrin at hearing my mother-in-law's voice over the telephone, for Hugh leaned toward me and his lips formed the words, "What is it?"

"It is I, Margaret, mother," I said, instinctively avoiding the diminutive Madge, which she never has used in all the years of my marriage, though no other person save my father calls me by the longer, more dignified cognomen. But the ruse availed me nothing. Her voice was testy with annoyance when she spoke again.

"What are you doing away from home with that ankle? Where are you? Why are you telephoning?"

"I took Mrs. Ticer down the road to Sag Harbor to telephone," I equivocated. "The Bridgehampton telephones were out on account of a fire, and we couldn't get the operator over ours before we left."

"She probably was asleep, or talking with her best beau," my mother-in-law commented acridly. "The telephone is all right now."

"So I see," I returned cheerfully. "That's the reason I tried the phone just now, because I thought it might not be permanently out of commission."

"Of course not," she snapped, "but I'd like to know why you thought it was necessary for you to play chauffeur to Mrs. Ticer. Weren't there enough men in the house?"

"Yes, mother dear, you know how busy everybody is today. Really I am the only useless one. You are all so insistent that I shall not use my ankle that I feel like a fifth wheel, as if I weren't needed at all."

PREVIOUS EXPERIENCES

"Why should you be needed?" she demanded. "I arranged parties and weddings before you were born, and many times since. The weddings of Mary's mother and of her aunt Harriet, were beautiful functions, and I planned and executed every bit of them. I really think I am capable of carrying out the details of my own granddaughter's wedding, even if you are laid up with a lame ankle."

"I know you are," I said soothingly. "Everybody is remarking how wonderfully you are managing things."

"Well! Nothing is dragging," she admitted, and then she put a question which I felt had some purpose behind it.

"How do you feel?"

"Very well, indeed, thank you."

"Then I wonder why you couldn't keep on going to Southampton and see about those boxes for the cake. We ought to have a dozen more. It seems Mary has promised Marion some for her friends at school to sleep on—you know how foolish girls are—and we won't have enough boxes.

A COMMAND

"They'll probably tell you that they can't get them at this late hour, but don't take 'no' for an answer. They can get them all right, especially if you tell them you'll pay for any telephone messages necessary, and for a messenger to bring them over. So don't let them get out of it."

"I'll do my best," I promised meekly, remembering the story of the cub reporter who reported to his city editor that he had been kicked down the steps of a house where he had been sent to get a story.

"Go right back," the city editor thundered, "and tell them to give you that story. I'll show them they can't bluff me."

"Best, fiddlesticks!" my mother-in-law commanded. "You get those boxes."

"All right," I agreed, thankful that I had put on my heavy motoring coat and taken my purse with me when I took Mrs. Ticer to The Larches to telephone. "I'll take Mrs. Ticer home and then go on to Southampton."

"Don't take time to stop at the house," my mother-in-law directed. "There's nothing here for you to do, and the sooner you see about those cake boxes the better. Every minute is precious now."

"Very well, I'll attend to everything. And—it's so nice I think I'll drive on to that Hampton Bays shop and see about a hat."

"That means you'll be gone all the afternoon," my mother-in-law said shrewdly. "But there's nothing for you to do around here, and the air will probably do you good. But, remember, don't take any nonsense from those people about those boxes! Goodby."

The receiver clicked, and I hung up my own with a smile at Hugh, half rueful, half relieved.

"The way of the transgressor has just been unexpectedly made easy," I told him.

Household Hints

Petersham that has become limp can be restored by applying a little soap. Afterwards press with a hot iron.

Tarnished copper can be cleaned with equal parts of vinegar and salt, after which rinse in warm water to remove acid and give a final polish with a soft cloth.

Ordinary household ammonia has a good cleansing power, and, being only a mild alkali, it can be often used where washing soda would be harmful.

For instance, it is an excellent practice to add ammonia to the water used for washing woolen materials, such as blankets and so forth. Ammonia is also useful for neutralizing the harmful action of acids and fruit juices on fabrics and metals.

Correct Manners

By CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Name for Divorcee

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me how to write my name correctly in the future? I am about to obtain a divorce from my husband but will retain my marriage name, as I have a little girl 9 years of age. My name before my marriage was Alice Devans. My husband's name is Joseph House. Will it be correct to sign my name Alice Devans House or just Mrs. Alice House?

R.

For your formal name the best form is the use of the surname of your maiden name prefixed to the surname of your married name. That is, your formal name (the name on your visiting cards, the name you would use in all cases in which formerly you used the name Mrs. Joseph House), would be: Mrs. Devans House.

I hope that you will decide against using the form Mrs. Alice House, for it is not considered good taste to use the first name formally with Mrs. That is, a married woman's formal name is Mrs. John Smith. A widow's formal name is exactly that too, Mrs. John Smith. And a divorced woman's formal name should be Mrs. Browne Smith.

This is the correct form for your signature to a business letter, or to a letter to someone who must be informed of your formal name:

Yours very truly,
ALICE DEVANS HOUSE.
(Mrs. Devans House)

Note of Congratulation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a girl friend who is to be married this month. She is not a "close" friend but a girl very much admired by me. I also have met the man who is to be her husband.

1—Will you please word a little informal letter for me to write offering my friend my sincere congratulations?

2—Should I write the letter before or after the wedding has taken place? W.

1—I like to have you think of writing this kind of note, for it is such a spontaneous and friendly thing to do, and people always welcome this sincere gesture. Your note might read like this:

Dear Dorothy:

I am so especially interested and delighted in the news of your engagement that I do want to write you at once to send you my best wishes for your happiness always, and to ask you to give, too, my heartiest congratulations to that fortunate fiance of yours. I have had great pleasure in knowing you, and my friendship with you has meant a special happiness to me. Every good wish to you, Dorothy, dear, and every blessing!

Affectionate greetings, and I hope that I am to see you soon.

Devotedly.

MONKEY PATTERN NO. 506

By LAURA WHEELER

Of all animals, the monkey seems to fascinate youngsters most. His quaint antics—his agility—hold them spellbound. This toy monkey offers them a faithful reproduction of their pet with the advantage that it can be cuddled, without suddenly taking it into its head to swing precariously by its tail. The monkey is attractive made either of some plain or furry material as shown or of plain or printed cotton. The monkey is about 12 inches tall when finished. Pattern 506 includes not only the pattern pieces, but full directions for making and stuffing the animal and yardages.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Prompt Care Prevents Recurrence of Styes

"What a pity you have a stye. It is sure to return regularly for at least seven years."

Dr. Copeland

Such was part of a conversation I overheard in a trolley car the other day. The victim's eyelid was swollen and on it was a discharging sore. There was no doubt the trouble was a stye, but there was great doubt in my mind as to the necessity for recurrence if the proper treatment should be administered.

If you have ever had a stye you will agree with me that it it is one of the most annoying and really distressing afflictions of the eye. It is unpleasant to look at and difficult to endure.

The disturbance is often attributed to some disorder of the blood. In reality it is an infection of one of the glands in the margin of the eyelid.

The victim first notices a redness of the eyelid. The lid begins to swell and from day to day the inflammation increases in severity. The swelling grows greater and a yellowish spot appears on the margin of the lid.

After a few days the small abscess ruptures by itself and the pus escapes. The swelling then subsides, the pain disappears, and within a few days the patient has no discomfort.

Hot boric acid solution should be applied to the afflicted eye. The solution is repeatedly applied with bits of sterilized cotton, keeping the temperature of the liquid as hot as possible. The heat brings the infection to a "head," and encourages the pus to escape. As the cotton becomes contaminated, discard it and use a fresh supply.

One of the favorite prescriptions for local application is 1 per cent yellow oxide of mercury ointment. This is applied to the lid margin. Do this before retiring at night and cleanse in the morning with warm boric acid solution. If pain persists and the swelling does not subside it is important that you consult with your physician.

Unfortunately the patient is so relieved when the pain disappears that he is careless and pays no further attention to his eyes. As a result, the infection reappears and he is again the victim of this unpleasant ailment. The second infection may be more stubborn and this time it may be necessary to have the abscess incised.

Lack of cleanliness and rubbing the eyes with dirty fingers leads to this annoying infection. It is most common when the body is in a weakened condition because of constant body fatigue, caused by lack of sleep, wrong eating, or some chronic disorder of the body.

If the eyes itch and bother you, bathe them in a cool solution of boric acid. If you read a great deal and suffer from eyestrain, it is best that you consult an expert. It may be you require glasses or, if you have glasses, you should make sure to wear them whenever necessary. Bear in mind that properly prescribed glasses insure normal vision and prevent any unnecessary strain on the eyes. They help to preserve eye health.

'KATE' DEFENDS KLONDIKE GIRLS

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Deftly rolling a cigaret, her eyes bright with memories of gold rush days in Alaska, Klondike Kate told today how she made $750 in Dawson one night "as easy as falling off a log."

But first Kate, now Mrs. Kate Rockwell Matson, here for the International Sourdough Reunion, rose to the defense of the dance hall girls, of whom she was hailed as "queen." She said:

"A more decent set of girls never existed than those of us who gamboled so merrily in the Dawson dance halls. We asked for and demanded respect—and we made it pay.

"About that $750—all I had to do was to chat with a gentleman who was buying wine. He bought $1,500 worth and I got a 50 per cent commission."

FATHER LOSES FIGHT FOR BOY

James W. Wilkinson, of Louisville, formerly of Murrysville lost his habeas corpus action to get possession of Malcom Wilkinson, 7, who has been with his mother, Mrs. Selma R. Wilkinson, 604 Lillian street, Knoxville, since August 25.

The Wilkinsons are estranged. Efforts on the part of Judge James H. Gray to bring about a reconciliation while hearing the habeas corpus action, failed. They have two children.

The couple separated in 1928, when Wilkinson was to go to school for a year. He took the boy with him to his parents in Murraysville, while Mrs. Wilkinson took charge of the daughter. However, it developed that Wilkinson never went back to his wife. Mrs. Wilkinson was given the custody of the boy by court order and she already had Muriel, 5, in her possession.

THE ROMANS had a phrase for it—

"CAVEAT EMPTOR," meaning "Let the buyer beware." This wasn't used as a bit of balm to ease the ancient conscience; nor, yet, was it placarded in the booths and stalls of the market-place. It was a piece of every-day knowledge, born of dear-bought experience.

A shopkeeper knew little about the source of his merchandise. This tunic he bought from a trader, who said it came from Byzantium. So he sold it as the latest Byzantian style. The trader told him the dye was pure Tyrian—it wouldn't fade. So he sold it as Tyrian dyed. But the buyer knew the responsibility was his own. If he guessed wrongly, or his judgment was poor, it was his hard luck.

Today, fortunately, there are safer guides than the blanket-warning to "let your eyes be your market."

These guides are the newspaper advertisements. In this newspaper, they are a daily catalog of the best values in town—signed by responsible firms. If the goods are not all that is claimed for them, their sponsors would need to "beware." For no business can thrive on a one-time sale, or on dissatisfied customers.

A signed advertisement is, in a way, like a promissory note. The advertiser has made a statement, and affixed his signature as a sign of good faith.

So, read the advertisements before you start out on a buying-trip. Make this a daily habit, and see how much you save . . . in time, in temper, in money, in shoe-leather.

HEARST PAPERS DIVIDEND IN MAIL

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—The regular quarterly September cash dividend disbursement of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., was in the mails today destined for every important city and community in the United States, American possessions and many foreign countries.

This is the third dividend payment made so far this year on Hearst 7 per cent class "A" cumulative participating preferred shares and is the thirteenth consecutive quarterly cash dividend distributed since Mr. Hearst first invited his thousands of employes and the public to participate in the profits of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., which spans the United States from the Atlantic to the Pacific seaboards.

Some of the foremost nationally known publishing enterprises, such as the New York Evening Journal, Chicago Evening American, Detroit Times, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, San Francisco Examiner, San Francisco Call-Bulletin, Los Angeles Examiner, Los Angeles Herald-Express, Oakland Post-Enquirer, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, American Weekly Magazine and the American Newsprint Corporation, form the solid foundation upon which Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., is built.

Through the nationwide diversification of these properties in the metropolitan centers of the country, Hearst Consolidated has been in the position consistently to pay dividends throughout the past three depression years.

Currently advertising volume for the various publications mirrors a steady gain, with a resultant upward trend in earnings.

NEW YEAR NEAR FOR JEWS

With sunset Wednesday, September 20, Jewish people will begin the celebration of the festival of New Year, Rosh Hashanah. Jewry the world over will usher in the year 5694 with prayers and meditation. Orthodox Jews designate two days for the observance.

Originally, the Hebrew New Year marked the opening of the agricultural and economic year in Palestine. It began in autumn, because with fall there followed in succession the seasons of sowing, ripening and harvest.

The day was not expressly called New Year's Day, but was thus regarded by the Jews of an early period. It was celebrated by resting from labor, as it still is, and offering special sacrifices at the Temple of Jerusalem. It was distinguished from other holidays by the blowing of the shofar, the ram's horn—a custom still prevailing in the synagogue.

As the agricultural background faded from Jewish life, the rabbinic authorities changed the day to memorialize the beginning of creation. It became the judgment day of the Jewish calendar, the day upon which God judges the earth's peoples.

EBENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Witnesses in the Cambria County Court assert Mayor Eddie McCloskey, of Johnstown, struck Leon P. Bennett, poor director, after leading a delegation of unemployed to the Emergency Relief offices in Johnstown last June.

Olive Oil of Fine Quality Produced in America

This Valuable Food Product, Manufactured from Ripe Olives by Sanitary Process, Ranks with the French Oil in Flavor and Purity.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator From New York,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City.

On the beach the other day I noticed some young girls rubbing their hands, arms and faces with a liquid. My companion was surprised when I told him the liquid was olive oil. Our modern young women, as the women of centuries ago, know that olive oil can be used for many purposes, including the prevention of serious sunburn.

Of course the great value of olive oil is its use in the diet. There it is very important.

The oil is pressed from mature, ripe olives, which are first ground between stones. The paste that is formed is placed in closely woven baskets which are piled one on top of the other and put into a hydraulic press. The first product of this process is the best quality oil and is known as "virgin oil."

The baskets are then removed, softened with hot water and replaced in the hydraulic press. The oil now obtained is the second-grade. Several pressings are worked and various grades of oil are obtained.

I am often asked why there is so little California olive oil on the market. This is due to the great demand for whole, ripe olives. In addition, the American olive is not as rich in oil as those grown in Southern Europe.

A GREAT INDUSTRY

No one will deny that the finer qualities of California olive oil now rank with the French in flavor and purity. Italian olive oil has a decided olive taste, often disliked by Americans. Yet many of my readers will recall the time when domestic olive oil was disliked and rarely used.

The manufacture of olive oil in this country has been perfected and has become a great industry. The product is controlled by the pure food laws. Many housewives prefer the American oil. In any event they demand a wholesome and clean product. It makes us proud that our own people are making oil as good as many of the foreign oils that are more expensive, less pleasing to the taste and not as scientifically prepared.

SPOILED BY LIGHT

Olive oil is best kept in a tin container or amber bottle. Light spoils the oil. It should be kept in a dark and moderately cool place. Before you purchase olive oil make sure you read the label. This will tell you the grade and contents of the bottle.

Olive oil is used extensively for salad dressings and for cooking purposes. It is an energy-producing food and supplies the body with calories of heat and energy. It is difficult to digest only when taken in large quantities. It stimulates the appetite and makes food tempting and pleasing to the palate as well as to the eye.

GIRLS' COLLEGE HEAD REPLIES TO CRITIC

President Ethelbert D. Warfield, of Wilson College, Chambersburg, replies to the charge made by Esther Eberstadt Brooke in the current Good Housekeeping that "the college woman who succeeds in business today owes her alma mater very little thanks."

Mrs. Brooke, well-known vocational counsellor and employment agent of New York City, charges that women's colleges fail not only in preparing students for the business world, but in giving them the proper vocational advice and in getting them jobs for which they are fitted.

President Warfield writes:

"I believe in a liberal education. I do not expect more than a small per centage of boys and girls to acquire it. It is only to be sought for its own sake. Other people will seek it in you if you have it.

"If a woman marries, and most women should, her home will be happy in proportion as her education fits her for the companionship of an educated husband. Her happiness 'es in companionship in the dining room, the library and the parlor, not apart from him in the kitchen, where she should of course be competent to direct the work, not do it.

"The vocation of a woman, the one she should be educated for, is to be a woman. Tho this end the college trains her mind, her health, her soul. She should seek knowledge that she may be able to act wisely, culture that she may be able to delight in the loveliest things, sound religion that she may be able to love God and her fellowmen.

"At Wilson College we seek to form character, not to fit for jobs. The jobs will seek them who have the character."

"SO HAPPY THAT I TRIED ALL-BRAN"

Delicious Cereal Brought Relief From Constipation

If you have headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness or any other of the frequent effects of constipation, read Mrs. Schneider's letter:

"Since I have been eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, I don't have to take anything else for constipation. How good it is, and how much better it is for constipation than pills or any other medicine.

"I would never go back to what I used to take, because Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is wholesome and healthful." —Mrs. John Schneider, 950 Tenth Street, Oshkosh, Wisconsin.

Constipation is usually due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN has both, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the wastes.

Try ALL-BRAN in place of pills and drugs—so often habit-forming. Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Use as a cereal, or in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

WABASH ARTERY URGED WITH TWIN TUBES

Immediate action toward construction of a new traffic highway over the present Wabash Bridge and tunnel, and the drilling of a companion tube through Mt. Washington, was urged by downtown business men and representatives of South Hills communities, before the County Commissioners yesterday.

Among the speakers were Walter Rosenbaum, representing the Lower Downtown Business Men's Association; Daniel C. Dougherty, president of Dormont Council; L. C. Clark, chairman of the Mt. Lebanon Township Commissioners; Fred C. Schatz, of the downtown group; Attorney Joseph Duff, solicitor of Carnegie, and L. T. Stevenson, member of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board.

The speakers urged the double tube plan, as suggested by several experts, on the grounds of present low costs and aid for the unemployed.

John M. Rice and James M. Ray, members of the county committee on the public works projects to be undertaken with federal funds, said the Wabash plan was among the three or four projects for which applications are on file with the state committee.

The construction would cost approximately $7,000,000, of which $3,000,000 would be for purchase of the existing bridge and tunnel.

Youth Demanding $2,000 Picks Poor Farmhand

COLLEGEVILLE, Pa., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—A 15-year-old schoolboy was arrested for further investigation late yesterday in what police described as an "amateurish plot" to extort $2,000 under threat of death.

Alen McGrory, an orphan, was held after watchers saw him lift a stone under which the extortion letters ordered the money be placed. Officers quoted him as saying he "wanted the money to have a good time."

Police said the "plot" was aimed at Harry Smith, a farmhand, who remarked he "couldn't raise that much money in 10 years."

DIVORCEE WEDS TAXI DRIVER

International News Service.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Sept. 15.—The former Mrs. Ruth Thurston Maitland Dickson, 31, daughter of a Washington (D. C.) physician, was on her third honeymoon today after a hectic day in which she was married to Dewey Howard, 31, a Las Vegas taxicab driver.

The new Mrs. Howard, the divorced wife of Lieut. Lester J. Maitland, noted Army aviator, and also the ex-wife of Cecil B. Dickson, a writer, appeared at the clerk's office with Howard to obtain a marriage license.

They obtained the license—but forgot to sign the document. Remedying this little slip, they lost their automobile keys, which finally were found in the clerk's office.

After being married by Justice P. H. Springer, Howard discovered that in his excitement he had forgotten to bring the marriage fee, but the judge smiled at the pretty bride and said:

"Tomorrow will be O. K."

MOTORISTS SEE DEATH PLUNGE FROM BRIDGE

Many motorists in East Ohio street saw the man mount the railing and plunge into the shallow water.

The body, stuck in the mud, was recovered a short time later by Conrad Walletz, 16, of 2105 Lautner street, and Frank Bach, 19, of 2031 Lautner street.

Deputy Coroner R. D. Newman said Poturica, also known as John Polaritz, had been despondent over ill health and unemployment.

Relatives told Newman that Poturica, employed at the stockyards 18 years, recently underwent a major operation. When he returned to work after leaving the hospital he was told his job had been eliminated, Newman was informed, he reported.

Solero, father of six children, was said to have admitted entering the United States in March, 1905, at New York, by deserting the steamship Madonna, on which he served as a seaman. His application for naturalization said he arrived in 1909 on the steamship Kaiserin Augusta Victoria.

OBITUARY

William L. Washington.

Word was received at Carnegie Institute yesterday that William Lanier Washington, a descendant of two of George Washington's brothers and a former Pittsburgher, had died at his home at Wakefield, Conn.

In 1917 he sold his famous copy of the Houdon bust of George Washington to the Carnegie Institute.

In 1890 he became president of the Laurel Land Company of Pittsburgh, and later was president and general manager of the Pittsburgh Sheet Steel Manufacturing Company. He left Pittsburgh in 1900.

Mr. Washington inherited from his father one-third interest in the Washington family burial ground at Wakefield, Va., in which, in an ancient arched vault, 10 members of the family, including the father of the President, are buried. This interest he conveyed in recent years, in common with other heirs of the family, to the Wakefield Memorial Association.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

GAME HERE TONIGHT FIRST IN COUNTRY

Pittsburgh tonight will have the distinction of being the scene of the first intercollegiate football game in the country for the season of 1933, with Frank Wolf's Waynesburg College team assisting the Duquesne University eleven in hoisting the local curtain at Forbes Field. This number starts the city's fifth year of night football, which the Dukes introduced here with a game against Geneva on November 1, 1929. In line with the steady growth in popularity of the moonlight contests, the nocturnal idea will get a bigger play locally this fall than ever, as in addition to the seven college games which the Dukes will stage under the lamps at Forbes Field, three others will be put on at the same park by the new Pittsburgh professional team to usher in all-star National League competition.

Frank Wolf

The season as a whole will be the most extensive for big-time football that Pittsburgh ever has known. No fewer than 21 games are scheduled for the Pitt Stadium and Forbes Field gridirons. There are 17 collegiate and four professional attractions on the home slate—three professional games on Wednesday nights, seven college contests on Friday nights, nine colle- events on Saturday afternoons, one college tilt on Thanksgiving Day, and one pro game on a Sunday afternoon, the last-mentioned attraction having been listed for November 12 to introduce Sunday professional sports here, provided the fans do their part by turning out on election day and making such sports legal with their votes.

FRISCH DENIES 'STALLING' CHARGE

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Manager Frankie Frisch, of the St. Louis Cardinals, today said he was at a loss to understand the verbal attack made on him by Gabby Street, former manager of the Cardinals.

Street was reported as saying that Frisch had not put forth his best efforts while Street was manager of the Cards.

Frisch emphatically denied he ever had been in danger of being fined $5,000 and suspended in 1932, as Street declared in his statement at Joplin. He said:

"I've belonged to seven pennant-winning teams and always have given the best that was in me and feel that I need say no more, as my record as a ball player speaks for itself."

Breadon expressed surprise at Street's statements. He said:

"I am very fond of Gabby and do not want to contradict him. However, I do not remember any such incident. We did everything we could to back him up.

"When we made the managerial change he told me Frisch had hustled all through the year and that if there was any blame to be placed for the club's failure to be higher in the race no part of that blame should be assigned to Frank."

Believe It Or Not (Reg. by U. S. Patent Office) By Ripley

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: A GREAT DEAL IN LITTLE—In 1883 a Jewish candidate for village scribe was refused an examination in Linz, Austria, for the curious reason that Jews cannot qualify for a writing position. To refute this curious opinion, Prof. Schreiber, a famous calligrapher, addressed an unusual missive to Franz Joseph I, Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary, on the Emperor's birthday, August 18, 1883. It consisted of a congratulatory message of 400 words, written entirely on the edge of an ordinary visiting card in a space measuring 1/88 of an inch.

SHARKEY BOUT POSTPONED

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—The 10-round fight between Jack Sharkey, of Boston, and King Levinsky, of Chicago, scheduled for tonight at Comiskey Park, was postponed until next Monday because of threatening weather.

It was the sixth time the date has been changed for the battle between the former heavyweight champion and Chicago's Kingfish. Five dates were set before Sharkey finally signed.

SERIES GAME POSTPONED

The fourth game of the Dormont Books playoff series for the City League championship probably will be played at Greenlee Field Sunday afternoon. A second effort to play the game at Olympia Park last night was unavailing. The fray was rescheduled for tonight but was called off shortly after noon today when no sun appeared to dry up the soggy field.

By JESS CARVER

Instead of the Blue Eagle forcing a retreat this time, it is up to Duquesne University's football Dukes, who battle Waynesburg College's Wolfpack in the district and nation's collegiate football inaugural under the lights at Forbes Field tonight.

DUKES FAVORITES

Although they'll enter tonight's fracas the favorites, the Dukes will have their work cut out for them. Waynesburg has a formidable first eleven, well coached by Frank Wolf, and sparked by another of those "good-little-men" players, Rab Currie, who does his damage from left halfback. The Wolfpack is experienced and fairly heavy and strong enough to beat the Dukes unless the locals are up to snuff.

Both teams are more or less crippled for the contest. The Dukes will miss Jim McDonald, a Waynesburg lad, by the way, who was to have played right halfback. McDonald has been entertaining a flock of boils and hardly is in trim far action. His place will be taken by Steve Marin, with De Luca at left half, Joe Cutrona at quarterback and Zaninelli in at fullback to complete the makeup of the backfield.

The Wolfpack also will have a replacement at right half also. Fred Rollanson, veteran star, and a pip of a punter, being hors de combat with a leg injury. Andy Sepsi, a brother of the Dukes' backfield reservist of last year, has been inserted into Rollanson's slot. Currie will play left half, the veteran and accomplished Adam Donnelly is to run the team from quarterback with Conroy in at fullback.

MANCUSO INJURED

Waynesburg may be handicapped further, and seriously, too, if Capt. Weltie Mancuso (not the Giant catcher) is unable to get into the action. Mancuso too has a leg injury.

Duquesne's line will be guarded at the terminals by Capt. Al Krankota and Jerry Baker. Niccolai and Sinko are slated for the tackle positions, with Rado and Weinberg at the guards and Ben Ciccone at center.

RAIN MAY INTERFERE

Continued rain and a resultant slippery and treacherous playing field will not serve to enhance the offensive play of either eleven, and may seriously handicap the Dukes. A wet ball will play havoc with whatever aerial maneuvers have been planned by either team.

The attendance is expected to number in the neighborhood of 15,000, give or take a few thousand if the weather clears up or becomes more inclement. The kickoff is slated for 8:45 o'clock, the starting time having been moved back to accommodate the folks who will accompany the Wolf pack from out of Greene County.

FAVORITES BOW IN AMATEUR

JONES PRAISES PERFORMANCE OF MUNGER

By BOBBY JONES

(Only Golfer Ever to Win the American Open and Amateur and the British Open and Amateur Championships the Same Year.)

CINCINNATI, Sept. 15.—The last of the favorites passed out of the United States amateur golf tournament when Lawson Little Beat Ross Somerville on the thirty-fifth green yesterday and now there are four players left in the semi-final to fight it out. Although each one has more than earned his place in today's round, I think it is reasonably safe to say that few would have named more than one to go this far before the tourney opened. Dunlap, on his showing abroad might have been that one, but Munger is only a schoolboy, and it has been some time since either Marston or Little have been real factors.

Bobby Jones

Despite the fact that the youngster has played fine golf all week, Jack Munger's defeat of Westland was something of a surprise to me.

YOUNGSTER STEADY

I expected the Chicago man to outsteady the Texas youth. But the shoe was actualiy on the other foot. Westland made a great bid with some wonderful chipping and putting in the closing holes, but the kid had outplayed him and gained too much lead and he refused to crack in the stretch run.

The Marston-Noyes match, after sed-sawing all day, developed a thrilling finish. Each was under par in the morning, scoring flat 70c. Each had three straight birdies in the first four holes of the second nine.

Max started home with 3, 3, 2, 4, and found himself matched by Noyes with 4, 3, 2, 3. In the afternoon both began to have trouble. It looked at first as though Noyes would walk away with the afternoon round, but a lead of three for him through the fifth became a deficit of three at the fifteenth.

MAX'S PUTTER FAILS

Having arrived at the dormie stage, Marston's putter began to let him down. He lost 16 and 17 to par figures, and then hit his second on the eighteenth into the road behind the green. From there he played a miraculous chip back six feet from the hole, but when Noyes' putt from 12 feet stopped on the edge of the hole, laying a partial stymie, Marston's putt knocked his opponent's ball in. To go from dormie 3 to even is always disturbing, but Max kept his grip and played the two extra holes in par figures. Noyes made a great showing, but his assignment was a little too much for him to handle.

Somerville was never quite happy with his game and Little played quite well, recovering splendidly. Wednesday's two extra-hole battles did not help the Canadian. He seemed tired and the least bit uncertain.

MUNGER NO SETUP

The soaked course ought to help Little with his booming tee shots today. The rain of yesterday has made the going a bit sloppy, but the lifting and cleaning of balls on the putting greens prevented its doing much damage to scores.

Marston, out of the picture for several years, has played some fine golf this week. He has at least as good chance as any left to win the championship. He will have the advantage of vast experience when he plays Munger, but the boy is far from being a setup.

Dunlap is not a natural golfer, but he is a hard worker and usually a splendid hitter. His game will be somewhat of a contrast with the slashing play of Little, but the match ought to be close.

Dundee-Yarosz Repeat May Draw $25,000

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

'Member the big fuss we made around here about the first meeting between Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, and Vince Dundee, of Newark, N. J., which drew $21,000 at Forbes Field?

Well that hullabaloo is as nothing compared with the manner in which their return bout in Dundee's home town next Monday night, for which Yarosz, the victor in the first clash, is to receive a guarantee of $5,000 with a privilege of a percentage of the gross receipts, is being steamed up.

Ted Yarosz

If it was a "natural" here, it is twice a natural in Jersey. They've never seen Dundee lose a fight over there—and are they excited! The advance sale is well on its way to the $10,000 mark and going strong. They look for a turnout of 15,000 fans and receipts of not less than $25,000. It's a matter of civic pride with them. They want to show Pittsburgh that they can outdraw this city with the match and at the same time believe Dundee when he says he had an off night here and are rooting for him to beat our Teddy.

The Mayor of Newark was "mugged" when he and friends purchased tickets for the show. The pass list has been entirely suspended and there will be no "Chinamen" in the throng. Tickets are selling for $1, $2 and $3, the same prices that prevailed here. If Yarosz repeats his easy victory he'll just about own Newark. Many of the New York scribes will look in on the shindy, and Teddy will be able to write his own ticket to crash the Big City for a middleweight title match.

Here are some quotes from Dundee:

"Yarosz was just a lucky fellow to catch me on one of my few off nights . . . It will be a different story this time. My mistake in the first fight was in trying to figure him out . . . I learned too late that the only way to fight him was the way I did in the last two rounds, which was to plunge after him and keep throwing punches . . . He is so fast and alert that he will outscore any opponent who waits on him."

Sport Vignettes

Duquesne University's Night Riders have no part of an easy assignment in tackling Frank Wolf's Waynesburg College Tri-State Conference champions in their opening football game at Forbes Field tonight . . . Waynesburg's Yellow Jackets last year defeated Penn State for the second straight year and also won over Geneva . . . The Dukes can't very well afford to start off with a defeat, so look for a battle.

There is something wrong with a boxing scoring system when the referee scores three rounds against a boxer for accidently striking low punches and the judges do not take them into consideration, as was the case in the Barney Ross-Tony Canzoneri fight for the world lightweight title the other night . . . Referee Arthur Donovan scored four rounds for Canzoneri, eight for Ross and three even . . . If he had not detracted from Canzoneri's rounds, his total would have read: Canzoneri, seven rounds; Ross, five; three even.

No wonder the fans rave when they are not aware of technicalities which are being weighed in the balance . . . To this writer, it seems that if a boxer fouls as often as three times the referee should stop the fight and award it to his foe; if he does not consider the violations, intentional or otherwise, sufficient to merit such punishment, he should throw them out of consideration and award the rounds on a basis of effective scoring, as the judges did in this instance, when one of them voted for Ross . . . The referee is quoted as saying, when his attention was called to the fact that Canzoneri would have been the winner on his scorecard if he had not taken away three rounds for the low punches, that he hadn't thought of that. . . . And all that was at stake was a championship of the world!

Bobby Burns, former South Side lightweight, now boxing instructor at the Keystone A. C., is training Al Sunseri and has him ready for bouts . . . New York University, which plays Carnegie Tech again at the Yankee Stadium on November 25, has no less than six Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia youths on its varsity squad this fall . . . They are Capt. Harry (Spooks) Temple, halfback, of Altoona and Bellefonte Academy; Bill Abee, back, and Pete Zaremba, the Olympic weight thrower, tackle, from Aliquippa; John Joynt, center, from Wilkinsburg High School; Basilio Marchi, center, from Parkersburg, W. Va., and George Hardy, end, from Morgantown, W. Va., and Bellefonte Academy . . . All are seniors except Hardy, who is a sophomore . . . Temple ran back a kickoff 64 yards for a touchdown against Georgetown last fall.—HARRY KECK.

N. B. F. TOURNEY DRAW SLATED FOR TONIGHT

The draw will be made at the Fort Pitt Hotel at 8 o'clock tonight for the National Baseball Federation tournament, which gets under way here tomorrow.

The field has been reduced to 12 teams by the withdrawal of the Indianapolis champion because of lack of funds to make the trip.

The twice Federation champion, the Fisher team of Cleveland, was eliminated in its district series and will not compete.

A committee composed of John Duggan, of Cincinnati; H. G. Johnson, of Detroit, and W. S. Haddock, of Pittsburgh, will supervise the details of the tourney.

Tomorrow's schedule probably will call for two games at Greenlee Field, and with Forbes Field, Olympia and Frick parks being used.

Pittsburgh will be represented by the Immaculate Heart team, which won the Greater Pittsburgh elimination tournament.

A third effort will be made this evening to play the fourth game of the playoff series for the City League championship between the Book and Dormont nines. Last evening's contest, scheduled for Olympia Park, was ordered postponed by President Everett Sweeney because of rain.

KURTH GIVEN ROCKNE CUP

SOUTH BEND, Sept. 15.—Mrs. Knute K. Rockne came into the football spotlight at Notre Dame today when she presented the All-America Captain's Cup for 1932 to Joe Kurth, giant tackle of last year's Fighting Irish.

Hereafter this trophy will be presented annually to the captain of the team selected by the All-America Board of Football. Kurth is the first recipient of the award and was elected captain by his 10 All-America teammates at the end of the 1932 season. The other members of last year's team being as follows: Moss, Purdue; Petoskey, Michigan; Smith, Southern California; Smith, Colgate; Corbus, Stanford; Krueger, Marquette; Newman, Michigan; Hitchcock, Auburn; Heller, Pittsburgh; Horstmann, Purdue.

CISSELL LOSES APPENDIX

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Chalmer (Bill) Cissell, infielder for the Cleveland Indians, underwent an appendicitis operation early today at New York Postgraduate Hospital. Afterwards, an announcement at the hospital said his condition was "very good."

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Please excuse Uncle Nick for nickering—I mean Uncle Nick for snickering—as he writes this, but I just heard the Reds' ball club is in control of some Cincinnati banks. And that's all you need to know.

Nick Altrock

I don't suppose Donie Bush can select a pitcher for tomorrow's game without the chairman of the board and the cashier O. K.ing it. I'll bet they have the runners bonded before they let them steal bases, and, if they're still selling beer at Redland park, I imagine draft clerks from the banks are tending bar.

It sure must be tough to have bankers running a club. The loan committee probably looks at the National League standing and wants to know why Donie Bush don't get a higher per cent. The receiving tellers doubtless criticize the technique of the Cinci catchers and the water cooler in the dugout's probably listed as a frozen asset of the banks.

And, when the season's over, I wouldn't be surprised if they seized Red Lucas as collateral for the left field bleachers. Ho-Hum! I never though baseball would get around to this.

ST. VINCENT BUSY

LATROBE, Pa., Sept. 14.—The final cut having been made, the St. Vincent Bearcats are rapidly getting into shape for their first game on October 1. Al Monaco, crack linesman of Peabody High, looks very promising, and is giving last year regulars plenty of competition.

DORMONT, MT. LEBANON AWAIT WHISTLE

SCOTT TO MEET CANONSBURG TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN

An attractive program of games, topped by the "natural" involving Mt. Lebanon High School, coached by Henry Leucht, and Dormont, coached by Sam Smith, at Dormont High School Field, is offered the followers of scholastic football this afternoon and evening.

Henry Leucht

With few exceptions the contests offered today are opening battles for the schools involved. Mt. Lebanon and Dormont have been rivals in all branches of sport for years and their battles always attract the fans of the South Hills district. Last season, Mt. Lebanon, through the great work of Bill Davidson, now at Temple University, scored a 25-0 victory over Dormont, and the Smith-coached eleven is determined to even that score this afternoon.

Besides a well-filled program of afternoon tussles, four night engagements are listed for disposal.

Scott High seeks its second straight victory under the lights at North Braddock by meeting Canonsburg. Brentwood is the attraction at Homestead High School. Braddock invades New Castle to help Phil Bridenbaugh's class AA champion open its season, while Ellsworth-Cokeburg is the attraction at Charleroi, where it meets Steve Stepanian's Cougars.

School Notes

The Donora Wildcats will pry off the lid of their season tomorrow against Redstone Township. The game will be played at Donora. The schools did not clash last year.

Three members of the class AA combine play their first games tomorrow. Pitcairn, making its bow as a class A school, visits Turtle Creek. Sewickley Township plays at Jeannette and Avalon is the attraction at Wilkinsburg.

Jeannette, coached by Markley Barnes, and Ambridge, tutored by Moe Rubenstein, risk unbroken strings of victories tomorrow. Jeannette goes after its eleventh in succession against Sewickley Township, while Ambridge seeks its tenth in a row by clashing with Monaca.

Two old rivals tangle tomorrow when Crafton and Coraopolis clash at Coraopolis. Crafton scored a 13-7 victory over Coraopolis last season and Coach Pop Wenrich's boys are out to hand their rivals a similar dose Saturday.

John Honse's Ford City eleven, lacking the great Odeal Pryor, pries off the lid against Dayton Vocational. Ford City was an easy winner last season, scoring a 53-0 triumph, and there is no reason to believe Dayton will offer any stronger opposition tomorrow.

Coach Biery's Trinity High eleven faces a real test in its first battle of the season at Uniontown tomorrow. Uniontown, beaten by Scott, 6-0, in its opener, hopes to get started against Trinity.

The W. P. I. A. L. will hold a regular league meeting at Fifth Avenue High tomorrow morning and all schools are asked to have representatives, as there are several important questions to be taken up concerning the football campaign.

Polo Teams Tie At Waynesburg Fair

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 15.—The Charleroi and Monongahela polo teams battled to a 5-5 tie in an exhibition contest staged at the Waynesburg fair yesterday. The game was called at the end of the fifth chukker on account of rain.

The rain also forced a curtailment of the harness racing program after four heats had been run off.

AMATEURS RAINED OUT

Rain last night prevented the opening of the Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament at Hickey Park, Millvale. An attempt will be made to get the affair under way tonight. Additional entries have brought the field up to 147 contestants. If rain prevents tonight, the battling will get underway tomorrow night. Four nights will be required for the eliminations.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Golden Gloves amateur tournament, Hickey Park, Millvale.
George Manley vs. Wesley Ketchel, 10 rounds, Hollywood, Cal.
Gorilla Jones vs. Johnny Romero, 10 rounds, San Diego, Cal.
Tommy Paul vs. Little Dempsey, 10 rounds, San Francisco.

PONZIS SEEK GAMES

The Ponzi Club of the West End, consisting of former Wabash players, is seeking games with junior lightweight elevens. Write Thomas Brennan, 430 South Main street, West End, or call Walnut 2111 between 7 and 8 p. m.

GRAPHIC GOLF

GOODMAN'S SHORT GAME

Johnny Goodman's victory in the recent National Open also was a victory for the short game. His shots to the green were extremely accurate, as the chart of the eighteenth hole above on which he scored a birdie 3 will testify. Even more spectacular were his chip shots to the green and unerring putts. Goodman's backswing, while not as full as that of many of the golfing stars, seems to suit his game. It is practically a three-quarter swing in length, which allows his right arm to stay well into the side. Flexible hip action allows a full body turn and at the finish of the stroke the right shoulder is under the left. Although he wastes no time in making any of his shots, and this eliminates the chance of tenseness setting in, his shots are unhurried.

Long's Sport Comment

ball as being too lively, and the American refusing to adopt the pellet used in the senior circuit, a type somewhere between the two might solve the problem of a uniform ball for 1934, sounded good to Bill Terry.

Bill Terry

The Giant manager says the National League ball is too dead, and the American League ball is too lively, and he expresses the hope that for next season the leagues will strike a happy medium and have a uniform sphere in the majors. Terry thinks it is ridiculous to pick an all-America team under present conditions, as the two leagues are playing distinctly different varieties of baseball and comparative batting averages and pitching records mean nothing. Bill admits that the dead ball may have helped the Giants this year, but adds that he also has some hitters who have been hurt by the soggy pill. He believes that ringing hits and a little more life in the leather would make for a more interesting game.

BROOKLYN MAY NOT RETAIN HACK WILSON

Brooklyn critics and fans are speculating as to the future of Hack Wilson, and the consensus of opinion appears to be that the one-time home run king may not survive Max Carey's rebuilding program for 1934. At present Wilson is only a part-time player, which hurts his value, as he needs regular work and lots of it to keep down his weight. Hack is popular in Flatbush, but it is believed Carey will be willing to trade him next winter if the chance offers.

The deadened ball ruined Wilson as a home run hitter, and his value to any club next year will depend on what kind of pellet is in use in the National League. His current batting mark is only .274, his poorest major league average except that of .261 in 1931, his final year with the Cubs.

HORSEMEN READY FOR DORSEYVILLE RACES

With the approach of fall, horsemen of the Pittsburgh district are readying their mounts for the one-day race meetings that are staged annually at this time. The first of these meetings, which feature flat races as well as steeplechase events, will be offered to the horse-loving public tomorrow afternoon at Dorseyville, in the Fox Chapel district.

This meeting will differ from any other held in this section in that it is being sponsored and conducted by members of the 308th United States Cavalry, and another feature that makes it stand out is that it is being held for a worthy unit, that of developing the training center of the military unit. Six races are carded, to start at 2 o'clock. The feature, a three-mile timber steeplechase, will be the closing number. Maj. E. J. Hubbard, general chairman, has announced that there will be a large number of entries from Virginia as well as Pennsylvania, and it is expected the races will attract a large crowd to the new course. Polo having gripped the sports fans of this district, there will be a race for polo players on their ponies.

SHARKEY LIKELY TO DEFEAT LEVINSKY

Jack Sharkey, separated from the world heavyweight ring title in his first defense of it, makes his start over the comeback trail by meeting King Levinsky for 10 rounds in Chicago.

Jack Sharkey

There is little doubt among boxing men that Sharkey will be the winner. The tip-off on the general feeling was the action of Philadelphia promoters in matching the former champion with Tommy Loughran for Pennsylvania's first legalized 15-round bout on September 17, a card that wouldn't be worth a whole lot if Jack were to take a licking in the Chicago affair, postponed from tonight to next Monday.

Even with his best days behind him, Sharkey still looks to be entirely too fast, and too good a boxer and hitter for Levinsky to cope with successfully. The erratic ex-gob never is a safe bet under any conditions, nor against any opponent, but he will be doing something even more surprising than usual if he doesn't beat the plodding Chicago heavyweight decisively. Whether Sharkey can fight his way to the top again is another question. Perhaps he is sincere in the avowed endeavor, but the best guess is that the $25,000 guarantee he is getting for each of his first two fights influenced him more in his return to the ring than did any prospect he could see for the winning back of the title.

ITALIAN STAR ENTERS SWIM

By STEVE HEALEY

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Twenty-two entries received today brought the total number of entries to 47 in the first annual William Randolph Hearst-Herald and Examiner 15-mile swim marathon that will be held here Sunday, October 1.

Gianni Gambi, the champion of Europe and the greatest Italian swimmer of this decade, stole a march on a reception committee yesterday.

Gambi had been in Toronto for the annual Canadian National Exhibition swim. He wired his entry and elaborate plans were made by the foremost Italian citizens of Chicago to greet their champion.

But the Italian champ eased into town with his interpreter and two managers on an unexpected train and hied himself to a North Side hotel. While the reception committee was practicing its speeches of welcome, the "Italian Windmill" was churning the waters of the Lincoln Park lagoon.

Horse Wins, Saves Self From Toils Of Sheriff

CINCINNATI, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Abe Furst is a horse whose races have been many, but slow. To aging O. G. Brown, Abe was a last hope.

City Sheriff James Burgess appeared yesterday at Brown's home. He said:

"Mr. Brown, we have an attachment on Abe and we are serving it on you. Me must take the horse."

The debt was $100.

Brown looked despairingly at the sky, which was gray with rain. He entreated:

"Won't you let him run today? I'm sure he'll win."

The third, a claiming race, at Coney Island yesterday, offered a purse of $600. The sheriff relented, Abe Furst ran.

RAIN SPOILS FAIR

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 15.—The harness horse racing and boxing bouts carded for the Mercer County Fair yesterday were postponed by fair officials due to the 24-hour rainfall. Efforts will be made to resume the racing today.

SPEEDY BACKS BIG ASSET TO GRID ELEVEN

By HOWARD JONES

Member, All-America Board of Football.

Every year at the beginning of the football season, football coaches are confronted with the selection of players for each position. The success or failure of a football team may depend considerably upon this placement of players and if a coach is not careful he can very easily put a player in a position to which his physical qualifications are not adapted. Possibly the most frequent error some coaches make is to sacrifice speed for weight in the selection of a backfield.

Howard Jones

The University of Notre Dame has had a fine football team every season for a long period of years, and if one has observed closely, he will have noticed that never does it have a slow man in the backfield. Take the "Four Horsemen" with Miller, Layden, Crowley and Stuhldreher, and you cannot pick a slow man in that backfield. Take the 1930 Notre Dame team composed of Carideo, Brill, Schwartz and Mullins, and while every man might not have been as fast as the "Four Horsemen" nevertheless there was ample speed.

SPEED ESSENTIAL

Backfield speed is not only essential for offensive purposes but for defensive as well fast men are absolutely necessary.

Another strong point, which is paramount in a coach's mind, in the development of a football team is smoothness in perfection of offense. A team cannot have this qualification when players are compelled to learn more than one position on a team. May I take the Notre Dame team at present and during the period when they were so ably coached by Knute Rockne. They have always trained men in one position and seldom deviated from this procedure. Last year, for instance, you would always see Koken and Lukats at left half; Melinkovich and Banas at fullback; Jaskwhich and Vejar at quarterback, and so on.

Perhaps a coach is sometimes criticised for keeping a good man on the bench in reserve. I have used this policy somewhat, striving to keep my team strength up to par when making substitutions. Then injuries may take a good player out of the game at any time and any coach likes to be in a position that when he sends in a substitution he can feel confident he is not weakening his team.

Last year, at Southern California, I was confronted with the problem of finding a fullback to come up to our usual standard. The loss of Shaver and Musick created this problem. For several games it was necessary to place an extra burden on Homer Griffith, playing him at fullback as well as at quarterback, where he usually started the game. It was necessary for me to take Gordon Clark from another position to help out this situation.

HOPES TO AVOID SHIFT

As Southern California starts its 1933 season it is my hope that the new men coming in as candidates for fullback, will perform so well that it will not be necessary to shift Griffith from quarterback to fullback to get the best results, as I have always maintained that a player will be more efficient in one position rather than alternating. Each position carries different assignments and finesse in play and it is not a simple matter to alternate in two positions and do it efficiently. Besides, football is a hard game and a good man deserves some chance for rest.

One newspaper writer recently said that we at Southern California have been fortunate in regards to injuries to good men. This is true to some extent and on the other hand we aim to be careful in scrimmaging and, if anything, underwork rather than overwork. No player in football should ever be scrimmaged until exhausted because it is then that he is most subjected to the danger of injury.

AMATEUR GOLF SEMI-FINALS ALL SQUARE

BULLETIN.

KENWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, CINCINNATI, Sept. 15.—Max Marston was leading Jack Munger, 2 up, after 18 holes of their 36-hole semi-final round match in the National amateur golf championship here today. Lawson Litle was 1 up on George Dunlap after 14 holes in the other semi-final duel.

KENWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, CINCINNATI, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Max R. Marston, of Philadelphia, former titleholder, and 18-year-old Jack Munger, of Dallas, Tex., were all square after nine holes of their 36-hole semi-final duel in the United States Amateur golf championship today. The cards:

Munger out	436	435	445	—38

W. Lawson Little, Jr., of San Francisco, made a great comeback to finish the first nine holes all square with George T. Dunlap, Jr., his New York rival. Little dropped the first three holes before he pulled his game together and leveled the match by winning the sixth, seventh and eighth in a row. The cards:

Little out	546	434	445	—39
Dunlap out	435	435	555	—39

Munger took the lead twice on the outgoing nine, but lost it on each of the long par-five holes. Marston missed a chance to go in front by three-putting the ninth, where the youngster was trapped. A drizzling rain fell most of the week, due to the weather and downfall of the big favorites. Scarcely 200 spectators followed each semi-final.

DIZZY IS FIRST '34 HOLDOUT

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Talkative Jerome Herman Dean came forward today as the first holdout of the 1934 baseball season.

While, of course, Dizzy's holding out isn't official yet, the strong-armed Cardinal pitcher said he had been negotiating with club officials for more than a month and that they are more than $5,000 apart. He said:

"I don't think I'm asking too much when I set my figure at $15,000. While I don't want to take credit for drawing all the fans who see our games, I believe I draw most of them on the days I am scheduled to pitch."

Dean said his 1933 contract called for $7,500, plus a $1,000 bonus for signing it. The modest one said, anent his 1934 contract:

"And I can afford to hold out for what I think I'm worth. You know, some of those fellows think I'm dizzy just because that's my nickname. They think I just collect my pay and throw it away, but instead I've been 'socking' it. Then, too, I can always find something to do. Why, they're going to pay me $1,000 to pitch for the House of David team when the National League season ends. I'm going on the stage, too, at $100 a week."

SHOOTERS TIE FOR LEAD

B. C. Anderson and J. E. Wampler, Jr., tied for high honors in the post-season shoot staged by the West Penn Trapshooters' League at Wilkinsburg yesterday. They will shoot off at a later date.

NAMES IN SPORTS NEWS

RUSSELL HOUGHTON, of Clark, Pa., has been elected baseball captain for 1934 at Gettysburg College by a mail poll of the 1933 baseball lettermen.

FREDERICK PERRY, of England, newly crowned singles champion of the United States, has been seeded No. 1 in the Pacific Southwest tournament, which gets under way at Los Angeles today.

HAROLD SCHRADER, Seattle boxer, died yesterday in a Seattle hospital of brain concussion received in a bout at Aberdeen, nine days ago, with Les Funk, Grays Harbor middleweight.

MISS HELEN HICKS, former national champion, defeated MRS. CATHERINE S. EASTMAN, of Rye, N. Y., in the final round of the Greenwich Country Club invitation tournament at Greenwich, Conn., yesterday, 5 and 4.

CORP. J. C. CROSS, of the Pennsylvania state highway patrol, won the individual championship after two days of shooting at Camp Ritchie, Md., yesterday, defeating the best marksmen from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia.

The Navy and Notre Dame will meet in a football game in Cleveland's municipal stadium in 1934, according to an announcement today from JOSEPH S. SILBER, manager of the stadium.

DETZEL MAY BE TACKLE

Art Detzel, of Erie, came to Pitt with visions of becoming a backfield star. As a freshman last year, he discovered the coaches had other ideas and found himself alternating at guard and center.

He started this fall as a guard, but yesterday, Coach Sutherland decided he might do as a tackle, and to tackle he was shifted. Now he's battling to displace such proven stars as Walton, Meredith, Hoel, Love and Oleojnicsak.

W. J. IMPROVED

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 15.—Two weeks of training completed and two weeks from the opening game with Pitt September 30, finds Washington and Jefferson College's varsity rounding into an eleven that may completely surprise the Prexies' most ardent fans—even Hank Day himself.

Despite the slow advance of the President squad in working into Day's intricate offensive system, there are signs on all fronts in the W. & J. grid camp that a well-balanced eleven, strong defensively and fairly strong offensively, will be ready soon for the opening tussle with the Panthers at Pittsburgh in one of the season's early major contests.

Senior Golf Champ Faces Uphill Fight

RYE, N. Y., Sept. 15.—(INS.)—A record-breaking card was needed today by Findlay S. Douglas, defending champion, to retain his United States Senior golf title.

Douglas, former president of the United States Golf Association, braved wind and rain yesterday at the rolling Apewamis course to score an 83, and today he will have to register an even par 72, two under the tournament record, to overcome Raleigh W. Lee, of Columbus, O., who completed the 36-hole test with an aggregate of 156.

Albert W. Haigh, of Westchester Hills, led Douglas and the second group of veterans who started play in the tourney yesterday. He scored an 82. Claude H. Foster, four time senior champion of Ohio, also was in the running, making a first-day 83.

U. S., ANZAC STARS SPLIT

LAKE FOREST, Ill., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—America and Australia wound up all square in the tennis exhibition matches yesterday. The Aussie doubles combination of Adrian Quist and Don Turnbull swept the national champions, George M. Lott, Jr., and Lester Stoefen, to defeat in three sets, 1-6, 11-9, 6-3, after Frank X. Shields had routed Jack Crawford, Aussie captain, to give the United States a 3-2 lead.

In the opening singles match Wilmer Allison, hard driving Texan and American captain, took the measure of Turnbull, 6-3, 6-3, and Shields out maneuvered Crawford, 5-7, 6-3, 6-2.

OPEN POLO POSTPONED

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—The start of the open polo championships, scheduled for tomorrow at International Field, Meadow Brook, today was indefinitely postponed because of continuous rains which have made the field unfit for play.

MRS. ROSE CROWNED WOMEN'S GOLF CHAMP

OAKMONT GIRL DEFEATED IN FINAL MATCH

By TOM BIRKS

Mrs. J. Bernd Rose, of the Allegheny Country Club, won her fourth Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania championship this morning when she defeated Miss Betty Abernethy, of the Oakmont Country Club, in the final match of 18 holes, 6 and 5. The match was played over the Allegheny Country Club course.

Mrs. Rose, the first to win the tournament four times, played almost perfect golf against her Oakmont opponent, having only two bad shots, her drive off the seventh tee and her second going to the eleventh green, when she hit a tree.

Mrs. Rose out	553	545	456—42
Miss Abernethy out	563	557	565—47
Mrs. Rose in	554	5
Miss Abernethy in	654	6

SECOND FLIGHT

THIRD FLIGHT

Mrs. L. Kerr defeated Mrs. W. Ritter, 3 and 2.

CHAMPIONSHIP CONSOLATION FINAL

Mrs. H. H. Phillips defeated Mrs. B. R. Schriver, 5 and 4.

Rain Again Delays Mid-Atlantic Play

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Sharp-shooting Mid-Atlantic League pitchers have found something they can't stop—the rain.

For the second successive night rain last evening caused postponement of the fourth game between Wheeling and Zanesville in the playoff for the Mid-Atlantic pennant. If the weather permits, the fray will be played tonight. Zanesville's Grays are leading, two games to one.

BRUINS GAIN MORE GROUND ON GIANTS

Associated Press.

Whether or not they succeed in their uphill struggle to overtake the New York Giants in the National League pennant race, and their chances look good today after two straight victories over the league leaders, the Chicago Cubs at least can point with pride to their record at Wrigley Field this season.

When they put on a ninth-inning uprising yesterday and took their second rainy day decision from the giants, 4 to 2, the Cubs lifted their home game percenage to .765. They have won 52 and lost only 16 so far. This record compares well with that made by the New York Yankees last year when they won 62 of their 77 home games on the way to the world championship.

GIANTS' LEAD CUT

The Giants, still 5½ games ahead after yesterday's defeat, have won 46 and lost 22 at home for a .676 percentage, but they have been considerably more successful than Chicago on the road.

Aiming at six straight victories over the Giants, the Cubs were out to get two of them yesterday, but after braving rain and cold for one contest, the second was postponed to make a double-header tomorrow.

The final decision was reached on Cub hitting after errors on both sides and a "boner" by Manager Bill Terry, of the Giants, had figured prominently in the scoring that sent them into the ninth inning with New York leading 3-2.

Riggs Stephenson opened the last frame with a single. Babe Herman sent Riggs to third with a pinch double and then young Adolph Camilli was purposely passed. Gabby Hartnett squared off against Fred Fitzsimmons and smashed a hit into centerfield to bring in the winning runs.

SENATORS WIN

While the National League race was closing up, the Washington Senators increased their lead in the American League to nine games over the Yankees. The Senators landed an Vic Sorrell for three hits and coupled them with two walks to score three runs in the ninth and defeat Detroit, 4 to 3.

COURTS HEAVY FOR TOURNEY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Heavy courts threatened postponement of the scheduled opening matches in the first Stanton Heights invitation clay courts doubles tennis tournament on the North Aiken avenue layout late this afternoon.

Six matches are scheduled for today and the tournament will be concluded one week from Sunday.

STARS WITHDRAW

Billy O'Loughlin and Wally Arensberg, P. A. A. youths who were within two points of annexing the Allegheny Country Club doubles laurels from Arkle and Wright Hugus in the A. C. C. windup last Sunday, will not compete on the Heights, O'Loughlin being scheduled to leave for Georgetown medical school next Monday, while Arensberg begins his legal education at Harvard about the same time. The pairings:

First Round

Upper half—Dr. David O'Loughlin and Dr. John O'Loughlin vs. R. K. Miller and A. D. McCabe, Jr.; Robert Madden and Harry Wald vs. R. J. Moore and J. Howard Moore; L. W. Bughman and Jack Culbertson vs. Robert Grier and partner; W. Russell Unger and Neal O. Rumsey vs. Andrew Black and Frank Stoner; V. K. Glidden and Frank S. McClintock vs. Robert C. Schmertz and King Moore; Chauncey Hubbard and W. M. Doolittle vs. Sam Keller and William Servick; H. M. Rinehart and Austin Famariss vs. James I. Patin and Don Monjot; James Arensberg and Allerton Miller vs. Stan McCaskey and Marshall Jones.

Lower half—Frank Broida and W. McCook Reed vs. Jack Redmond and Arthur J. Glaser; John D. Beatty and William R. Spindler vs. Jack Schroeder and J. H. Higgins, II.; Charles B. Maits, Jr., and Dr. C. H. Cochran vs. George D. Henderson and Karl G. Wolfe; James Morehead and James Slocum vs. Edgar Alcorn and partner; B. F. Arkle and Paul G. Sullivan vs. W. N. James and R. F. Mehl; H. Vernon Porter and partner vs. Howard Burgwin and partner; E. A. Knoche and Carlton E. Hughes vs. R. V. Davis and Gustafson; Mahon W. Bovard and partner vs. Robert T. Lampus and Crosby Leyda.

PECULIAR CUP HISTORY

A believe-it-or-not feature worthy of Mr. Ripley's attention is embodied in the record of Harvard Cup interscholastic tennis competition here over the period of the past 10 years. Since inception of the Crimson net classic back in 1923, no school has been able to annex more than one leg on the flagon.

Inasmuch as the trophy can be captured only by an institution and not by an individual, the foregoing is exceedingly pertinent for, with the eleventh annual tourney slated to get under way next Monday, exactly 10 different scholastic names grace the winners' list so that nary a chance is there that the bowl will be retired permanently in 1933.

Billy O'Loughlin has two victories to his credit. O'Loughlin, however, represented Shady Side Academy in 1926 triumph and Duquesne University Prep in 1928 success.

Uniontown Fans To See Pro Stars

NEWELL'S GROVE, Pa., Sept. 15.—Coach Jap Douds, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, cut his daily work to a light practice this morning, as the squad will give an exhibition this evening in Uniontown, beginning at 5 o'clock. Tomorrow evening the squad will appear at Tarentum, and then the stage will be set for the opening of the National League season at Forbes Field with the New York Giants next Wednesday night.

BRAVES PLAN STRONG CLUB FOR 1934

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Watch out for the Braves of 1934!

Bill McKechnie, Big Chief of the Boston Tribe which holds forth in Pittsburgh at present, has the characteristic reserve of a Scot, but Skipper Bill is in the baseball saddle at Boston, and if money and persuasion can accomplish big things during the coming winter you will see a great Boston club next season.

McKechnie today discussed his team and the future. Bill knows only too well that his team's batting average, a paltry .250, is a far cry from championship requirements, so he will get quite drastic after the season ends. He said:

BILL REAL BOSS

"We are going to do some rebuilding before another season starts. I cannot say at this time just what will happen, but you may look for some important changes."

Bill doesn't say as much, but you can learn from other Boston sources that Judge Fuchs and all the other directors of the Boston clubs, sit up and take notice when McKechnie has the floor. They know after many years of poor financial returns that the Wilkinsburg magi has that touch that brings in the cash at the turnstiles.

McKechnie's hustling club has made a lot of money for the owners, but wherever Bill goes this seems to happen. The Buccos made slathers of money when he bossed the Pirates and Bill made plenty for the Cardinals while winning a flag at St. Louis.

SEEKS GOOD HITTERS

Rabbit Maranville's status was not commented upon by Skipper Bill, but it wasn't so long ago that McKechnie, with considerable feeling, declared that Maranville could stay with the Braves as long as Bill had any part of them.

Apparently the Boston manager will step out into the market with some cash to buy some punch players for the next campaign. There isn't a thing wrong with the fielding, pitching and spirit of the Braves, but the club shows a crying need of swatters.

As they rested yesterday, the Buccos slipped into third place in deference to the Cubs, who beat the Giants again and thus crept to within five and one-half games of the leaders.

LEW RAYMOND HERE

Lew Raymond, former local boxing matchmaker, now located in Detroit, arrived in Pittsburgh today to accompany Ted Yarosz and the latter's manager, Ray Foutts, to Newark, N. J., for Teddy's return bout with Vince Dundee next Monday night.

FIELD TRIALS TOMORROW

The Pittsburgh branch of the Eastern Field Trial Club will hold a field trial at the country place of Robert F. Maloney, near Bakerstown, at noon tomorrow. Stakes for puppies whelped on or after January 1 and for dogs of any age will be run. Entries can be made at the scene of the event.

GAINS OF EARLY STOCK SPURT CANCELED

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Indecision again seized financial markets today as news and notions bobbed about on contrary currents.

Stocks, after emulating their early spurt of yesterday, dropped back and generally canceled inaugural gains of 1 to 2 or more points. The mining shares, however, once more displayed resistance, as did a few of the farm shares and various specialties. The utilities continued heavy, most of the leaders in this group losing 1 to 2 or more points. Grains steadied following early uncertainties and cotton moved up as the dollar declined in foreign exchange dealings. Stocks seemingly paid little attention to the dollar's weakness. Bonds were rather easy.

Homestake Mining shares advanced some 11 points to another new year's high, while gains of fractions to a point or more were recorded by Cerro de Pasco, McIntyre Porcupine, Dome, United States Smelting, American Smelting, Alaska Juneau and International Nickel. American Can was run up more than 2 and Case Threshing was advanced about the same. The softer utilities included American Telephone, Public Service of New Jersey, Standard Gas and Columbia Gas. The rails did little and General Motors, United States Steel, Allied Chemical, National Distillers and du Pont were easier.

Commission house opinion on the recent erratic market tendencies was decidedly mixed. While observers with optimistic inclinations were still in the majority, there were many expressions of doubt as to whether upward resistance levels could be overcome in the near future without substantial aid from business or currency expansion.

Brokers who usually handle most of the wire orders report there is little public participation in stocks at the moment and that the principal turnover in equities is being accounted for by professional floor traders.

The new and stiffer margin requirements prescribed by the New York Stock Exchange became effective today. Some last-minute selling appeared because of the new rules, but most margined accounts had already been strengthened in preparation for the chance. Under the revised schedule, accounts of less than $5,000 must maintain a 50 per cent ratio on debit balances at all times, and those of more than $5,000 a margin of 33 1-3 per cent.

Followers of railway stocks were cheered by the announcement that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would extend the maturity dates of carrier loans currently due the corporation. This was interpreted in some quarters as an expression of faith by the administration in the future of the transportation industry. Although the net income of leading roads has been moving upward rapidly, it was felt that immediate payment of Reconstruction Finance Corporation debts might tend to interfere with rehabilitations plans of some of the systems.

GRAINS SCORE HEAVY GAINS

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Influenced by a sharp advance in British exchange, grain values scored early fresh advances today. Upturns, however, were checked as a result of profit taking. Opening unchanged to 1⅜ higher, wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started ⅛ off to ⅝ up, and subsequently altered little.

Much of the time today, wheat hovered around yesterday's closing level, and rallied promptly from small setbacks. Corn and oats backed and filled, governed chiefly by wheat market changes. Provisions were firmer, reflecting hog market upturns.

CALIFORNIA OIL MEN PLEASED WITH CODE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 15.—California oil executives are especially pleased with the oil code, and believe that they now have the set-up to put the industry on a more rational basis.

Mr. Rukeyser

Chatting with me, L. P. St. Clair, head of the Union Oil Company of California, indicated that he thought daylight was in sight. Specifically, he expressed the opinion that there would be price fixing on crude oil and gasoline within three weeks. Though the immediate effect would be to raise prices, he thought that the government would exert pressure to bring down prices through elimination of economic waste, such as needless duplication of gasoline distributing stations.

THINKS MUCH GAINED

Mr. St. Clair, who represented at Washington the larger group which opposed the Texas bloc and the array of most of the large eastern companies, thought that the industry had gained much in freedom from the limitations of the anti-trust laws in being enabled to sit down and discuss freely questions relating to price and production.

Mr. St. Clair expressed the view that the troubles of the industry had been due to excessive and unintelligent competition, rather than to any substantial decline in consumption. The over-eagerness of sales executives to increase volume, he said, had resulted in ruinous prices, and the snatching in an unprofitable manner of volume from one another.

REASON FOR OPPOSITION

The western view is that the large eastern companies opposed price fixing not so much for the stated reasons, but because in the past those very customers had been able to manipulate crude prices to their own advantage. They allege that it was their effort to break down crude prices when their tanks were empty, and to raise them arbitrarily after they had been refilled.

Incidentally, the divergence of opinion on price fixing again emphasized the breakup of the old Standard Oil trust. The California unit was on the other side of the fence from where the New York, New Jersey and Indiana company stood.

The member banks of the local Clearing House Association are all out of debt at the Federal Reserve Bank.

HUNGRY FOR LOANS

Their officers report that they are hungry for good commercial loans. A. M. Chaffey, president, Los Angeles Clearing House and chairman of the California Bank, said that, if any one brought an array of $25,000,000 of additional "good" commercial loans he could immediately place them with members of the Clearing House Association.

Heads of banks here, however, said that they would not lend to any one flying the "Blue Eagle" emblem without satisfying themselves that he was entitled to credit.

Numerous rejections, they said, include capital loans, loans for purely speculative purpose and requests from those of weak financial standing.

TIGHTENED LOANS EARLY

Financiers here assert that their capacity to withstand the deflation arose from the fact that they began to tighten their requirements on real loans three years before the serious trouble started.

The Breakfast Club here is an interesting institution for maintaining the small-town spirit of friendship in this vast metropolis of the Southwest.

Each week local or visiting celebrities are honored as guests, and asked to speak before 300 members and the microphone.

U. S. Wants Back Tax From 'Mop' Railroad

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Guy T. Helvering, United States Internal Revenue Commissioner, has requested the Interstate Commerce Commission to disapprove any plan of re-organization for the Missouri Pacific R. R. and its subsidiaries which does not adequately provide for the payment of income tax deficiencies due the federal government.

There are outstanding deficiencies in income taxes of the Missouri Pacific for the years 1920, 1924, 1925, 1926, 1928, 1929 and 1930, including interest.

Annalist Business Index Takes Drop

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Recession in manufacturing activity in late summer was reflected in the Annalist index of business activity for August. The index dropped to 84.0 thus cancelling 17 per cent of the unprecedented rise from a March level of 58.5 to 89.4 in July.

BUSINESS GAIN EXTENDED

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Reports from all parts of the country this week to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., emphasize the enlarged spending power running into millions of dollars and the rapid disappearance of suspense and apprehension noted before the NRA won general support.

The company's weekly review of business said that even the smaller merchants now are beginning to feel the benefit of the increased employment and the higher earnings of the working classes.

"Of dominant importance in the trade news this week was extension of the sustained buying movement to more remote ramifications of the elongated line which the business front now has assumed.

"The bulkier aggregate of distributive totals did not afford the sole sustaining factor to the spread of assured confidence in the potential betterment as these were reinforced by improved earnings statements from the second quarter and the first half of the third which revealed profits in encouraging contrast to the rate of losses which were general in the first quarter."

Loadings Report Likely To Show Drop for Labor Day Week

Covering a holiday period, as the figures will, the report on carloadings, due tomorrow, naturally will reveal the effect of the suspension in business of the Labor Day interval. Preliminary forecasts place the probable total around 575,000 cars, 91,000 to 92,000 under the total for the preceding week, or a decrease of 13.7 per cent, zut

4 STEPS PUSHED FOR U. S. CREDIT INFLATION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Federal credit inflation efforts progressed today on four well-defined fronts.

At the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, a billion dollars was made available for loans to industry through banks and trust and mortgage companies.

The Public Works Administration pressed for faster expenditure of its $3,000,000,000 fund as a means of putting more money into industrial and trade channels.

HARRISON SEES MOVE

In addition to these, Chairman Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee indicated his belief that some monetary inflation may be undertaken at an early date to help raise commodity prices.

After conferences with President Roosevelt, Budget Director Lewis Douglas and Gov. Eugene Black of the Federal Reserve Board, Harrison expressed to newspapermen his own opinion:

"I contemplate some action pretty quick, whether you call it inflation or not. Inflation should be carried out more drastically than it has been. My belief from those conferences I have had is that something will be done and is being done. I have a faith they are going to utilize every agency to do more than open market operating to get higher commodity prices."

JONES HAILS 'CREDIT'

Jesse Jones, chairman, who announced the RFC's new liberalized credit policy, described it as "inflation—in the form of credit." His plan involved emergency 3 per cent loans for up to six-months periods to banks and trust and mortgage companies agreeing to relend the money to industry for meeting material and payroll charges and to "assist merchants especially affected by the NRA."

Jones said institutions obtaining the emergency loans must relend at 5 per cent. He announced a cut in the RFC's basic interest rate from 4½ to 4 per cent, effective October 1. Jones further urged the organization of local mortgage companies "to supplement bank lending where loans are of a sound character, but slow."

BROKERS' LOANS UP $24,000,000

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Loans to brokers and dealers by reporting New York City member banks amounted to $890,000,000 during the week ended September 13, the Federal Reserve Board reported, representing an increase of $24,000,000 for the week. Loans for the week ended September 14, 1932, were $433,000,000.

The board's detailed distribution of the loans over the three weeks dealt with follows (000 omitted):

	Sept. 13	Sept. 6	Sept. 14, 1932
For own account	$790,000	$761,000	$408,000
For account of out-of-town Banks	92,000	96,000	20,000
For account of others	8,000	9,000	5,000

*Preliminary.

PITTSBURGH BUSINESS slumped sharply last week. This followed moderate declines in the two previous weeks.

The trend is indicated by the weekly index of business activity in the Pittsburgh district as prepared by the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Pittsburgh.

The index dropped to 69.6 in the week ended September 9. This compared with 74.4 in the week ended September 2, with 75.8 in the week ended August 26, and with 78.1 in the week ended August 19, the high point for the recovery.

The index still was in excess of a year ago when it stood at 43.7, and of two years ago when it stood at 62.8.

* * *

Decline Greatest Since Bank Crisis

THE DECLINE of the past three weeks has been the greatest since the end of the bank holiday. For the first time since the recovery period the index has slumped during a period of three consecutive weeks. Previous declines have been limited to single weeks. Most of the previous breaks in the rising trend were attributable to abnormal factors, such as the coal strike at the beginning of August.

The decline last week reflected recession in every type of activity which contributes to the general index for the district. Revised indexes for the previous week indicate that rail shipments and trade activity provided exceptions. In the week before that coal provided a solitary exception.

All the factors in the index are higher than a year ago. They are all higher than two years ago except electric power.

* * *

Coal Records Greatest Drop

THE GREATEST drop of any factor of the index took place in coal. This slumped to 77.4 last week in comparison with 97.7 in the previous week and 98.3 two weeks ago. Coal strikes have spread rapidly, but most of these were too recent to affect the index for last week, although a few labor troubles may have contributed.

The fact that the decline has been so widespread indicates that it was due to a general recession in business as a natural aftermath of buying in anticipation of higher prices a month ago.

In these discussions of the business trend in this district, based on the indexes of the Bureau of Business Research, it must be remembered that the indexes are prepared without interpretation by the bureau and that the comments are made by this writer. The indexes for each week just passed are based on preliminary figures in some cases and are subject to corrections in the following week when more complete information is available.

Penthouse

By ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

he saw one of these men again he would have reason to believe that he had begun to learn one of the primary things.

Eyed by Women

He strolled up the wide stairway to the second floor. In the hall outside the Pinnacle Club lingered lovely maidens. Shy, brazen and in between—there they were, ostensibly waiting for the men with whom they had engagements, but Jackson Durant knew that if all that seems ostensible were really frank and aboveboard the world would be a different place. Shy, averted glances, brazen invitations of the eyes, and not-too-cool indifference—all these left him unmoved.

The girl who took his hat smiled ingratiatingly. Stranger things had happened. If a big shot didn't have a regular sweetie, a smart hat-check girl might knock the props from under him. The biggest tree will fall if it's chopped in the right place. But Durant's return smile was completely impersonal, and the hat-check girl smothered a sigh. But there were other trees in Manhattan's forest of men, so her sigh was merely the faintest breath, easily stifled.

The music had ceased just before Durant arrived, and there was that clatter of voices and dishes which makes the fastidious feel that eating is a function best performed in privacy. Two hundred people, just returned from the dance floor, praised the music, the liquor, and the color of their companions' eyes. And several of these praiseworthy eyes turned upon Jackson Durant.

Not merely the hussies of the hall outside, nor the ambitious hat-check girl, but women of another world looked kindly upon the tall man with the high forehead, the keen nose and thin lips. His name ran around the room in whispers. Some nodded, some frowned, and some looked eager.

Tony Gazotti looked proud. "There he is, looking as though he owned the joint, and the rest of the building and the whole damn town besides. Tells me today that I'm a dirty-minded little rat. Can you beat it?"

Passes Approval

A too-luscious beauty edged her chair closer to the gangster. "He starts any knocking like that and I bounce a bottle off his dome," she said. "Anybody that knocks my Tony is gonna catch it right between the eyes."

"Now ain't that sweet of you, Lottie!" said Tony. "Me, I been needing a female torpedo to protect me. Listen, Lottie"—his voice grew menacing—"you bat an eyelash toward Durant and I'll toss you out in the street. He can talk to me like he wants to talk, and I don't want anybody getting fresh with him. Look at him," he chuckled, his good humor restored, "not giving one of those dames a tumble. How do you like him, Gertie?"

The slim brunette to whom he spoke nodded. "Plenty," she replied.

"Then it'll be a nice, friendly foursome," grinned Tony. "Me and Lottie and you and Durant."

Durant saw the little gangster now and started across the floor. Gertie Waxted's eyes narrowed.

"Wasn't there some chatter about him being sewed up with the Leonard doll, the one that's engaged to Siddall?" she asked.

"Washed up months ago. He's on the loose. Took the whole sextet from 'Ladies Must Love' home with him last night. When they're dealing in half-dozens, they're ready for singles. I wouldn't wish you better luck, Gertie. If there's anything I can do, I'll send you in."

Introduced to Gertie

Durant reached their table. The tiny gangster beamed on him. All over the crowded floor other people beamed. When Tony Gazotti frowned thousands of people grimaced; when he smiled the same thousands grinned. Twenty-five men in the club who had never seen Durant in their lives before would gladly have lent him anything from $50 to $500 at his request, with no further security than the fact that he obviously stood well with Gazotti. The newly-born Fifth Estate is no less powerful than its four elder brothers.

"And you don't know Lottie?" Gazotti asked. "Well, where've I been hiding her? I guess I was just plain jealous, Mr. Durant. Lottie, this is the gentleman that took the scorch right out of my pants. They had me on that seat, the double-crossing framers, but Mr. Durant took care of that. And this little lady, Mr. Durant, is Gertie Waxted, and I'm hoping you two will be great friends."

"I'd be afraid to disappoint his hope," said Gertie Waxted.

"I hope you won't be frightened into liking me," said Durant. His deliberately clumsy gallantry pleased the girl.

"It won't be terror," she said.

It wasn't terror, Durant decided, an hour or so later. He had no more than the normal masculine vanity, but Gertie Waxted's willingness to be more than friendly was unmistakeable. She was a lot of fun, too, as well as enticing.

Durant Pleased

"So you're the man that puts a grand piano in a girl's vanity case," was her opening line as they stepped upon the dance floor.

Durant groaned. "I suppose that's all over town," he said.

"Cheer up. Other things are all over town, too. I'm told you sometimes give away things that a girl can really take, and you don't ask payment, either."

"Don't be silly. If I give you anything I'll want payment."

She smiled up at him archly. "I hate to be in debt," she said.

They were on a footing of gayety when the dance was over. And after he had danced with Lottie and once again with the eager Gertie, Gazotti made a sign to his luscious inamorata, and she spoke to the other girl, whereupon both departed from the table on the pretext of repairing ravages to the complexion.

"Delightful," agreed Durant.

"And not cheap, if you know what I mean. I know one bird she took for a hundred grand, and when they had him in the can and he needed dough, she laid those hundred G's right in his lawyer's mitt. I mean, she'll take love and money, but she don't care about the money."

Junior Patrol Mail Box

And the cartoons keep coming in. Even if we can't print all of them, we are glad to get them and we have a lot of fun seeing what funny ideas some of our members get. No fooling, some of the cartoons we received this last month or two are just as funny and clever as the real comics. Thanks a lot, fellows.

Now we want to remind you again about the orchestra for the Junior Patrol program. If you can play a musical instrument we want your name. Just as soon as the orchestra is organized, it will begin practicing to play over the air, and the members will receive special training and learn to play some fine new pieces.

Ask all your members, captains. If they can play, let us know about them.

Here's a letter now from Rhoda McKercher, of 206 Homestead street, Swissvale, Pa. She sends a pledge for herself and one for her friend and writes:

"I lost my pin so I filled out a pledge to get another pin. I belong to a Junior Patrol club. Our captain received her armband and was very glad to get it. I am secretary of the club. I am sending a pledge for a girl friend of mine. She wants to join our club, but our captain told her she had to be a member of the Junior Patrol to join it. I am sending in her pledge. Hazel Miller is our captain."

Much obliged, Rhoda, and we are glad that your captain asked your friend to join the Junior Patrol before she became a regular member of your club. It's always best for new members to really sign the Junior Patrol pledge. Your cards will soon be on the way.

Frances Patricia Nobers, of 1160 Beaver avenue, writes that she may start a club. The sooner the better, Frances, and we're happy to know you have the idea. You only need 10 members before your club can elect a captain.

DISCOVERY OF THE PACIFIC OCEAN BY BALBOA (1513)

Vasco Nunez de Balboa (1475-1517), a Spaniard, settled in Haiti, suspected great waters toward the West. Guided by the Indian Chief Ponca, he penetrated with few men the forests of the Isthmus of Darien and reached the shore of the unknown ocean, calling it "Pacific" because of its apparent quietude. After his return to Haiti he became the victim of jealousy of the new governor and was beheaded. (United States History.)

READING 'LOST' LANGUAGE

Man's greatest invention is language. Early in history pictures symbolized ideas; later they represented the actual object, idea or the sound of human voice.

In further development signs for syllables were invented, followed by signs for individual letters. About 1000 B. C. the Phenicians used an alphabet of 22 letters.

The Egyptian hieroglyphs (sacred carvings) were made up by all the three methods as we know today. This knowledge we owe to the finding of the Trilingual Rosetta Stone through Napoleon's soldiers while in Egypt and to Jean Francois Champollion, who discovered in the stone-tablet the key to the hieroglyphs, thus unraveling the long-hidden secrets of civilization of the Pharaohs.

OUR SOLAR SYSTEM

The Solar System consists of the sun, nine planets (spherical bodies greater than 3,000 miles in diam.), their satellites (moons), about 2,000 asteroids (minor planets with a diameter not more than 500 miles), comets and such meteor swarms as are moving under the gravitation of the sun.

The sun is our nearest star. Its diameter is 864,390 miles. The main distance between earth and sun is 92,900,000 miles, called one astronomical unit.

MATTER AND ENERGY (Chemistry)

Matter is anything which fills space and has weight. Energy is the ability to do work. Its different forms are: Kinetic (in moving bodies), potential (stored in elevated bodies), heat (in expanding steam), chemical (due to composition), electrical (that of electric current) and radiating (of light or other rays). They are convertible into each other, their sum remaining the same. (Law of Conservation of Energy).

In the devices shown above we convert one kind of energy into another kind—chemical into heat, electrical into light or mechanical, etc. (Whitman: Household Physics.) (Chemistry.)

MOLECULES AND ATOMS

According to John Dalton's (1766-1844) Atomic Theory matter consists of molecules which are the smallest particles having the properties of the substance. Molecules are composed of atoms, the smallest particles of elements. Compound is the combination of different molecules or atoms e.g. Two hydrogen molecules with one oxygen molecule give two water molecules. $2H_2 + O_2 = 2H_2O$. (Holmes: Intr. College Chemistry.)

THE AUTOMOBILE (Transportation)

The automobile, like the railroad and steamship, is one principal means of transportation. The gasoline auto is the most developed and generally used; few are driven by steam or electricity.

Upper left: Section of a gasoline auto. Main parts: 1. Internal combustion motor (E) that furnishes power by exploding gasoline vapor mixed with air. 2. Transmission (T) consisting of shiftable gears to change speed. 3. Clutch (C) that disengages the motor, enabling it to run while the car stands. 4. The differential (D) allowing the driven wheels to revolve with different speeds at turns (curves). 5. The frame with axles, springs, wheels, steering and brake mechanism. 6. The universal joints (U) that connect the power transmitting parts. 7. The body with the seats, top, fenders and bumpers, signaling and illuminating devices.

We Deny It Is Competition

They promise us complete repeal by 1934 at the fewest. At the same time we hear there will be a determined drive on free lunch.

Seems that the gratis barbecues seriously interfere with the regular restaurants. That is probably nearly correct. Three beers and a hodful of free lunch will put any appetite in parenthesis.

However, when you are out dining with your sweety or your wife you are not going to take 'em into a saloon, lead them up to the pretzels and pickles and say, "Pin back your ears, dearie, that's what I think of you."

Nope, the loveable chatterers will not stand for that. They are going to insist on fresh linen, sparkling glassware and glistening silver with their hot groceries.

We imagine the run-of-the-line restaurants are unduly alarmed about the filling powers of free lunch. Anyway, the donated delicatessen was always a stag affair. It was never ladies' day around the jellied pig's hoofs and the ox ribs de luxe.

The tableware at the lunch shelf consists of a pewter knife and a lead fork. You stood in line waiting your turn. A real gentleman always wiped the knife on his whiskers before passing it to you.

The cutlery was parked in a deep glass filled with water. We frequented one saloon for 20 years and never saw the knife lost or the water changed. As for the spoon and the fork, your tongue was the dish towel.

The original tribe of plate polishers strove and throve at the old free lunch board. It was rough and ready and not calculated to attract starched femininity.

Even though it revolved furiously at times, it was still a man's world. We are not getting historical to amuse our grandchildren, but to smooth down the fears of the stylish restaurateur.

The boys who answered the mess bugle in the saloon could neither afford nor care to dine sitting down. They stood up at the ironing board and gobbled down economical gastronomical curiosities which wouldn't look out of place in Ripley's odditorium. If the better class of restaurants serve stuff like that, then we can say they are in danger of direct competition.

And the saloon furnished everything raw. Nothing was cooked until you breathed on it.

Work in Defense Plan

Awaiting the approval of President Roosevelt is a modest program for national defense that will provide work quickly for thousands of unemployed Americans, North, East, South and West.

And what is ultimately of greater importance, it will repair in part the damage which sapping expeditions under recent administrations have inflicted upon the national defense.

This program calls for the allocation by the Public Works Administration of $303,000,000 for the rehabilitation of the combat forces of the Regular Army, which false economy in recent years has reduced in effectiveness far below the danger line.

Of this amount, the major allotment would go to the Army Air Corps—more than $80,000,000 for hundreds of new planes and for urgently needed housing to safeguard the physical fitness of our defenders who fly the colors.

The balance of this $303,000,000 would be distributed between the Infantry, Field Artillery, Cavalry, Coast Artillery, the Chemical Warfare Service, the Signal Corps and the other units of the service for modernization and housing.

Of this balance, more than $80,000,000 would be expended for the mechanization and motorization of the armed forces, which they badly need of this modernization and without which their effectiveness is crippled.

And $135,000,000 is allocated under this proposed expenditure to complete the Army housing program. This amount would enable President Roosevelt to complete in three years, at a saving of millions of dollars, a program which previous Republican administration had extended over 10 years, in utter disregard of the needs of the Army and of the additional burden on the American taxpayers.

It is not surprising that this modest program for the rehabilitation of what is left of our Regular Army should appeal to the common sense of the members of the public works board of which the Secretary of the Interior is the able head.

Unlike so many projects submitted to this board, here is a program that can be carried out without any undue delay. Plans are ready. Contracts can be let in a minimum of time. Thousands of jobless Americans can be put to work on this program before snow flies.

More than 80 cents out of every dollar allocated for Army housing will go into the pockets of wage-earners in the building trades who are urgently in need of work. Much of it will be expended in the vicinity of large centers of population, where the unemployment problem is most serious.

All of the money it is proposed to expend upon new airplanes, upon mechanization and motorization, will go to factories which have been compelled by the depression to lay off thousands of skilled workmen, and close down their plants in whole or in part.

As a remedy for unemployment which will be swift and effective, as a reinforcement of the national defense which has been reduced below the danger level, and as one of those wise economies which involved the spending of money now to save money later, this program for modernizing our military establishment will appeal to the common sense of the American people.

The program has the united and earnest support of the Chief of Staff of the Army, the General Staff, the Chief of the Air Corps and the other chiefs of branches, the Secretary of War and his assistant, and complies with all the requirements of the public works board.

This gratifying fact will encourage the American people to hope that this program on which the Army is united will soon receive the same APPROVAL of the Commander-in-Chief of the Army and the Navy that he so wisely gave a similar program for building up the Navy.

Last Chance to Register

Do Not Fail to Qualify to Vote in the Primary and in The General Election.

Tomorrow will be the last day for registering in Pittsburgh, and also in Clairton, Duquesne and McKeesport. The polls will be open for registration in Pittsburgh from 8 to 11 a. m. and from 5 to 11 p. m., daylight saving time.

If you have not already registered, do not let this final opportunity escape. Even if you are not interested in the primary, you should register now to vote in November, when other matters come up. Otherwise you will have to visit the Registration Commission's office to qualify to cast your ballot then.

Good citizenship demands that you vote, and there are special reasons for doing so this year.

The primary will be important, because it will determine who shall be the party candidates for Mayor, five places in the City Council, seven places on the bench, and a number of other county offices.

The general election in November will be important, because, in addition to choosing public officials, the voters are to pass on the prohibition question, the Sunday baseball question, the Greater Pittsburgh Metropolitan District plan, the proposed $50,000,000 state bonus to World War veterans, and a number of other proposed amendments to the state constitution.

Be sure to qualify to express your choice in the primary, and to give your judgment on these matters that come up for consideration in November.

Missing Street Signs

Name Plates Should Be Erected on Little-Used Thoroughfares as Well as the Main Highways.

A man who had occasion to visit Spring Hill in the Twenty-fourth Ward and who was not familiar with that section reports that he went to the end of the Spring Garden car line and then tried to find his way with a map.

To his confusion he discovered that some of the short unpaved streets that he had to traverse, although named on the map, bore no name plates, and even residents of the neighborhood in some cases did not know their names.

There should be name plates on the intersections of little-used streets as well as on the much-traveled thoroughfares.

An Honor to Pittsburgh

The Consecration of Father Hayes as Bishop of Helena, Mont., Will Be a Red Letter Event.

As preparations proceed for the consecration of the Most Rev. Ralph L. Hayes, D. D., which will take place in St. Paul's Cathedral next Thursday, appreciation grows of the honor that has been done Pittsburgh in the selection of a native son to be bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Helena, Mont.

Father Hayes is the first boy born and reared in Pittsburgh to be elevated to the dignity and responsibility of the episcopate, and citizens of all faiths will take pride in the well-earned distinction that has come to a fellow Pittsburgher.

The consecration of Bishop Hayes will be a red letter event in the city's chronology.

In the Pilot's Seat

(Copyright, 1933.)

There should be no place for politics in the aeronautics branch of the U. S. Department of Commerce.

That division of the Federal Government, in charge of aviation, concerns the public very nearly.

Our remarkable progress in this most modern of industries, the high personnel of air pilots in this country, our great system of airways and airports with their radio signal systems and night beacons—all the factors that make for safety and efficiency and advancement in aviation—have been developed and maintained under the supervision of the aeronautics branch.

An editorial in the Sun-Telegraph recently brought to public attention the dangerous inroads that politics has been making in the aviation service of the Government. As that editorial said:

"Now is the time for the Roosevelt Administration to end the raid of the pork barrel politicians upon the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce."

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Are They Afraid?

* * *

They are, says Miss Sheilah Graham, young writer from England.

* * *

American husbands take first prize as faithful and devoted spouses. That, says Miss Graham, is because they are afraid of alimony and the alimoniacs.

* * *

No chivalrous man dares to marry a trusting little woman, these days, unless he has sufficient money to pay her the alimony to which she is looking forward.

* * *

The greatest shock of many a sweet young girl's life is to discover that the man who promised at the altar to "love and cherish" her forever is a week late or a hundred dollars short with the alimony.

* * *

It is a heartbreaking disappointment to marry a man for his money and then find that the only way you can GET it is to take it from him in the form of alimony. Every economist agrees that "a woman should receive a man's wages"—but it takes a divorce lawyer to tell her how to separate him from them.

* * *

Now and then you find a famous prima donna, a wealthy deputante or a hard-working business woman who scorns to ask for alimony. Not because she is too proud or too noble, but because she knows that by the time they had finished arguing about it she would probably be lending him the carfare to get back home and paying him a bonus to stay there.

On the other hand, a wife who demands two-thirds of a man's income, after two months of married life, may be prompted entirely by sentiment. No woman wants to be forgotten! And the surest way to make a man remember you forever is not to touch his heart, but to touch his pocketbook.

* * *

However, now that two Chicago women have been ordered to pay alimony to their respective husbands, it looks as though the men may soon stand a chance of getting an even break.

* * *

Funny thing about these modern lovers. Old-fashioned lovers used to vow to cling to each other forever and ever. Modern lovers promise faithfully NOT to cling to each other one moment after the thrills are over. They step to the altar with their fingers crossed and one eye on the divorce lawyer. They have no sporting spirit!

* * *

But if the fear of alimony is helping to keep the Great American Husband in the straight and narrow path, then perhaps I should not feel such hearty sympathy for the payers of alimony as I sometimes do.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Thoughts while strolling: Never see Elihu Root I don't think of Mr. Dooley's line when Root was presidential timber. "Sure," he says, "an' they'll soon be a singin' 'For he's a jolly good intellectual, no one can deny!'" Nothing so forlorn as a dog shop after dusk.

Verne Porter, an Abilene (Tex.) boy, who made good in the city. They are reviving the Chester A. Arthur-shaped derbies. Joe Laurie, Jr.'s, flashy clothes suggest a cozy corner in a medium's parlor. Whatever became of watermelon seed spitters? Down and out biographies getting a play.

One-word description of Constance Bennett—icicylish. Amusing the way St. John Ervine reviewed a London play, "The Terrible Event," with two words:—"Quite so." A grand appetizer someone sent. A thin slice of American cheese in French dressing until saturated. And O, boy!

Over in Brooklyn they say Wiley Post and Floyd Gibbons are "one-eyeded." Mrs. Frank Mason and Alice Hughes look alike. Nothing makes me want to go back to the country like looking at Corot's "The Ferryman" in the Metropolitan. George Lemaze, one of the town's best chefs.

No actress expresses tragic expectancy like Jane Cowl. One of may favorite people—Billy De Beck. Somehow I always expect book publishers to have whiskers. And no athlete has the glamorous dash of the polo player. That's what I'd like to be. An 8 goal man!

Frank Case tells of a hotelier friend who met a lady coming out of the dining room complaining the waiter annoyed her by fumbling the dishes and dropping silver. "Stage fright!" he told her. "The poor fellow has been rehearsing for months. You are the first customer. It's an opening night for him!"

Then there is Sam Harris' story of the Broadway shopkeeper who waited on a man who came in for change for a dollar. The shopkeeper opened the thing he used to call a cash drawer and there were six of the cunningest little mice and a mamma mouse. They were chewing on something, which he naturally took away from them and devoured himself. He looks much better now, has a good color and a bright eye.

Speaking of bright eyes, our chauffeur, John De Carlo, was driving past a mid-town clothing store. Suddenly he drew up short, hopped out and rushed to one of the windows. "I thought so," he jeered. "See them buttons on the right side of that double-breasted coat? They are one eight of an inch too high." And I'll be dogged if they weren't. John and I have more fun.

Courtney Ryler Cooper, however, has the keenest far-seeing eyes. He can read advertising signs to others a mere blur. He can even distinguish headlines of a newspaper on the stage from the last row of Music Hall. He says he developed his uncanny sight spotting collectors across Washington Square in his early free lance attic days.

Elmer A. Bushnell, a Cincinnati cartoonist, is another with marvelous vision. I was walking with him along the water front one day during an Ohio flood. "They ought to try to save that dog," he suddenly exclaimed, pointing upstream. We waited at least 20 minutes before a group of us saw a frightened hound bobbing along on a hen house. The dog was saved.

There are few notable records of worthwhile short stories and novels getting by the all-seeing editorial eye. But there are several exceptions. For instance, Richard Harding Davis' "Gallagher," now a model for short story technicians, was turned down by the Century, and "David Harum," a novel attaining a million sale, was rejected by Walter Hines Page. Another publishing firm, in one morning, decided Kipling's "Jungle Books," "Plain Tales From the Hills" and "Soldiers Three" would have little sale, and spurned them.

* * *

At my best at teas among strangers I'm a dud. Although I try to give an impression of being one of those straight-living chaps whose idea of hilarity is to sing the Eton Boating Song, something always happens. Yesterday I sat primly on the edge of a divan holding a cup when suddenly I slipped to the floor, the cup flying. As I reassembled myself I heard a lady murmur: "They come to these teas to wallow in gin."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

YOU CAN BE HAPPY.

No matter what happens to you OUTSIDE, you can be happy INSIDE. It's all up to you. And Mary Pickford tells you how and why in a current magazine.

"America's Sweetheart" is in trouble. She has lost the man she loves. All our hearts are aching for her. But Mary's heart isn't aching for herself. She doesn't believe in aches. She has found that they are Bad Medicine. It's sad to lose one's best beloved. But thinking about sadness only makes more sadness. Indeed, fearing sadness often causes that very sadness. For thoughts are things.

THOUGHTS ARE THINGS—that's Mary's great discovery.

YOU ARE WHAT YOU THINK. You have a "fate", but it isn't something that is hung on you from OUTSIDE. It is something that you build for yourself, INSIDE, with your own thoughts.

Once upon a time Mary sat around waiting for happiness; thinking, as most of us, that happiness is something that happens to us from OUTSIDE. And to the rest of the world, watching her glittering career, happiness certainly seemed to be happening to Mary. Romance came, splendid success, a fairy tale home, hosts of friends. Surely all these lovely dreams-come-true should have insured happiness.

But why did they still stay dream-like? Why didn't they warm her, thrill her, keep her confident, joyous, at peace?

(You've wondered about that, too, in your own life, haven't you? Follow her now. See what she discovered.)

She began to study herself, her outer seeming happiness, her inner very real unhappiness. Why were those inner feelings more real than the outer happenings? The answer to that was easy. She felt her thoughts more than she felt the things which happened to her, because—

THEY WERE NEARER HER.

SHE ACTUALLY LIVED IN HER THOUGHTS.

She didn't really live in Hollywood, in a wonderful home with a famous husband. Her body existed there; but the vital part of her, the feeling part, her own spirit, lived in her own thoughts—and IN THE WORLD WHICH THOSE THOUGHTS CREATED FOR HER.

SHE LIVED WHERE AND WHAT SHE THOUGHT.

Looking further, she saw that all life is only a reflection of what people have thought. All man's world was first made in man's mind. Before we can build a chair, lay a railroad, write a story or draft a law, these things must happen in our minds. Everything that we make or do is first done in our minds. The outer act is only a COPY of some THOUGHT. So thoughts are things—the most real things in life.

And since we really live in our thoughts, since everything we do is only a reflection of what we think, THOUGHTS HAVE TREMENDOUS POWER. They are the greatest power on earth. They can make us happy or unhappy, sick or well. WE CAN EVEN FRIGHTEN OURSELVES TO DEATH WITH THE FEAR IN OUR OWN THOUGHTS.

OR WE CAN RAISE OURSELVES OUT OF DESPERATE DARKNESS BY THE COURAGE AND FAITH OF OUR OWN THOUGHTS!

Mary Pickford discovered this, too. She discovered that she was happy only when she THOUGHT happy. Having the gorgeous makings of joy did her no good, unless she also had the THINKINGS. A home, a husband, a career—these things, dear as they were, had actually no power in her life. ONLY HER OWN THOUGHTS HAD POWER.

And so it was necessary to guard her thoughts more zealously than she had ever guarded any possession. She had kept her valuable jewels behind stout steel doors. She had carried insurance on her rare paintings and tapestries. But she had to give even stronger protection to her thoughts, for therein, as a wise man once said, lay "the real issues of life."

SHE HAD TO KEEP HER OWN FEAR FROM CREEPING INTO HER THOUGHTS, AND ALSO THE FEAR OF OTHERS.

If she could do that—if she could keep her thoughts healthy and hopeful and free from taint—then all her life would be safe. Everything else might be taken from her, but if she could safeguard her own thoughts she would still be joyous and strong.

So Mary Pickford learned the greatest law of life. And now she can honestly write that she's "happy in spite of all."

The Human Side of the News

The Strange Disappearance of the Cyclops—And the Even More Mysterious Case of the Mary Celeste

By EDWIN C. HILL

IT has been just five years since the Navy Department struck from the navy list the name of the collier Cyclops, putting a period, in so far as it could, to one of the greatest mysteries of the sea. The Cyclops, a well-found vessel of 19,000 tons displacement, with 300 souls aboard and a cargo of manganese, departed from Barbados for an Atlantic port on March 4, 1918. From the moment her top rigging fell below the horizon until this hour not a shred of evidence has even been produced to solve the riddle of her utter disappearance.

That a ship so large could vanish from the sight and report of men, with all her boats, life preservers, the baggage of her crew and the numerous company aboard her seems incredible in this age of crowded sea lanes and especially of radio, but that all this occurred is a matter of official record. In the history of disaster in the United States Navy the case of Cyclops must always have a place unique.

But there is a tale even stranger in the annals of the American merchant marine, one that baffles any likely theory or conjecture. On November 1, 1872, according to the Marine Register, the brigantine Mary Celeste, with a cargo of 1,700 barrels of alcohol, sailed from the harbor of New York for the port of Genoa.

Her master was Capt. Benjamin S. Briggs, of Marion, Mass. With luxurious whiskers, a ruddy complexion, and just the proper hint of sternness in his manner, he was a sailing master of the old school, about 45 years old and a member of an old New England sea-faring family. Capt. Briggs was a man who had successfully commanded many ships on long voyages. He was a teetotaler, and saw to it that no one around him drank liquor. He was a good church member, and made a practice of reading aloud one chapter from the Bible every day while at sea, weather permitting.

His wife, the only woman aboard, still a young woman in her early thirties, took with her their 2-year-old baby girl, her sewing machine and a small melodeon. In addition there were a mate, a second mate, a cook and four seamen aboard this tidy brigantine of 282 tons register and of Nova Scotia build.

Ship Is Found, Deserted By All

OF those 10 human beings who set sail from New York for Genoa in the Mediterranean on November 7, 1872, not one was ever seen again alive or dead, nor has any authentic message ever turned up from any one of them.

But the Mary Celeste was found prancing erratically over the waves, a ghost ship, with everything on board in apple pie order—and yet not a soul on board. On December 4, almost a month after the Mary Celeste had cleared Sandy Hook, she was sighted by the British bark, Dei Gratia, plowing along before a fair wind about 300 miles west of Gibraltar. Capt. Boyle, of the Dei Gratia, flew some signals, to which the Mary Celeste made no response, and the strange course which the silent vessel was taking finally caused the master of the Dei Gratia to send a boat's crew to investigate. And this is what Mate Devon found when he set foot on deck.

Under full sail and in perfect condition, the Mary Celeste had been abandoned. An abandoned ship at sea is nothing strange, but an abandoned ship in perfect condition, with sails set, and giving no evidence of having encountered storm or any danger, is another thing. No wonder that Mate Devon signalled for Capt. Boyce to join him aboard the mystery ship. Together they started a careful investigation.

The two boats of the Mary Celeste were missing—the yawl and the longboat. In Capt. Briggs' stateroom a pillow plainly showed the imprint of his little daughter's head. Above the pillow, hanging from a bracket, was Capt. Briggs' watch. In the next cabin was found the beginning of a letter from the mate to "Fanny, my dear wife—"

Continuing their search, the men from the Dei Gratia found Capt. Briggs' money in his cabin. Plainly there had been no robbery. The captain's navigating instruments, his sextant and chronometer were missing. Yet the ship's log, which is never voluntarily abandoned, was there in plain sight, with an entry reading: "Weather fine, wind light."

* * *

Sea Serpent, or Peril of Rocks

ALL of the berths were made up, showing that the crew had abandoned the brigantine in the daytime. Nor were there any indications of violence, such as a drop or two, even, of blood. In the ship's storeroom her provisions were intact, except that a case of canned goods had been ransacked and left open. The galley was clean and shipshade. There was not one mute reminder of mutiny, murder, storm or robbery.

Capt. Boyce and his mate came to the deliberate conclusion, however, that the people of the Mary Celeste had left her in a great hurry, plainly terror-stricken. But by what? No man could say then, and none can say now. It is the mystery that has gripped the imagination of seafaring men for more than sixty years.

A hundred surmises have been made, none quite meeting the case. The wildest of all was that a great sea serpent had attacked the little brigantine. Capt. Boyce, who found and investigated the derelict, believed most likely that the Mary Celeste had drifted in a calm, near to the rocky and dangerous coast of St. Mary's Island, that the captain took fright and decided to abandon the brigantine long enough to see whether or not she was going ashore. But why would he have feared the effects of his ship drifting against even rocks in a calm?

No; mystery it was in the long ago, and mystery it remains today, as vivid as ever—one of those utterly inexplicable mysteries of the sea.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Did you ever do a good deed in your life that you were not seeking recompense in one way or another?

On the other hand did you ever do a good deed without thought of recompense without getting some pleasure and satisfaction from the pleasure you gave another?

You have never regretted a generously kind deed, have you?

Even though the persons who received the benefits were ungrateful, still there was a certain satisfaction in having done something to make the world happier or better.

To bring brightness into the home or the life of another is to increase your own joy and happiness.

Right now you could think of some person or persons who need cheering and it is quite possible for you to do it, but you don't.

Why don't you?

It might be a visit to the sick or to some poor family in need to whom you might carry a bit of useful and necessary money.

ISN'T IT SO?

An egg in the cup is worth two in the nest.
